Piles are frequently proceeded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomash, etc. A moisture like prespiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a mommon attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and affecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address The Dr. Bosonko Medicine Co., Piqua, O. Told by M. M. Williams. 29tf

TWO DANGEROUS SEASONS.

Spring and fall are times when so many people get sick. The changes in the weather are severe on feeble persons, and even those naturally strong are apt as they say, "to be feeling miserable." Then they are just in condition to be struck down with some kind of fever. A bottle or two of Parker's Tonic will invigorate the digestion, put the liver, kidneys and blood in perfect order, and prevent more serious attacks. Why suffer, and perhaps die, when so simple a medicine will save you? Good for both sexes and all ages. 44w4

WASHED-OUT HAIR.

There is a sort of pallid, chalky complexion which the novelists call a "washed-out complexion." It is ghastly enough and no mistake. Washed-out, faded discolored, or parti-colored hair is almost as repulsive and melancholy. Parker's Hair Balsam will restore your hair to its original color, whatever it was brown, auburn or black. Why wear moss on your head, when you may easily have lively, shining hair 44w4

DR. FENNER'S KIDNEY AND BACKACHE CURE—For all diseases of the kidneys, bladder, urinary passages, backache, dropsy, female weakness, nervous debility, heart disease, rheumatism, etc. The most successful remedy that has ever been administered in the diseases named.

A Losing Joke.

"A prominent physician of Pittsburg said to a lady patient who was complaining of her continued ill health, and of his inability to cure her, jokingly said: "Try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughed at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it, as it cost him a good patient.

A new horseshoe is now being made which is in two parts, the upper design to remain permanently upon the foot, where it will last for a indefinite time, as no wear comes upon it; the other, that which contains the calks and which is joined to the upper in an ingenious manner. The lower halves of the shoe are interchangeable—sharp calks for icy weather, and blunt ones for heavy draft horses, or they may be removed entirely at night to prevent injury to the animal while in the stall.

A WALKING SKELETON.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburgh, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abcess on lungs, and reduced to a walking Skeleton. Got a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles, found myself once more a man, completely restored to health, with a hearty appetite, and a gain in flesh of 48 lbs." The State Census.

The census of the inhabitants of this State is to be taken this year. Secretary of State Carr has appointed S. N. D. North, of the Utica Herald, to superintend the census bureau. Secretary Carr has also issued the following regulations relative to the appointment of enumerators:

Applications must be made by personal letter, in the handwriting of the applicant, addressed to the Secretary of State, Albany, N. Y., No especial form is required, but the full name, age occupation and post-office address should be given. The application should be made for an election district, if there be more than one in the town or ward, and the name of the town, or the number of the ward, and county should be set forth. Applications must be filed on or before the 10th of April next. Actual residence for at least one year next preceding the appointment, in the election district, is required of the applicant. Former service in National or State census work may be set forth in the application.

HUDSON RIVER R. R.

Conductor Melius Says Something of Interest to all Travelers.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Feb. 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir: I have used your medicine called DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, for Indigestion and Dizziness, to which I was subject at times, and know from experience that is worthy of all that can be said of it for disorders of this kind. Respectfully, W. S. Melius.

69 Harrison Street.

"That DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE RMEDY is extensively used along the line of the Hudson River Railroad, is shown by the following from Tarrytown. The writer is none other than Mr. DeRevere, the Station Agent of the Hudson River Railroad Company at Tarrytown, a man well know in that community.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Feb. 22, 1884

Dr. D. Kennedy, Ronbout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir:—For a long time I was truobled with severe attacks of Dizziness and Blind sick headaches. I thought it was due to impure blood and a disordered state of the system. I was advised to try FAVORITE REMEDY. I did so, and have been completely cured. It's the best thing I ever heard of for any disorder of that nature, and I've recommended it to many with like success.

A. DeReVere.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY is not confined in its sphere of usefulness to one state or locality, but is hailed as a boon by hundreds in every state, as the following letter from Minnville, N. J., will show,

Millville N. J,

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir:—I had been a sufferer from Dyspepsia from the time I was sixteen years old. I had consulted various physicians, but could find no relief; therefore had almost given up in dispair of ever recovering my health, when DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended, which I tried and have been cured. It's the best medicine I ever knew of, and worthy of the greatest confidence. Mrs. S. C. Docgherty.

MORTGAGE SALE. Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the State of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 12th day of Jan. 1875, and is recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 13th day of January, 1875, at 5 o'clock p. m., in Liber 103, of Mortgages, at page 507, was given by Elisabeth A. Jones mortgagor to Timothy Pratt, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: John W. Pratt, who is the present owner and holder. The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is twelve hundred seventy-nine dollars which is the whole amount of said mortgage. The following is a description, of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage: all that tract or parcel of land, situate in the village of Fulton, Oswego county and State of New York, known and distinguished on the printed map of said village, on file in the Oswego county clerk's office, as lot number seven (7) on Block number fifteen (15) the same being four (4) rods in width on Seneca street and eight rods in depth on Third street. Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction at the law office of H. E. Nichols, in the village of Fulton, county of Oswego, New York, on the 16th day of May, 1885, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

'Tis But the Glamour.

BY THOMAS J. MOORE.

'Tis truly true that what we win
Not always soothes our yearnings—
The far off gem brought closer in
May lose its brilliant burnings.
And satisfaction's gleaming star
May glitter in the distance,
Yet nearer brought may show a scar
To mar its bright existence.

The loveless picture love as life,
And dream of tender breathing,
And yet how often love brings strife,
Our blood with passion seething.
'Tis but the glamour, not the thing,
To longing eyes seem fairest!
Contentment quickest takes to wing
That gayest plumage bearest.

LOST IN SYMMES' HOLE.

An Extraordinary Arctic Adventure.

The whaler Sunrise that arrived at New Bedford on the 14th of October, 1884, reports that in Lat. 57 degs., 20 mins. N., Lon., 48 degs. W., she was beset by icebergs. The men landed upon one to pick up some birds they shot; embedded in this berg they found a tin meat case. Upon opening it several sheets of paper flew out which were quickly lost to sight. In the case they found the following

MANUSCRIPT.

If this paper is so fortunate as to reach the outside world, I beg that whoever finds it will make it public as soon as possible. It is the record of a private Arctic expedition which sailed from New York, United States of America, in the summer of 1877.

It consisted of two ships, the Hope and Faith; the former commanded by John Dantzks, a Dane, and the latter by James K. Morgan, an American.

The officers, scientific men and crew, numbered altogether fifty-three souls. Their names are given elsewhere.

I owned the ships and directed their course.

We had with us a balloon which was used as an observatory. By this means we could always, when desired, see at least sixty or seventy miles ahead of us in clear weather.

The Hope was built for the purpose of carrying the balloon and the materials for inflating it.

Each ship had on board a hundred days' supply of coal. Our average speed was ten miles an hour, which could be greatly increased if necessary. We were well prepared for Arctic cold, and provisions for two years.

My intention was to proceed first to Tunsoe, there to take on board an extra supply of coal which would be in waiting for us, and then follow up the west coast of Spitzbergen in the warm current which comes from the north.

By taking that route I hoped to reach at least 80 deg. N. L. without much trouble, and from there we were to make the grand dash which I felt sure would take us to the Pole.

I had a theory that the sea of the north was filled with shifting belts of ice, some wide, some narrow, and that between them, we would find plenty of open water.

The one thing we had really to fear was, being frozen into the pack, or crushed by ice, and from those dangers I looked to our balloon to guard us.

Being perfectly confident in the ultimate success of our enterprise and anticipating the triumph of our return, I kept our destination a secret.

I doubt if half a dozen people in New York ever heard of the expedition. Even the crew were not told our goal until the evening before we sailed, when they were all called together, the plan of the voyage laid before them, and the choice offered to hold to their engagement, or at this last moment withdraw. Not a man turned his back upon us.

Having been so unfortunate as to lose all the ship's papers, I have taken the dates for what follows from memory. Scientific observations are entirely lacking.

We sailed from New York, June 6th, 1877. Carried out our program to the letter till July 4th, which found us off the west coast of Spitzbergen, with plenty of ice in sight.

We celebrated the day in orthodox style with a balloon ascension. It was the first trip we made in the Eye, as we had named our aerial vessel. [illegible], our aeronaut, with Prof. Janson and myself, were the passengers.

We afterward became accustomed to the sight of this vast expanse of [illegible] water which lay beneath [illegible] time between Spitzbergen [illegible] again we [illegible] by miles. [illegible] and again from [illegible] which would have taken us to the centre of an ice pack. We guarded our Eye with the utmost care, for we all felt that upon it depended not only the success of our enterprise, but the lives of us all.

Nothing of importance occurred until July 25th. It was very foggy. As Parker, one of the sailors, was passing along the deck, he was hit on the shoulder by a stone weighing a pound and a half. It seemed to drop from the sky. The thermometer had been rapidly rising, and at 11 a. m. marked 40 degrees. There was a strong breeze from the northeast. Cries of seagulls were heard. Fog cleared away at noon, and showed an island about three miles away. There were large geysers upon it. I ordered Capt. Morgan of the Faith, with Messrs. Pratt and Brown, to put off in a boat and inspect the island, while Swift, Janson and I went up in the balloon to see what lay before us. Forty miles to the north was an ice pack, to our eyes as solid and impregnable as a granite wall. From this discouraging sight we turned our glasses toward the island. It was perhaps twenty miles in circumference, and nearly its whole area had been covered by geysers. There seemed to be now but six active ones, but the largest of these was something terrific. It shot up into the air 1200 feet carrying large stones and much debris with it. The stream had a peculiar rotary motion which caused it to fling its burden to a distance, instead of letting it fall into or around its cone. The eruption lasted for half an hour, and grand as the sight was, we were thankful when it was over.

Far to the west of us the ice looked broken, with indications of open water beyond.

We descended; and twenty minutes later saw that the party from the Faith had also returned.

In his written report to me Capt. Morgan placed the island in lat. 83 deg. 40 min. north long. 22 west. After great trouble in landing, on account of the multitude of stones which filled the shallow water around the shore, they took possession in the name of the United States, and named it Geyser Island. They then put a record of our voyage under a pile of rocks on the highest point they could find, and over it placed an American flag. There was no trace of anyone having been there before. They were standing by the large geyser when the eruption commenced, and had several narrow escapes from being hit by the flying stones. They staid long enough to take the bearings of the island, the temperature of the geysers, and to collect a few of the stones, etc., which were thrown up by the water.

The stones are similar to the one which hit Parker.

The mud, upon being dried, fell away into small black grains which were found to contain iron and cobalt. Is it possible that this geyser can account for the metalliferous dust which Arctic explorers have found upon the snow in high latitudes? To our great joy the next day was clear. Made an ascension at nine o'clock, found that the ice-pack was not more than twenty miles across at this point, and had many leads thro' it.

Upon taking an observation at noon discovered that we were in lat. 84 deg. 20 min. north long. 25 deg. west. The sea to the north was fairly free from ice. Every one confident we would reach the pole. On this afternoon saw two islands from the Crow's Nest. Could distinguish low trees upon them, thus confirming the fact that we had passed the region of greatest cold. Did not take the time to land, as we were anxious to reach 85 deg. that night. At seven o'clock in the evening there was an unusual amount of electricity in the air—all the instruments were affected by it. The wind became a hurricane, accompanied by colored lightning, red, green, blue and yellow, but there was no thunder. The waves were so terrific that for two hours we had no control over the ship, and expected to go to the bottom every minute. During a flash we saw the Faith with one mast gone and apparently much disabled. Immediately after ward, a large ball of red fire sped swiftly through the air from east to west. Then came a loud crash and such a violent jar that for the moment we thought we had collided with the Faith. Soon after the wind began to subside, and we felt that the worst was over.

All our deck lights were put out. Upon trying the pumps we found we were leaking, but not badly. The Faith was nowhere to be seen and did not answer when we whistled. We feared the crash had signaled her destruction.

The next morning was bright and clear. We could see for an immense distance east and west, but north and south the horizon was much contracted. Ross spoke of noticing the same peculiarity.

The leak had increased, and unfortunately was situated just where we could not reach it without moving the greater part of the iron cutting which we used for the balloon. My great anxiety, however, was for the Faith; went up in the Eye at nine o'clock to look for her. Nothing, whatever, was floating upon the sparkling water except the Hope. Not a bit of wreckage in sight. Janson [illegible] world is globular, hollow [illegible] poles, and capable of being [illegible] on the inner as well as the outer [illegible]," replied Swift. "Really Swift," [illegible] laughing, "you pay me a higher compliment than I deserve, in supposing that I am incapable of a mistake in working out an observation, for my blunder of to-day is probably the basis for your remark about Symmes' Hole." "No it is not that alone," he remarked seriously; "various things confirm it. The appearance of the horizon, the much warmer temperature, the entire absence of ice, and the great variation of the compass."

The morning was again bright. I longed for a sight from the Eye, but feared to leave the ship, for although we were pumping the same number of [illegible] as at midnight [illegible] reason the Hope was settling inch by inch deeper into the water.

The needle behaved in a remarkable manner, just as it would if we were nearing a magnetic pole. A cry came from the Crow's Nest of land. I rushed on deck; the land lay along, low streak due north. Captain Dantzks came close to me and said in my ear, "we are a foot deeper in the water than we were an hour ago. If we keep on settling at this rate the Hope will never reach that shore." I bade the captain to call the crew together, explain the situation and order them to be ready to quit the ship, if that measure became necessary.

Swift, who was standing near me, looking through a glass, called out, "I see a hill. It is shaped like a pyramid, and is covered with snow." Janson exclaimed excitedly, "there are houses there, and I am sure I see a boat putting out from the shore." Half an hour passed slowly, and then we saw, without doubt, that three boats were coming to our assistance. They had need to hasten. We had launched the first cutter, and found that a hundred pounds weight sank it under the water. The men were told to secure upon their persons anything that they wished to save.

The ship's papers must be preserved. I made a package of them, and then discovered I had left some on the table. I thrust those into my pocket. Everyone was summoned on deck.

My gallant Hope; it was evident she could not float ten minutes longer. We all betook ourselves to the rigging. Rescue was close at hand. Something must have struck me on the head, for the next thing I knew, I was lying on the deck of one of the strange vessels. Dr. Potter was bending over me. He said he thought the men were all saved. The Hope had disappeared.

Beside him stood a man with snow white hair, who looked like an Englishman, though dressed as all the strangers were in a tight-fitting silken garment, over which was worn a cloak or gown. He was crying, laughing, talking embracing the doctor, and altogether behaving like a man gone mad with joy. All we could understand of what he said was, "after thirty years; after thirty years!" When he had grown calm enough to be intelligible he told us that his name was William Henry Smith; that he had been with Sir John Franklin's expedition: that in the fall of 1846 they went up Wellington channel; that he with a party of six others under Lieut Gore were sent out along Cornwallis Land to explore the coast. They supposed they were on firm ground, when a strong wind broke up the ice and he was separated from the party. The piece of floe he was on drifted for five days, at the end of which time he lost consciousness. He awoke on a vessel. He was brought to this island we were now close to, and very kindly treated. All these years he had waited and longed for news from home. Did Sir John discover the northwest passage? Was Queen Victoria still alive? Was there an Englishman among our crew?

Morton, one of our men, now stepped forward. He was from the part of England where Smith had lived, and as a child had often heard him spoken of.

All this time our rescuers had stood quietly around waiting until Smith had finished.

One of them who, judging from his dress and bearing, was the commander, now approached and addressed me in very good English. He was fully six feet in height and well formed. His features, somewhat Greek in shape, were handsome, but the lids of his eyes were black, and as the rest of the skin was quite fair, the effect was peculiar. His manner was gracious and dignified.

After many words of welcome, he informed us that we were in the country of the Craypts, which was the name of the island we were approaching. His own name was Kuni, but we found he was always addressed by the title of "Earm," which seemed to mean governor. That for ten thousand years the Craypts had been expecting to hear from our side of the world. That they were greatly delighted when Smith was found and equally disappointed when he could give them no news of their old home.

But we had now reached the land. I was helped to my feet and looked sadly back over the ocean; not a vestage of the Hope was in sight. Kuni's eyes followed mine. I begged him to tell me what had caused our irreparable accident. That the leak was entirely too small to account for it, I felt convinced. Kuni replied, "It was undoubtedly owing to what you call the attraction of gravity. [illegible] vitreous varnish, which was so [illegible] as the sun shone upon it, that we could not bear to look at it. This was Swift's snow-covered hill.

The pyramid stood in the centre of a space a thousand feet square, paved with the same white stone.

Back of this was built the city—all of stone.

Every house had a flat roof, showing that they never had heavy falls of snow.

Just where we landed stood a colossal bird, carved from an enormous block of a purely gray stone. It's wings, broken, hung useless at its side. It was making a futile effort to fly. The head was that of a human child, with the expression everyone has sometimes seen in a baby's face, as if it were looking back into the world it had so lately left.

Upon attempting to walk up the steps we foreigners each tested the hardness of the stone, for we all fell flat. The Craypts with many expressions of grief lifted us and carried us over the pavement, past the pyramid and into the "Strangers' House," as Kuni called it.

I noticed that Smith walked, but in a curious slow dragging way.

We were taken into a large hall around which ran a low cushioned divan. Our men were seated upon this, while I was placed in a large chair in the centre of the room. Kuni seated himself near me, he then invited me to tell who we were? where we were from? and how we reached Crapyt? All of which I did in the fewest possible words. As soon as I had satisfied their curiosity, Kuni said, "I will tell you our history when you have dined."

We were now all taken into the next room where I was overwhelmed with gratitude to see Swift and Janson, Captain Danztks, and all of the rest of the ship's crew. Not a man was missing.

Before us was a table well covered with food. Everything was to our liking, and we did full justice to what was set before us.

Dinner being over, Kuni asked if we were tired. We all said "no." He then invited the ship's officers with Messrs. Swift, Janson, the doctor and myself to accompany him to the Pyramid.

At the door of the room we found a wheeled chair for each of us; they were very comfortable, and moved at a touch on the guiding wheel.

Everything is here charged with electricity. We have already learned to be careful what we put our hands on.

When we reached the Pyramid we were each carried by a Craypt through a narrow opening down a slanting passage which ended in a large room brilliant with electric light. The walls of dazzling white stone were covered with pictures and hieroglyphics. Kuni proceeded to explain them. Pointing to what was evidently the first of the series he began:

"Ten thousand years ago in the ocean called Atlantic, there was an island named Atlantis. It was rich and great. At last it became too thickly filled with people and the King decreed that each year a ship should carry away to distant shores a number of people who were to found a colony. When they were ready to sail they drew lots, to see in what direction they should go. The first year it was to the east.

The next year just as it was time for the vessel to start, word came from the colony asking for more men. They had found a fertile land on a great river which overflowed its banks every year. But the ship which was on the point of sailing had to abide by the lot, and that sent it to the west. The following year they were forced to go to the north. You see them here, starting out. The picture shows them beaten off from an island they had hoped to find rest on, by the savage inhabitants. There is a land of boiling water. (Geyser Island was faithfully depicted.) Here at last they have reached Crapt. These represent the ships that followed them for two successive years from Atlantis. Here you see the ship that was sent to carry tidings of their safety to the mother land. Whether it fulfilled its mission, no one knows. It was never heard from again.

"The next year another ship was sent upon the same errand. After a long absence it returned reporting that the sea to the south was covered with thick ice and that the air was intensely cold. Year after year a ship sailed to find an opening through the ice, and each time it returned unsuccessful.

"As time went on the Crapts became convinced that all life on the surface of the globe had been destroyed by the great cold and that they sheltered in the bosom of the earth and warmed by her internal fires were the only human beings who had escaped with life. They wished, however, to obtain positive proof of what they feared. So ship after ship was sent. This custom would have undoubtedly died out in course of time if it had not been for a law made in the twentieth year after the settlement at Craypt, which decreed that upon a set day in each year, an account of Atlantis and of the journey from there to this island, should be read to the assembled people. Immediately after which the discovery ship was to sail. Great pains have been taken to instruct the children of each generation in the early history [illegible]

[illegible] of the oldest civilization on the globe.

We told Kuni the little that was recorded of Atlantis. Also of the ruins of Egypt and what we know of those in America. Of the entire extinction of the Ancient Egyptian race, and the quantities of mummies they had left behind them. We asked if it was the custom here to mummify the dead, and were told that Crypt, the leader of the first expedition, was the only man so honored. In Atlantis Kings alone were mummified; the other dead were burned and their ashes carefully collected.

Upon our inquiring why they had built this pyramid Kuni replied that when the first ship sailed from the mother-country it was given certain written instructions, appointing their governor, regulating their laws, etc. and finally commanding them to erect a pyramid in which they were to preserve their archives and also the history of Atlantis.

FASHION NOTES.

Jet will be more used than ever in dress and millinery.

French poplin promises to rival surah for summer dresses.

The Eton jacket is much used for dresses on very young ladies.

The silver gray mohairs will be especially stylish the coming season.

Black ribbed stockings with white soles are preferred to all others for children.

For children's dresses, especially for kilt skirts, are wools with bright cross stripes.

Wide white embroidered muslin scarfs will still be used as neckties by little girls.

Velvet Tam o' Shanter caps in bright red will be worn by little boys the coming spring.

White hats trimmed in white, will be fashionable wear for little people in the spring.

Blue and white check silks of small design make pretty dresses for girls of seven or eight.

Black and gold will remain in favor for the galloons which are to take the place of passementeries.

Ribbons of three or four colors tied together in bows, will be used as trimmings on skirts and basques. The old-fashioned mousseline de laine and the challies of twenty years ago, will be worn this season.

Mull of silk muslin scarfs and square neckerchiefs have bands and stripes in many dull moyengo colors.

The jockey cap in black velvet makes a very becoming headgear for young horse-women and is always stylish.

Some new handkerchief dresses are introduced, with fine lines for borders, and very small figures in the middle.

Linen collars are high and straight in military style, but the corners in front instead of being square.

The silk faced serges, the lustrous mohairs and French poplins that were in vogue fifteen or twenty years ago are revived.

The scarfs used for trimming bonnets contain a great deal of gilt and a variety of colors, especially the dull porcelain blue, rose and red shades.

To wear open throated dresses a short chemisette of embroidery or of tucking with drawn-work or insertion between groups of tucks, is added to plain or embroidered linen collars.

For mourning are folds of black silk muslin with tiny bead stitched dots of embroidery upon them to be worn in the neck and sleeves, and also to form plasters gathered in the open square neck.

Not yet fully awake he imagined that he was in his office, for he said sternly:

"What's your name?"

"Maria Smith."

"How old are you?"

"Twenty-six," replied the female, with considerable hesitation.

"Where were you born? Don't try to fool me. I know your sort. How many times have you been punished already? Don't think up any lies now."

Just at this crisis Mrs. Beasley spoke up from the adjoining room:

"Why, husband, what is the matter? You are talking to my dear friend, Mrs. Smith, who has come to spend a few days with us."—[Texas Siftings.

A REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

Mrs Mary A Dailey of Tunkhannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give no relief. Her life was despaired of, until in last October she procured a bottle of Dr. Kink's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50 lbs in a few months. ROBUST HEALTH

Is not always enjoyed by those who seem to possess it. The taint of corrupted blood may be secretly undermining the constitution. In time, the poison will certainly show its effects, and with all the more virulence the longer it has been allowed to permeate the system. Each pimple, sty, boil, skin disorder and sense of unnatural lassitude, or languor, is one of Nature's warnings of the consequences of neglect.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only remedy that can be relied upon, in all cases, to eradicate the taint of hereditary disease and the special corruptions of the blood. It is the only alterative that is sufficiently powerful to thoroughly cleanse the system of Scrofulous and Mercurial impurities and the pollution of Contagious Diseases. It also neutralizes the poisons left by Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever, and enables rapid recuperation from the enfeeblement and debility caused by these diseases.

Myriads of Cures

Achieved by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, in the past forty years, are attested, and there is no blood disease, at all possible of cure, that will not yield to it. Whatever the ailments of this class, and wherever found, from the scurvy of the Arctic circle to the "veldt-sores" of South Africa, this remedy has afforded health to the sufferers by whom it was employed. Druggists everywhere can cite numerous cases, within their personal knowledge, of remarkable cures wrought by it, where all other treatment had been unavailing. People will do well to

Trust Nothing Else

than AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Numerous crude mixtures are offered to the public as "blood purifiers," which only allure the patient with the pretense of many cheap doses, and with which it is folly to experiment while disease is steadily becoming more deep-seated and difficult of cure. Some of these mixtures do much lasting harm. Bear in mind that the only medicine that can radically purify the vitiated blood is

THE troubles in the North West are growing worse. Troops from all parts of Canada are moving to the scene of action.

SECRETARY WHITNEY will this week appoint a board of two naval officers and one civilian to test the Dolphin in another trial trip.

THE number of nominations sent to the senate by President Cleveland was 172. There were 159 confirmed, two rejected and 13 unacted upon.

JOHN M. FRANCIS, of the Troy Times, will probably enjoy the mission to Vienna for some time yet as there are no indications of his successor being selected.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has accepted an invitation to visit the battle field of Gettysburg the 4th and 5th of May, when the veterans make their historial visit.

THE Prince and Princess of Wales left London for Ireland last evening, and will reach Kingstown at noon to-day. It is safe to predict that they will not receive a right royal welcome by all the Irish people.

GENERAL GRANT is slowly nearing his end. His fight with the grim destroyer has been remarkable. The latest intelligence this morning is to the effect that he has at most but a few hour to live. He passed a restless night.

THE gangway of the Cuyler colliery at Raven Run, Pennsylvania, caved in Monday afternoon, entombing ten miners who were at work inside. The, bodies of the unfortunate men, who leave nine widows and thirty-six children, have not yet been found.

THE new commissioner of agric ulture Norman J. Coleman, is an agriculturist, a practical Missouri farmer, stock breeder and edits a farmer's journal. Their abilities of the new commissioner for this position far excells those appointed under Republican administrations.

A MONSTER MASS MEETING of Inventors will be held at Columbus, Ohio, on the 22nd day of April, 1885, for the purpose of perfecting an organization for the Protection of Inventors, Manufacturing and Developing Inventions, Detecting and Prosecuting Infringements, and instituting a benevolent Brotherhood. All are cordially invited.

THERE is one thing about President Cleveland which extorts admiration from his worst enemies, and that his apparently sturdy and self-contained independance. It is not mere stubbornness, nor is it a blind unintelligent proceeding But it comes near the best approach to Jacksonian firmness, without the flavor of Jacksonian arbitrariness, that has been seen in the White House for many years. It does not always lead to the best action, as we look at it, and it, of course, generally displeases somebody. But it seems to be genuine independance for all that, and as such we like it—whether we like what it brings about or not.—[Lowell Courier.

IT is reported that official information has been received at El Paso del Norte by the Mexican authorities confirming the news of the death of Barrios on the San Salvador frontier. If the restless adventurer could have chosen the form of his death it would undoubtedly have been that which he has apparently encountered. The sudden check to the career of the war party in Guatemala will probably have the effect of securing the independence of that State, which a strong faction in Mexico would have been glad of a chance to break down The aggressive movements of the last month gave this faction much hope that is now likely to be disappointed.—[New, York Times.

The Senate finance committee Friday reported favorably the bill appropriating $60,000 to purchase and improve the camp of instruction at Peekskill.

The railroad commissioners place the entire blame for the West Shore collision at Canajoharie February 20, on J. G. Halloran, train dispatcher at Syracuse.

The New York M. E. conference in session at Poughkeepsie unanimously passed a resolution, praying the Legislature to defeat the freedom of worship bill.

The relief commitee at Carthage have disbursed about $12,000 and have $16,000 yet to be distributed. The committee is aiding those who wish to rebuild.

As a result of lowering the fare on the Brooklyn bridge the income of the ferry company has been cut down one-third, and the bridge receipts have fallen off a quarter.

Canal boatmen propose going into the elevator business themselves. A meeting has been called to consider the matter of organizing a State Protection Grain Elevator company.

The widow of James Faulkner of Ithaca, who died as a result of service in the army, has been denied a pension on the ground that Faulkner enlisted under false pretenses, having been over 60 years old at the time.

The Niagara Falls park bill has been amended so that only $433,009 is to be paid at once, and $1,000,000 in 4 per cent. bonds, the owners of property having the opinion to take pay in bonds at not less than par.

Wyoming county prohibitionists held a slim meeting at Perry, adopting a resolution favoring A. A. Hopkins as a candidate for governor, and selected F. W. Capwell of Warsaw as a member of the state committee.

Miss Hattie McCarrack, who was to have been married on her birthday at Coxsackie the other day, died suddenly of cerebro spinal meningitis at the age of nineteen, and was laid out in her wedding garments.

While Daniel Wiggins of Elmira, a Delaware, Lackawanna and Western brakeman, was walking on the Lehigh track, Saturday, on his way to buy a coffin for his child, who had died from being scalded, he was struck by an engine and killed.

The Delaware and Hudson canal boatmen are greatly excited at a reduction announced by the company. At the end of last season many of the men had not been able to save a dollar, and if the rate is not restored an extensive strike is probable.

There was considerable excitement in Buffalo, Friday, among Canadians and Irish Americans on account of the appearance there of a half-breed Indian, believed to be an emisary from Riel to the Fenians. He said the rebels had 11 tons of powder and 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

Western New York farmers are feeling the effects of the long winter severely. Hay is nearly exhausted, necessitating the purchase of grain. Potatoes buried in the pits have been frozen and colonies of bees have been killed by the cold. Added to the foregoing, the maple sugar season is unusually backward and a small make is certain.

COUNTY COMMENT.

As yet nothing has been heard of Thomas Crawford, late treasurer of Oswego.

F. E. Mungor, late editor of the Sandy Creek News, has purchased the Richfield Springs Mercury of W. T. Coggeshall.

Phœnix, this county, is to have a new Methodist church in the near future. Preparations for building have already commenced.

The Rev. Mr. Cortright, of Oswego county, has accepted a call to preach for the Free Baptists of Fabius.

Enquiry was made at police headquarters to-day for a farmer named Lockrey of Hannibal, who started for this city Saturday and has not been heard of since.—[Palladium.

Farmers in the vicinity of Parish, complain that. altho' they have large quantities of potatoes to sell, the freights between that place and Syracuse are so high they cannot find a market for them. It is reported that it costs 15 cents a hundred to ship cheese from that place to Syracuse, and the same to ship it from the latter place to New York.

Some two weeks since Fred Darrow of Hannibal with his wife, who had been out driving returned home late at night. Mr. Darrow went to put out his horses and not returning to the house search was made and he was found lying in the stable, his skull fractured by a kick from one of the horses, and since that time he has been in a very precarious condition. The reports from him to-day are not favorable.—[Oswego Times.

The enterprising publishers of Dr. Foote's Monthly have, by the liberality of their premium offers, outdone all their previous generosity. Now is the time to buy your wagons and carriages. Bristol has an [illegible]

The cold weather of last [illegible] and Congress [illegible] with its many [illegible] and temptations, [illegible] up behind the New York people. With these thoughts vanish the recollections of the past changeable winter, and the visions of cough remedies, heavy coats and mufflers. The cholera is the coming big-a-boo, and as I look at some of the dirty streets I don't wonder that people are frightened.

The State Legislature has at last settled the difference between the bridge people and the property owners on the New York end of the bridge, and Centre will soon be spanned with the extension. On the Brooklyn side the opposition comes from the Washington street taxpayers, and Fulton street merchants. As soon as this opposition is overcome the terminus of the bridge will be at the city hall, where it should have been years ago. It seems that one or two people can allow their individual rights to interfere with the convenience and comfort of nearly a million, and altho' the mass of people complain there seems to be no way out of the trouble. One of the elevated roads is nearly completed in Brooklyn, and will be in running order by the first of May. The road resembles its cousin in New York; the only difference is the size of the stations, and the material of which they are builded. Brooklynites all hail this new road with joy for it will take off a vast pressure from the over crowded street cars.

Dave related a rather amusing experience he had in a Brooklyn dry goods store early in the week. For "a flyer" one of the enterprising merchants advertised "Fine cashmeres, all colors, at twenty-five cents a yard," and Dave's wife asked him to go down to help her pick out the dress, but when he saw the crowd, he left his wife to the tender mercies of the shoppers, and took a seat near the door to wait for her. Although it was early in the morning, a rapidly growing mob of well dressed ladies struggled for a place at that counter, and the clerks jawed and measured until every yard of cloth was gone. Before the sale was over a policeman had to be called in to restore order, and keep the people quiet. Dave waited two hours, and was about to depart when he was startled by a voice that he well knew. "Here! come along, and stop trying to flirt with that crosseyed clerk there!" He looked up—could that woman be his trim looking wife he left only two hours ago? It surely was, but she looked like a wreck. Face flushed, hat on crooked, frizzes straightened, and her dress all soiled. She was as cross as two bears—but she brightened up as she thought of that wonderful bargain, and as the goods were just as advertised, "all cashmere" she was doubly pleased. He closed his tale with the remark that, "if he had to fight for his new clothes like that he would never have any."

Some of the windows in New York transports you to fairyland as you gaze, but woe to the man of slender means that ventures on the other side of these windows, as his wife's escort. He can make up his mind to bid good bye to his cigars, and figure on the amount of walking he will have to do through the rest of the week.

Rumors of war in Europe brightens our business outlook, and the brokers and business men are busy figuring on their chances to thrive on others misfortune. If the threatning cloud does break, there is no doubt that New York will receive such a boom that it won't recover from its exhileration for some time. Even now the stock market is reaping the benefits of the rumors, and it is predicted that when war is declared, the Wall and New street people will all go wild.

The popularity of roller skating does not wan, either in New York or Brooklyn. Most of the rinks are fitted up regardless of cost and with every convenience required by the public. Full bands are constantly employed and every inducement is thrown out to attract the skating public. Brooklyn is to be afflicted with two weeks of carnival. One at "The Palace rink," and the other at "The Brooklyn rink." The prizes vairy from a reed organ to a cooking stove, and both carnivals will undoubtedly be great successes.

I have passed every day, within the shadow, almost of the new Poter building that has been put up on the site of the old "World building," but never paid much attention to it, until one day last week I happened to notice that the top story was on a lever with the noted tall tour of the Tribune building and threw the Morse structure and Temple Court completely in the shade.

All the buildings here abouts are very high, but this eleven story mansard roofed monster beats the record in the lower part of the city. Placed beside the fourteen story flat near Central Park it might look small but as it is now placed, it is surely imposing, and a wonderful monument to New York enterprise. It is to be used only as an office building, and when finished will undoubtedly be perfection in that line. I intend to visit it and will tell you of its interior later. This is the last week that we will have Irving with us, and it, is also his farewell to America. And Saturday night we will see for the last time, the Union Square company as it now exists—a stock company. The theaters are having a hard time just now, hand capped by Lent, Barnum and the roller rinks, but after next month all the managers look for brighter days.

WANDERING JEW.

I have been troubled with catarrh from boyhood and [illegible]

[illegible] politicians have [illegible] He has had to [illegible] civil party leaders, and has had to decide between them. He still eats well, digests well, sleeps well, and even smiles sometimes.

Of course the spoilsmen are disappointed with the President's slow way of distributing the offices. They expected an immediate and sensational attempt to clean the Augean stables. But there is another class of Democrats who claim that Mr. Cleveland has done much in the last four weeks, that he has inspired confidence in his purpose to do much more, and that he will do most things well. The new administration has done some sweeping however, and has undertaken to find out where the sweeping most needs to be done. Some sweeping has been found in all of the Executive Departments. The Treasury has the greatest redundancy of clerks, and large reductions are contemplated when the recently appointed investigating committee finishes its work. One hundred employes were discharged during the week, and seven of the leading officers were asked to resign. The latter are to be immediately replaced by Democrats.

It is interesting to note the criticisms of the different parties and factions as they follow each step of the Administration. When a Commissioner of Internal Revenue was selected from West Virginia, the Randall men about the city shouted that Randall ran this administration. When Higgins was named for Appointment clerk of the Treasury, fancied civil service reform was to be abandoned. When the President failed to appoint Mr. Thompson, of Kentucky, to any office, notwithstanding the fact that he was supported by Speaker Carlisle, they said that the Administration was partial to protection, and opposed to tariff reform. And now when Mr. Pearson is nominated for Postmaster of New York, the Democrats are indignant, the Republicans talk about an election deal, and the civil service reformers say Mr. Cleveland is coming up to their hopes and expectations.

A politician was speaking to me yesterday about Mr. Colman's nomination to be Commissioner of Agriculture in connection with the President's disregard of pressure from Congressional delegations. He said no one thought Mr. Colman was a man who was likely to get anything. While hundreds of Missourians were here fighting among themselves as to who should be indorsed by the State delegation, Mr. Coleman staid at home ploughing and editing his rural weekly. When the other men had left Washington, he packed up his record as an agriculturist, and came here. He got the place and the others are wondering how it happened.

Few defeated candidates take their dissappointment so patriotically as Hon. Mr. Willey, of California, who hoped to be Commissioner of the Land Office. He said: "I am dissappointed of course. But I am, above all things a Democrat, and cannot permit personal ambition to severe the cords of party allegiance. I placed my case before the President; the finding was against me, and I acquiesce as in the degree of a court." He further said, "I believe in the Administration. Mr. Cleveland is a pure man, a just man and a brave man. His beginning is magnificent the full fruition of his administration will fulfill its present promise."

The Senate is no longer in session, long lists of Presidential nominations have been sent to it during the week, diplomatic and otherwise. Since the adpointment of ex-Congressmen Atkins, Durham, Muldraw and Sparks to prominent positions, the average ex-Member feels much encouraged, and numbers of them are working harder than ever to secure something in the way of office.

Republican Senators have been discussing in caucus what attitude they shall take towards President Cleveland in case his nominations displace officials whose terms of office have not expired. They are still undecided, but a number of them think it would be policy to treat Mr. Cleveland as they did Mr. Arthur.

Crowds throng the telegraph offices and the offices of the daily papers of the city to inquire the latest news or read the latest bulletin concerning the condition of Gen. Grant. The feeling of sympathy for the distinguished sufferer is particularly marked among the officials and employes of the various Government Departments many of whom received their appointments from President Grant.

After a thorough test H. C. Giesler most positvely asserts that Acker's English Remedy is the best medicine for Asthma, Croup, Coughs, Whooping Cough and all Lung Troubles that can be found. Ask him about it for he fully guarantees it. eow

PRESS COMMENT.

The most exacting southerner can scarcely complain of President Cleveland's selections of foreign ministers. He has fully and honestly recognized the south in those appointments."—[Richmond State.

Sensible Democrats do not condemn Cleveland for not removing Pearson; but they want to have Mr. Cleveland honestly admit that the New York postmaster was reappointed because it was considered "good politics" to propitiate the Mugwumps.—[Buffalo Commercial.

The discouragement of polygamy in Utah by the enforcement of the Edmunds bill is one of the most satisfactory occurrences of recent years. Delegate Caine says that to his knowledge there has been but one polygamous marriage in the territory since the enactment of the measure.—[Troy Times.

EASTER DAY.

How the Churches Observed the Queen Festival Day.

Easter services at the various churches on Sunday were particularly interesting and attractive. Zion church was elegantly trimmed with rare flowers furnished by the church ladies. The chancel was literally transformed into a bower of beauty. The musical portion of the services was rendered in a most effective manner. Rev. Mr. Goodyear the rector, preached an able sermon. The afternoon Sunday school exercises were interesting; and the day closed with evening prayer and sermon.

Rev. Mr. Barnes drew a fair sized audience in the morning, while in the evening the church was filled, being drawn thither to listen to the exquisite Easter service rendered by a quartette composed of Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. Lathrop, Messrs. Hillick and Gilbert, "Magdeline" and "Easter Anthem" by Lloyd, "Christ the Lord is risen to-day" and other music was very finely rendered. The other churches paid more or less attention to Easter, all were adorned with flowers, and some resplendant in decoration. A Sunday school and missionary concert closed the observance of the day at the M. E. church. The recitations were well received.

Pleasures of the Coming Season.

Aquatic sports is to be the leading feature among pleasure seekers the coming season, and our beautiful river and islands will be the scene, more than ever of joyous groups of young people. Numerous handsome crafts are being built to float on the placid waters a short distance below the village. The arrival of Mr. E. Heald from Fair Haven, a practical boat builder, has given an impetus to become the owner of a pleasure boat. Already has he contracted with Messrs Morrill, Wright, Watson, Foster and Johnson, to build handsome row boats of the clinker pattern, and made of cedar and oak, trimmed with walnut and mahogony and costing from $25 to $100 each. This is a move in the right direction, and there is no reason why the river and islands which have been made immortal by the pen of Cooper, should not be covered with pretty crafts and inhabited by pleasure seekers. What is just now needed is a boat house and convenient warf near Merton's which it will pay some one to erect. Why not make the waters of our lovely river a popular place of summer resort.

Zion Church.

At the annual election of Wardens and Vestry of Zion church, held on Easter Monday, April 6, 1885, the following persons were duly elected for the ensuing year:

S. B. Whitaker—Senior Warden
Wm. A. Hall—Junior Warden.
Vestrymen—W. S. Nelson, G. S. Piper, R. Bradshaw, R. Carr, Jno. Bacchus, H. McKiernan, W. C. Dixon, C. A. Miller.

H. C. Gardner, the newly appointed West Shore ticket agent will shortly have a full and complete line of West Shore tickets with connections East and West.

Hon. Geo. M. Case will soon erect a handsome monument in the family grounds at Mt. Adnah, in memory of his parents, Jonathan and Betsey Case. The monument will cost about $500 and will be built by George Fassel of this village, who is a skilled workman.

F. A. Gray, who with his wife has spent the winter with his son-in-law, A. G. Gilbert, returned yesterday to their former home near Genesco. Their farm of 400 acres is said to be underlaid with salt, the wells showing the strongest kind of brine.—[Standard's Fulton Cor.

At the regular meeting of Johnson hose and Steamer No. 2 companies, held last evening a vote of thanks was tendered to those who kindly presented Bank for their kindness in presenting them with a snug little sum at the Oneida street fire.

Unless some unforseen seven days' snow storm occurs it now looks as though we might have a glimpse at dry roads and green hills on or about the fourth of July. At least let us hope that the snow may not interfere with the explosion of the firecrackers or the harvesting of fall apples.

At a meeting of several of the male students of Union school last Wednesday the Fulton Agassiz association was organized. The object of the association is to advance themselves in science. Officers were elected with Prof. Boothby as President. They adjourned to to meet April 15th at the same place.

The Oswego Falls factories changed the working hours on Monday as follows: From 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.; 40 minutes nooning and quit work at 12:55 p. m. on Saturdays. By this change the hands are compelled to work longer during the day but are given Saturday afternoons which will no doubt be more satisfactory to them. This is a renewal of the old custom.

An exchange says: Editors are seldom dandled in the lap of luxury. They seem to be a rollicking set of fellows, but they know what it is to have "the nose on the grindstone," and are very familiar with colds, cold shoulders, etc. It was an editor, who, when asked why he spoke of a ten dollar bill as a "ten dollar William," said he did not feel well enough acquainted to call it "Bill."

The editors of the Baldwinsville Gazette and the Jordan Times, are holding a lengthy and continued controversy over the proposed scheme of the latter paper, to build a bridge across Seneca river at Jones' Point. The Gazette editor claims that this will greatly decrease trade in Baldwinsville. The debate waxes warm. We discover that the editors are of a poetical turn of mind.

Society circles are very busy at present discussing the several matrimonial events which are soon to take place among the young people in this village. Prominently mentioned and the leader among the number of weddings to occur is that of Assistant District Attorney, N. N. Stranahan and Miss Elsie, the accomplished daughter of H. H. Merriam, president of the Oswego Falls agricultural society. Mr. Stranahan has leased a residence on Third street which they will occupy after marriage.

The people of Oswego were "astonished and dumfounded" to learn that the bill to tax the city $90,000 had passed both houses of the Legislature. It is said that in the estimates of the city's debt on which this bill was based was included the treasurer's defalcation, $26,000 for which the bondsmen are responsible. It is also stated that there is $30,000 represented in the tax levies of the two collectors of which no account is taken, making a total reduction of $56,000. An effort will be made to have the governor [illegible] the bill.

Fulton's Defeated.

The Fulton Polo club visited Oswego last Wednesday evening in response to a late invitation to fill an engagement broken by the Baldwinsville club. The game was called at 9:15. The Casino team had been greatly strengthened since the last game with the Fultons. The contest lasted over an hour and resulted in a victory of three straight goals for the Casinos. The Times says of the game: "It was a hard fought battle and any team which wins a victory from Fulton has something to be proud of." Owing to the fact that the Fultons have had little practice of late, and the Casinos composed of stronger men, the result is not to be wondered at patent goals were used. Charles Willard acted as referee.

New Enterprise.

Messrs H. & A. Rosenbloom, the clothiers, have leased the store, vacated by B. J. Dyer, and adjoining their own on First street and will put in an immense new stock of dry goods. These gentlemen have fortunately secured the services of Edward Wolcott who recently returned from the West. He will take charge of this new department. The store will be connected by a double archway and will be refitted and improved. The opening will occur about May 1. The people of Fulton and vicinity can depend upon it, that this enterprising firm will open a first class store.

The New Board.

The new board of trustees held their first meeting Monday evening, and made the following appointments: Clerk and Attorney, Alvin Rice; Street Commissioner, James Clark; Health Officer, Dr. D. E. Lake; Board of Health, Samuel Crombie, Elwin E. Hart, Geo. J. Foster; Policemen, Herman Hulett, A. Laws, E. Morgan, W. Curtis; Jailor, J. Ford Morris. The Patriot and Gazette was made the official paper.

The Cheek of a Rhinoceros.

Some people are born cheeky, some achieve cheek, and some have cheek thrust upon them; but when you come to a whole face, it is found in the fellow who will let his girl go to the roller rink alone, pay her own admission and rental for skates, and a half hour later he comes up, skates all the evening with her, and then takes her home and wants her to kiss him at the gate.—[Elmira Gazette.

Re-appointments.

The following gentlemen have been re-appointed notaries public, in this village, whose term of office expires March 30, 1887:

Gordon D. Ball, Charles H. David, Arvin Rice, George Kellogg, William J. Lovejoy, Frederick D. Van Wagenen, Giles S. Piper, William C. Stephens, Henry C. Gardner, Amos Youmans.

In Granby, John Vedder was re-appointed.

"Dick" Miller Discharged.

Richard Miller was discharged from the county jail to-day after serving a four months sentence for obtaining money on false pretenses. Miller has employed his time principally in adorning his prison as he is a fine painter. He has been a model prisoner in every respect.—[Oswego Times.

Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hawthorne celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their residence on Third street yesterday. The rooms were filled with friends who covered the tables with rich and costly presents.

OBITUARY.

Laura, wife of Myron Smith, died at her home on Third street, in this village, on Sunday, April 5, aged 88 years. The funeral services took place from her late residence yesterday at 1:30 p. m. Rev. Mr. Breaker of the Baptist church officiated. The husband of the deceased is 91 years of age and enjoys good health.

Vinnie, twelve year old daughter of D. P. Walton, of this village, died at the home of her father on Sunday last. The funeral services occurred yesterday from the house at 3:30 p. m., Rev. Mr. Breaker officiating.

Masters Willie and Herbert Bennett gave a pleasant party to a number of their young friends at the home of their grandfather, W. G. Gage, on First street, last Friday evening. A decided enjoyable time was experienced by all.

Miss Loma Stay has resigned her position as teacher at No. 2 school. Miss Stay will marry a southern gentleman in a short time and will remove with him to the South. Miss Florence Markham will fill the vacancy the remainder of the term.

The storm Friday night broke down six telephone poles nearly a foot in diameter and many wires were also broken. The damage is estimated at $1,500. Some telegraph wires were prostrated and fruit and shade trees suffered severely.

Trains on the New York, Ontario & Western road have been run over the West Shore, then over the Wallkill Valley road as far as Kingston for the past few days owing to blockades occasioned by land slides. Trains are now running on time.

The following incorrect item appeared in about fifty numbers of this paper last week. "The knitting mill at Oswego Falls was partly burned Monday evening. The loss is estimated at $27,000 and is covered by insurance." It should have read Little Falls instead of Oswego Falls as above.

There will be an oyster supper served at Howe's hall, Oswego Falls, on Saturday evening, April 11th, under the management of the I. O. G. T. of that village. Good speakers will be in attendance and a good time is expected. All are cordially invited.

At Phœnix a few days ago a daughter of Peter Horr of that village attempted to lift a pan of hot water when the pan tipped and the water was thrown into her face and ran down her arm. Her face was badly burned and the skin on her arm came off when her dress was removed.

Thieves were at their work of plunder, again last Thursday night. This time the losers are John Robinson and K. F. Salmons whose stores are in the opera house block. An entrance was perfected through the front doors. A number of cigars and a quantity of tobacco was taken from the grocery store and several pairs of shoes from Salmon's. A clue that will lead to the discovery of the thieves is believed to have been found.

[illegible] bruised beyond recognition, to fully recover. It is a remarkable fact that thus far there has been no unnatural or unpleasant occurrence of any sort to mar the reputation of this place of amusement, and this may be attributed to the previous good management. The new manager comes highly recommended, and has every appearance of a gentleman. Fulton has a polo team that we may well feel proud of and it is to be hoped that our citizens may have an opportunity of witnessing some interesting contests at the rink in the near future. The rink will be opened this evening with a program that will outdo any previous attraction ever produced in this section, namely, the appearance of Mason's Mastadonic Aggregation of Skatonial and Bicycle Experts, with ten different acts. There will be single and double bicycle riding, acrobatic skating, triple musical art, on nine instruments and many other attractive features. We advise all to attend. Admission 20 cents. Children 10 cents. The program will be repeated again to-morrow evening. There is no doubt but that the rink will be crowded.

Sunday Night's Fire.

This village was the scene of another conflagration last Sunday night. Between twelve and one o'clock a fire was discovered in the barn belonging to John Bisnett, between Cayuga and Rochester on Second street. The alarm was not sounded until nearly one o'clock whereupon the fire department responded promptly. From the barn the fire soon spread to his house. The lower part was occupied by himself and family and the upper rooms by Jacob Crysler. The fire made such rapid headway that it was with great difficulty that they escaped from the building. Neither family saved any of their furniture. The fire next spread to the handsome residence of Mrs. Chas. Wilson which was shortly consumed, together with the furniture. The household goods were removed from the house of Smith Davis, and by the untiring labors of the firemen the building was saved. The house and barn belonging to Bisnett was valued at about $2,000. They were insured for $1,400 in the Phœnix of Hartford. There was an insurance of $1,200 on the house and $1,000 on the furniture belonging to Mrs. Wilson, in the Royal company. A strong west wind was blowing and and the firemen were obliged to exert every effort to control the flames. No. 2 did but little work, being unable to procure water.

[illegible] posts and at [illegible] time secure a permanent [illegible].

Around fields that are to be plowed and cultivated, there would be an objection on account of the roots; but around pastures there not only seems to be no objection, but a positive advantage secured by the shade which the trees would afford.

In setting trees for this purpose care should be taken to secure durable trees, and also trees adapted to the soil and the climate. Some localities require one kind and other localities quite a different kind. Within 15 or 20 miles of the ocean the red cedar would be one of the best for the purpose, it would grow on any soil from a stiff clay to a dry sand or gravel. It is true it will not make quite as rapid growth as some other trees, but it bears transplanting as most deciduous trees, and will soon begin to grow; by the third, and often the second year after set, it will grow as fast as if left to grow where the seeding first started.

The locust would be a still better tree if it were not for the borer that gets into the trunk, often in such numbers as to kill the tree. This is a very rapid growing tree and yet would not grow large enough to encumber the land. Where the borer does not work this would be an excellent tree for live fence posts.

The chestnut would make an excellent tree for posts if it did not grow so large; it grows very rapidly and runs up straight, but when standing single it grows very large.

The black walnut is a quick growing tree and it grows in good form for a post.

The white ash in some localities would be a good tree, but occasionally would in time get too large.

The red maple is easy to transplant, grows well, and would make a very good tree for posts in wet land.

The walnut would also make a good tree on dry land, but it is very difficult to transplant it, and the time required to get it large enough for a post would be an objection.

He who attempts to surround his land with live fence posts should first make himself so familiar with the habits of different trees, that he may not make a make a mistake by setting the wrong trees on the different soils which surround the farm.—[Massachusetts Plowman.

How to Make Good Milkers.

No matter what breed you have, something further is necessary in order to reach the best success in raising good milkers. Good blood, whether Shorthorn Jersey, Devon, Ayrshire grade or native, is not everything, but lies at the foundation; something cannot come from nothing. Treatment in raising a milker should be somewhat different from that in raising a beef animal, or an animal for labor. Begin as soon as the calf is a day old; see that it has sufficient to eat, and is kindly treated and regularly attended to. Never pamper or over feed, but give it good, generous food, to cause a regular, early and steady growth. Accustom it to be handled, but not to such an extent as to acquire objectionable habits as a cow, but rather to be fond of the presence of the keeper. Kindness helps to create a quiet disposition, so important in a dairy cow, and this education must begin when the calf is young,—any habits acquired when young are apt to cling to the cow when grown.

For a milker I would have the heifer come in at two years old. She is then old enough to become a cow. I would not, as a rule, allow her to go to farrow, but milk her up to a few weeks of calving, even if I did not obtain but a little at a milking. A cow thus trained will give more milk and be likely to hold out longer in milk, if her after care is judicious and liberal, as it should be. Such treatment tends to form the habit of giving milk, and, as we know, habit is a sort of second nature. Couple the heifer with an old bull, one or two or three years older than she is, preferable to a yearling, and good stock is likely to come from such. After the heifer has come in her feed should be regular and liberal. Good clover hay is best of all, but we may not all have this for stall feed; then we must make up for what is lacking in some concentrated feed, such as oat meal, shorts, oil meal or the like, but great care and judgment must be used not to overfeed or crowd as the future cow may be ruined. Undue forcing shortens the useful life of the cow very rapidly.—[W. H. White in Country Gent.

The Average Cost of Living.

How many persons have even a rough idea of the average sum upon which by far the larger part of the citizens of the United States are fed, clothed and housed? A recent statistician estimates that eighty per cent. of the population of this country is supported by from forty-five to fifty cents per capita a day. At the latter figure this makes $182.50 as the average annual cost of living; but, as by average we mean the balance between extremes, there must be many persons who have not even this sum to live upon. That fifty cents a day is a generous estimate will be admitted when it is remembered that many [illegible] earn only from $5 to $7 [illegible] the wages of farm hands [illegible] to $20 a month, and that on [illegible] several persons are often [illegible]. When it is remembered [illegible] human beings have [illegible]

[illegible] queens arrive at a perfect state in from twelve to seventeen days from the egg. Should the state of the weather prevent swarming at the night time, the embryo queens are destroyed and torn out of their cells lest they should be hatching out before the queen could leave the hive—more than one queen never being permitted to remain in a hive. The chief indications of swarming being about to take place are the appearance of drones, the crowding of the bees at the entrance of the hive, and general restlessness; the hive being full to overflowing. A swarm will leave at any time on a fine bright day, between the hours of nine and three. Great is the commotion when a swarm is leaving; the bees pour out of the hive in a constant stream, and all is apparently wild confusion, as they wheel about in circles. They soon, however, begin to collect in one spot, on some bush or tree near the hive, when the cluster quickly enlarges as it is joined by the rest of the bees. They sometimes settle in very awkard places for hiving. If on the thick branch of a tree, the best plan is too sweep them as carefully as possible into the hiving skep with a goose-wing-a buch mush irritates them. If the queen be swept into the skep the others soon follow. Should they cluster high up in a tree, the branch on which they are suspended can sometimes be sawn gently off and brought down, when the swarms can be shaken into the hive, or in a heap in front of the hive—it being propped up an inch or two on one side, to allow free entrance. Should it happen that the queen is not shaken into the skep with the swarm, the bees become restless, soon leave the hive, and return to where they clustered, when the operation of hiving will have to be repeated. If the swarm is to remain in the straw skep, it should be gently placed upon the ground after the bees are shaken into it, and left for a few minutes, to enable the bees to cluster and suspend themselves from the roof, when it must be placed upon the stand it is to occupy. It is important to get the swarm to its stand as soon as possible, otherwise many bees are lost, as numbers leave the hive, shortly after having clustered, to gather in stores—and make several journeys before sunset, and so become familiarized with the position of their new home, which if then removed, they fail to find on their return from foraging in the fields next day, and thus the strength of the swarm is much reduced.

If the swarm is to occupy a bar-frame hive, the frames should be filled, if possible, with clean, empty comb, as the queen is thereby enabled to commence egg-laying at once—which is a great advantage; or comb foundation must be used either in strips or whole sheets, fixed in the bars. Hives and all necessary appliances should be kept in readiness, that no time may be lost after the swarm has settled, or they may again take wing and be lost. It is, as a rule, inconvenient to shake a swarm into a bar-framed hive; it should therefore be first hived in a straw skep, but before doing so the frame hive should be placed upon the ground, as near as possible to the cluster, and a cloth or newspaper spread in front of it, bringing one end over the edge of the floor board of the frame, which should have the fruit wedged up about an inch, to allow the bees free entry. Then proceed to hive the bees by holding the skep under the swarm, while the branch on which it is hung is smartly shaken, when the bees lose foothold and fall in a mass into the skep, and should then be thrown onto the sheet or newspaper in front of the barr-frame hive—which they will all enter in a few minutes, when the hive should be carried to the place it is to occupy. The bees can also be poured into the top of the hive, first removing three or four frames, and replacing them when the bees are in. The day after hiving, the number of frames should be reduced to the size of the cluster of bees, and the space contracted by a division board. It always pays to feed swarms—giving about half a pint of syrup a day for a week or so after hiving, and if the weather is cold and rainy it is absolutely necessary. It sometimes happens that a swarm will leave its new home; this, however, will never occur where a frame of brood from another hive is introduced, as bees never forsake brood.

The Fool Friend.

But what shall we do with the warm, personal friend who sits up nights to love us, but hurts us in every corner by his indiscretion? We cannot whip him and throw him away. We cannot get him shut up in an insane asylum, because the asylum was not designed for idiots. It was made for people who once had brains. It is a conundrum which more than one of us has given up. If the fool friend could have his jaws locked with a time-lock, and then fed by an attendant through the vest pocket, we could then set the time-lock to open after election or just before breakfast on the day of judgment, or such other date as we desired, and all would be well, but you cannot do that. The jaw of the fool friend wags on and on till the goose of of the one he loves best on earth is cooked to a rich, deep brown. An enemy may say mean things of you, but they lose force because people know at once by his bitterness that he is your enemy, but he who knows your inmost heart, who knows what salary you receive and how much it lacks of maintaining you, how mean you are to your family and how pleasant you are in other people's families, how you smile through the day and snore through the night, how earnest you are in your labors toward reform in everything except your own habits, and a thousand other little glimpses into your home life which none but a friend may know, when he has no brains to balance his warm [illegible] for you, think what ruin he can [illegible] you at car-load rates.—[Bill Nye.

ONE BOTTLE INSTEAD OF A DOZEN.

"And it took only one bottle to do it," said a gentleman, speaking of Parker's Hair Balsam. "I had a run of fever, and when I got well of that, my hair began to fall out so fast as to alarm me. I really didn't know what to do, until one day a friend said, "Try Parker's Hair Balsam." That was some months ago. What surprised me was the fact that one bottle was enough. I expected to use up a dozen." Clean, highly perfumed, not oily, not a dye. Restores original color.

So long as the young men can live without working, and so long as society looks upon working men as not respectable or fit to become husbands of society daughters, so long will the world be filled with able, amiable loafers and worthless tramps.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching increased by scratching; very distressing, particularly at night; seems as pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly and crusty Skin Diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 5 for $1.25. Address DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. It is said to have become the truly "swell" thing for the fashionable ladies in New York to attend to their own children, and now half the fashionable ladies in that city are rushing around trying to find children to adopt.

CURE FOR PILES.

Piles are frequently proceeded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture like prespiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a mommon attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and affecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address The Dr. Bosonko Medicine Co., Piqua, O. Told by M. M. Williams. 29tf

A solid silver balustrade, which has stood in one of the Mexican churches since the time of Cortez, was torn down not long ago and taken to the mint and coined, producing 60,000 silver dollars.

TWO DANGEROUS SEASONS.

Spring and fall are times when so many people get sick. The changes in the weather are severe on feeble persons, and even those naturally strong are apt as they say, "to be feeling miserable." Then they are just in condition to be struck down with some kind of fever. A bottle or two of Parker's Tonic will invigorate the digestion, put the liver, kidneys and blood in perfect order, and prevent more serious attacks. Why suffer, and perhaps die, when so simple a medicine will save you? Good for both sexes and all ages. 44w4

A young woman of Ohio one evening recently yawned her jaw out of joint. The name of the dude who was making a call is not given.

WASHED-OUT HAIR.

There is a sort of pallid, chalky complexion which the novelists call a "washed-out complexion." It is ghastly enough and no mistake. Washed-out, faded discolored, or parti-colored hair is almost as repulsive and melancholly. Parker's Hair Balsam will restore your hair to its original color, whatever it was brown, auburn or black. Why wear moss on your head, when you may easily have lively, shining hair 44w4

Dr. M. M. Fenner, Fredonia, N. Y.—Dear Sir—I had been suffering with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Impurities of the Blood, Nervousness and General Debility. A dozen different remedies and doctors did no good. My whole body was as spotted as an adder. Mr. David S. Crane, of Rochester, N. Y., who is carried away with your remedies, advised me to try your Blood and Liver Remedy and Nerve Tonic. I have taken two bottles, and wish you could see the effect. I am now well and have gained four pounds. I owe you and Mr. Crane both a debt of gratitude.

SCROFULA

Usually develops in early life, and is a peculiar morbid condition of the system, usually affecting the glands, often resulting in swellings, enlarged joints, abscesses, thickening of the lips, enlarged neck, sore eyes. A scrofulous condition is often hereditary, but bad diet, too free use of fat meats, bad air, want of sunshine and nourishing food will induce it. Some people are troubled with scrofulous swelling of the glands, and with ulcers and kernels, which may cause very little pain; others may have inward scrofula, scrofula of the lungs, scrofula of the spleen, scrofula of the kidneys, and scrofula of the bones. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS will drive away any case of scrofula and not to appear in another place, for their action on the blood and bowels will carry the disease entirely from the body.

Charles Dickens at Work.

During the years spent at Tavistock House, one of his daughters was, for a time, a great invalid, and after a worse attack of illness than usual, her father suggested that she be carried as far as the study and lie on the sofa there, while he was at work. This was, of course, a great privilege, and even if she had not felt as weak and ill as she did, she would have been bound to remain as quiet as possible. For some time there was no sound to be heard in the room except the rapid working of the pen, when suddenly he jumped up, went to the looking-glass, rushed back to the writing table and jotted down a few words; back to the glass again, this time talking to his own reflection, or rather to the simulated expression he saw there, and was trying to catch before drawing it in words, then back again to his writing. After a little he got up again and stood with his back to the glass, talking softly and rapidly for a long time, then looking at his daughter, but certainly never seeing her, then back to his table and to steady writing until luncheon time. It was a curious experience, and a wonderful thing to see him throwing himself so entirely out of himself and into the character he was writing about. His daughter has very seldom mentioned this incident, feeling that it would be almost a breach of confidence to do so. But in these reminiscences of her father she considers it only right that this experience should be mentioned, showing as it does his characteristic earnestness and method of work. Often after a hard morning's writing, when he had been alone with his family and no visitors in the house, he has come into luncheon and gone through the entire meal without uttering a word and then has gone back again to the work in which he was so completely absorbed. — [The Cornhill Magazine.

How Monkeys Tricked the Bees.

Two monkeys sat under a tree in an Indian forest. One monkey was seen to busy himself in smearing the other with red clay earth. When he had succeeded in entirely covering his companion he disappeared in a neighboring wood leaving the other a mess of clay, but for two small holes through which peeped a pair of cunning eyes. Then the bedaubed monkey was seen to climb to the hollow of a tree where was a bee hive. The bees buzzed about the intruder, but all they could do was to leave their stings in a clay coat. At length they swarmed away in despair, and the clever monkey helped himself to the honey. Then the other monkey came out of the hiding place and proceeded to pick off the clay covering from his brother. This done they set to work on the honey-comb and finished it.

EXZEMA OR SALT RHEUM.

ANOTHER CLEAR AND POSITIVE RECOVERY—AN ELDERLY LADY'S LETTER.

Among the numerous letters received by Dr. Kennedy testifying to notable salt rheum cures, the following will be found of inetrest to our readers who May accept our assurance of its authenticity and truthfulness.

WORCESTER Mass., March 23, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Roundout, N. Y.

Dear Sir: Until three years I have been a sufferer from Salt Rheum. It followed upon an attack of erysipelas, for which I was a long time under medical treatment. I placed myself again in the hands of the physicians, who did, I have no doubt all that could be done. One thing, however, is sure, I was none the better for all the medicine they gave me. The painful and unsightly disease made continual progress, until I began to fear I should never get rid of.

By means of one of those accidents that often result in so much blessings I had my attention called to your favorite remedy, which I was told would surely do me good. I used it and within a much shorter time than I would have believed possible, I received a permanent cure. I am now perfectly free from Salt Rheum. What a comfort this is and how it places your wonderful medicine in my opinion you may guess at but never know. I keep it now constantly in the house as a family medicine. Yours Truly

MRS. DINAH PHAIR.

Mrs Phair sometime since, went on a visit to Kansas, found a case of Salt Rheum, could not get Favorite Remedy, sent to New York City for it, and cured the case.

MORTGAGE SALE. Mortgagor Elizabeth Bellue, of Parish, Oswego county, N. Y. Mortgagee Luke D. Smith, of Mexico, Oswego county, N. Y. Assignee Delilah D. Wright of Granby, Oswego county, N. Y. Mortgage dated April 3, 1872, and recorded in Oswego county clerk's office April 15, 1872, in Book 94, of mortgages at page 275. The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the first publication of this mortgage is $1047.17. The mortgaged property is substantially described in said mortgage as all that tract or parcel of land situate in the town of Parish, Oswego county, N. Y. being the north half of Small Lot number two (2) of Great Lot number twenty-six (26) in the 23d township of Scriba's Patent as surveyed by H. Parke, and conveying sixty-five acres of land more or less. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage whereby the power to sell has become operative notice is hereby given that the premises described in said mortgage will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder at the office of the Lewis House, in the village of Fulton, Oswego county, N. Y., on the 27th day of June, 1885, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and said mortgage will be thereby foreclosed.

DELILAH D. WRIGHT, Assignee.

MORTGAGE SALE. Whereas default has been made in the payment of the money secured to be paid by a mortgage executed by Betsey Dixon to James H. Langdon, dated the fifteenth day of November, 1873, recorded with the power of sale therein contained in the clerk's office of the county of Oswego, New York, on the 16th day of February, 1874, in Liber 101 of mortgages at page 58, given to secure the payment of $258, and interest; duly assigned by said James H. Langdon to Mary Fitzgibbons who is now the lawful holder and owner of said mortgage and whereas the sum of $390.50 is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice, being the whole amount unpaid thereon and an action has not been brought to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof and said power to sell has become operative. Therefore notice is hereby given that by reason of the facts aforesaid and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided the mortgaged premises described in said mortgage as follows, to wit.: All that tract or parcel of land situate in the village of Fulton, county and state aforesaid and known and distinguished as the north half of lots numbered one and two, on block number forty-nine (49) according to a map made by P. Schenck for the commissioners in partition for the heirs of the estate of Norman Hubbard deceased, dated Nov. 1844, will be sold at public auction at the law office of Giles S. Piper, in the village of Fulton, Oswego county, New York, on the 25th day of April, 1885, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day and said mortgage will be thereby foreclosed.

Dated Jan'y 28. 1885.

MORTGAGE SALE.—Mortgagor Ephraim D. Mowry, mortgagee Frank Dilts, assignee Joseph W. Butler, mortgage dated August ninth, 1877, and recorded in Oswego county clerk's office August 3d, 1877, in Book 114, of mortgages at page 127. The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice, is $206.52. The mortgaged property is substantially described in said mortgage as all that tract or parcel of land, situate in the town of Richland, county of Oswego and State of New York, and being part of Lot No. No. 86, of township No. 21, of Scriba's patent as follows: beginning on the west line of said Lot 26 chains and 2 links from the north-west corner thereof, at a stake 29¼ links S.15° west of center of large leaning maple, and runs thence easterly along the south line of lands sold by John Tyler to Charles Springer, to a stake 48 links north 81° west of the north-west corner of the grist mill; thence northerly along land sold to said Springer to the center of the highway running easterly and westerly past school house in district No. 18, in said town of Richland; thence easterly along the center of said highway, as run in 1840 to lands formerly owned by the late William Gillispie; thence southerly and easterly along the said Gillispie's lands to the east line of said Lot No. 86; thence southerly along said line to the south-east corner of said lot; thence westerly along the south line of said lot 86 to the west side of the mill pond, and Grind Stone Creek, at high water mark, and thence northerly along said pond and creek at high water mark, to the east corner of land owned by Oliver Mowry; thence along the north line of said Oliver Mowry's land to land formerly occupied by P. M. Cox; thence northerly along said Cox's land to the east corner of the same; thence westerly to the center of the highway; thence northerly along said highway to Grind Stone Creek at low water mark; thence westerly along said creek at low water mark to Oliver Mowry's land; thence along said Oliver Mowry's land to the west line of said lot No. 86; thence northerly along said line of lot to the place of beginning, subject to the exceptions and reservations contained in a deed from John Tyler and wife and Henry Gillispie to Ephraim D. Mowry. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that the premises, described in said mortgage, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder at the office of the Lewis House, in the village of Fulton, Oswego county, N. Y. on the 2nd day of May, 1885, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon and said mortgage will be thereby foreclosed.

Dated February 4th, 1885.

I Cannot Love You.

BY LILLA F. CUSHMAN.

I cannot love you, so I say farewell.
And you will sometime see it was the best;
You know the pain of parting half as well
As I who seem so blest!

I cannot love you, and I would not dare
To offer semblance of love to you—
Nor feeling friendship as I do, would care
To say what was not true.

I cannot love you; wherefore should I feign,
Even for wealth and all that it might bring,
A passion which could only give you pain—
A phantom, not the thing?

I cannot love you—and you may not know
How faint and weary is the heart you crave;
But sometime you will say—"'Twas better so"—
When I am in my grave.

THE OLD BACHELOR.

About little Magdalen. I was coming down Broadway in a great hurry to catch an up-town stage before all those ferry people blocked into it, when there she sat on a curb-stone, the wind blowing her yellow hair about and her poor little hands blue with cold, crying as if her heart would break. I didn't think the veriest savage could have helped stopping to ask her what the matter was, and I don't call myself a savage, if I do happen to have my little crusty fits now and then. So says I:

"Child, what's the matter?"

"I'm lost?" says she.

The poor little elf was fatherless, motherless, friendless, in all the wide world! Of course I took her home, and you ought to have seen old Hannah, my housekeeper, stare when I walked in with the yellow-haired baby clinging to the little finger of my left hand. For she wasn't more than eight years old, and small at that!"

"I give you a month's warning, sir!" says Hannah. But, bless your soul, she didn't go. Maggie took her heart by storm, as she always has done that of the rest of the world, and at the month's end you couldn't have hired Hannah to leave the child.

Well, sir, she grew up as tall as a reed, and as pretty as a posy. I sent her to Madame Almard's fashionable French boarding school, for I wasn't going to have my Maggie a whit behind any one else's girl, I can tell you.

When she came home from the boarding school, she was prettier than ever—tall, as I said before, with yellow silky hair, great, shady-looking blue eyes, with lashes that curled up at the ends, and cheeks as fresh and pink as I remember the inside of two big shells that used to stand on my grand-father's best room mantel fifty good years ago.

So I cast about in my mind to find some new plan for making the old house lively for my little girl. I knew she couldn't thrive without her innocent gayeties, any more than a bird could without free air and sunshine; so I invited company and made up little impromptu parties and frolics, and beat my brains for something to keep her amused. And I believe I succeeded, too, for her step was as light as a feather, and you could hear her sing all over the house, when she thought she was alone.

And one day old Hannah came in, dusting chairs and prying about for finger marks on the paint in her odd, near-sighted way.

"Mr. Pelham," says she, rubbing away at a door-knob that was as bright before as hands could make it, "what would you say if we were to have a wedding in the old house?"

"A wedding!" I dropped my pen so that it made a big round blot on the paper, and stared. "Why, you're not going to be married, Hannah, after all these years?"

"Do I look like it?" sniffed Hannah, contemptuously—and, to tell the truth, she didn't very much. "No, indeed, sir; I hope I know my place better than that. It's Miss Maggie I'm thinking of, sir."

"What makes you think so, Hannah?" I asked rather dolerovsly, and the old woman lowered her voice mysteriously as she answered:

"It's that Mr. Carlyle—he keeps coming all the time, ond it's my honest belief he just worships the ground my young lady walks on. He is very handsome, too, and folks tell me he's worth money."

Mr. Carlisle! Well, old Hannah was right. He was a fine-looking fellow, and well-to-do in this world's goods; but—who was there, after all, worthy of my tall, goldhaired princess with the dewey blue eyes and the lips like scarlet coral newly plucked out of the sea? I began to hate Carlisle.

"Pooh!" said I. "I don't think she cares for Carlisle."

"Just you watch her, then, and see for yourself," said old Hannah, wisely wagging her cap border. "I never did set up for a prophet, Mr. Pelham, but them as isn't blind can't help seeing, and our eyes is given to us to use."

So old Hannah went her way, leaving me about as uncomfortable as a man has any business to be.

I think I hardly slept at all that night. I tossed to and fro on my pillow, counting the chimes of the old clock, as one by one it told the hours, thinking about Maggie and Carlisle, and wondering if the tardy daybreak would never redden over the hilltops.

But by that time my mind was made up. I would repress all those selfish ideas and only think of my girl's ultimate happiness. If she liked Carlisle, why Carlisle should have her.

I rose, dressed and went down to my study. The first thing I saw was a note lying on my library table. Probably it had arrived late last night. I broke the seal; it was from George Carlisle, asking permission to address Miss Magdalen Pelham. [illegible] at so short a notice, "I see through you. You have dared to suppose bright-eyed Magdalen could prefer you to these gay young fellows nearer her own age—you have even presumed to fall a little spice in love with her yourself. It will do you good to have some of the nonsense taken out of you. At your time of life too! Did you ever see a chestnut tree blossoming in November or a grape-vine loaded with blue fruit at midwinter?

So off I trudged into the garden where Magdalen always walked in the early morning, to tell her of young Carlisle's proposal.

She listened, looking very pretty and preoccupied, until I had finished.

"Well?" said she.

"Well," I rejoined, "what do you say?"

"What do I say?" "No, of course."

"You mean 'yes,' my dear, said I, "if you'll only take time to think."

"I mean no!" she flashed out. "Oh, Mr. Pelham, how can you think so basely of me?"

"Basely, my dear, I don't comprehend you."

She was beginning to cry now—big, sparkling drops like the first glittering diamonds of a July shower.

"I don't love him. I never can love him."

"But why not, my dear?"

"Because I love somebody else," she sobbed, growing pinker and prettier than ever.

"Who is it, Maggie? You'll tell me, won't you? Why, child," as she shrank blushingly back, "I am old enough to be your father!"

"You are not!" she exclaimed indignantly, "and you are the last person in the world I would tell."

"My darling, why not?"

The enigmas these woman are! Instead of answering me, she began to cry again, as if her dear little heart was going to break.

And suddenly a great light flashed in upon my mind!

"Magdalen! Darling! Is it me that you love?"

And in another moment she was crying and laughing on my breast.

And that is the way I won this peerless rose among women to be my wife—and I don't think she has ever regretted marrying the old man.

DAIRYMEN GETTING RICH.

Progressive dairymen who are only satisfied with the best results, are adding to their wealth and conferring a benefit on society, by the rapid improvements they are making in the art of butter making. This class use Wells, Richardson & Co's. Improved Butter Color, and known by actual test that it fills every made for it.

THE PROPER THING.

Straw bonnets and hats match the color of the costume.

Velveteens come for spring in all the new shades of color.

The smallest designes in brocades are considered most stylish.

In all rich fabrics the draperies are long, full and almost straight.

Full sleeves will certainly obtain much success for next summer's dresses.

Dresses of printed muslin are coming into fashion again, made quite simple.

Wool goods of a pale beige or ecru shade will be popular for spring dresses.

Bonnets are fast loosing their strings, which have been so popular for several seasons past.

The newest cream white dresses are made of canvass or etamine enriched by South Kensington embroidery,

Sweet-pea color, showing first red and then blue, is in favor for young ladies dresses either of wool or silk.

Box-pleated and deepkilted skirts are to-day as popularly worn as they were in the first year of their introduction.

Princess dresses will be again worn and are given a new effect by the loose Spanish jacket added to the front.

The most elegant materials for black dresses are the French or marquise laces combined with satin or soft repped silk.

Dark blue, pale blue and Turkey red cottons embroidered nearly all over with white are used for little girls peasant dresses.

It is again the fashion to seal one's letters, and bangles with seals attached are among the newest devices in fancy jewelry.

Jersey waists of solid color are worn with a gay stripped skirt and sash by both girls and boys from four to eight years of age.

Spring mantles are becoming more and more part and parcel of the toilet, being matched to the dress both in material and color.

The small bonnets worn by widows are covered plainly with double crepe, grosgrain strings, and the "widow's ruche" in front.

All skirts for the smallest girls are made quite long, reaching to the ankles; those for girls of four to six years are shorter, yet they must fall far below the knees.

The prettiest polonaises all cut with long aporn fronts that extend far back on the sides, while the middle portions of the back are shortened in basque shape, and finished with long loops of ribbon.

LOST IN SYMMES' HOLE.

An Extraordinary Arctic Adventure.

CONCLUDED.

Our progress in the various sciences he looked upon with the pitying feeling we have for the jubilant child who has just mustered the alphebet.

It was a relief to conclude this interview, the emperor so evidently regarded us as but one degree removed from savages.

I am fast losing all idea of day and night, in this land where it is never dark. But we slept here before resuming our journey.

Upon embarking again in the boat Kuni apoligized for the slow rate of speed; it will take more than two days to make the thirty-five hundred miles. The time passed pleasantly, there is so much for us to learn of these people.

As we went deeper into Symnia we left the sunlight farther and farther behind us, until we were in total darkness; of course we know that we were approaching their equator, where the sun nor moon never shines, so that this was to be expected.

When near Ultiula an electric storm arose, and Kuni insisted that we should go below, having learned how dangerous electricity is to us. Soon he came down and said he must caution us, that when once landed, we were not to speak, nor make the slightest sound. If we did the consequences might be disastrous to us all.

Now it was time for us to go. We went on deck and found the darkness deeper, if possible, than when we were last there. Only Kuni accompanied us on shore, and as soon as we left the boat it went its silent way around the coast to meet us on the other side; our seamen went in it. The air was intensely hot, and very damp; it seemed as if we could not breathe. Over head it was pitch black. As I looked about a suffoctaing horror that I have no name for, laid its hand upon my heart. I seemed to be in a world of ghosts. The ground, the trees and flowers emitted a pale ghastly light. Each wore something the color we were accustomed to see, but through it shown its light, as if the sap that nourished them was fire. The ground was covered with a sort of moss made up of tiny cells, each one of which was clearly visible. Kuni stepped boldly forward; we followed feeling our way cautiously and taking great care not to fall upon this shining ground. A moment more and were seated in a car which commenced to move swiftly along. A meteor darted through the air, at least I thought so until I looked up and saw that it was a bird. It was a dull blood-red, through which the light shone with a most disagreeable effect.

The road now lay under lofty trees and massive trunks. Huge creatures were moving about, animals and reptiles.

We saw those we call Antediluvian, and many others of which we have no record. The light shining through them allowed none of their horrors to escape our notice. Birds of gaudy plumage flew from tree to tree, but nothing made the slightest sound.

Soon we approached a group of human figures. They were very large with grandly moulded limbs. As we came close to them we could see under their skins, the fine net-work of veins which carried their brilliant life all over their bodies, for their only clothing was leaves and flowers wound fantastically about them. They had shining yellow hair, dark eyes and very fair skin with pink tints. They seemed to be communing together, but the silence was unbroken.

Six hours we sped swiftly along, not daring to even whisper to each other. Suppose one of those immense beasts should accidently snap us up, we would be only a mouthful for any of them, and as we gave out no light they could not see us, and would be ignorant of the mischief they were doing.

I wondered how men had had the courage to make the road over which we were traveling.

Huge trunks of fallen trees lay half buried in the marshy soil, and were covered with a thick growth of pure white moss which glowed in living silver.

It was with the feeling of waking from a horrible nightmare that we left this strange land and found ourselves once more upon the boat.

The thought that we were in the very heart of the earth, the silence pressing like a terrible weight upon us, and the weird light, which simply illuminated the object through which it shone, and seemed to intensify the surrounding darkness, had formed a combination almost insupportable.

Upon looking down into the water we saw that the peculiar form of life we had just left extended far out to sea. Here it was simply beautiful, and we were sorry to pass out into the twilight which soon became the bright light of Xon.

As soon as we landed, we entered another car and continued our journey. This continent of Xon is a huge republic, of which Zemena is the capital and the home of the President. In four days more we reached the city. It is situated upon a large inland lake, and is grand beyond my words to express.

We have nothing resembling it upon earth. Thebes, we think, must have been magnificent, but architecture was in its infancy when Thebes was built. In Zemena, we may say it has grown up, having had seven thousand years in which to reach that [illegible]

[illegible] of the south, and on that account we must start from Craypt.

The President has kindly instructed Kuni to furnish us everything we need for the undertaking.

We are to return to the north in one week to commence preparations.

How I wish I had an American newspaper reporter at hand now. I am a man who would like to be interviewed. There is so much to tell of this strange world, of the people, their customs and manners, their cities, and especially of their great progress in astronomy, and I have no paper upon which to write it.

When we reached Craypt, a native brought me the only thing that had come ashore from our poor Hope; it was an empty tin meat-can, and is the one inclosing this MS.

Messrs Swift and Janson soon had a balloon which was quite satisfactory, but electricity as a motor was a total failure.

It was necessary to give the balloon a bouyance which would last at least ten days. For months we studied the problem, which the Craypts at last solved.

Everything was in readiness for the balloon to start the first of July, 1878, but we delayed until the fourth, upon which day my dear and tried friends James Swift and Christian Janson accompanied by Coiru Luriu, a Craypt, William Henry Smith the Englishman, and Thomas Bates an American, are all to leave the island of Craypt. The balloon is trustworthy in all respects, but the undertaking is such a desperate one that I can only think of it with fear.

God grant they may reach their homes in safety.

I have given them instructions to throw the tin containing this MS. into the sea, as soon as they pass the permanent ice boundry.

If Swift and Janson fail to reach America, this paper will be all there is to tell of our discovery.

I am sure some one will come to our assistance; they can pass with perfect safety for at least a hundred miles beyond the ice boundry.

From June to November three ships will be constantly sailing around Symnia close to the ice pack.

In the mean time we shall be trying to work our own deliverance, and may reach home before our rescuers are ready to start; if we fail in our undertaking do not forget that there are twenty Americans imprisoned here waiting anxiously for help. That cry when addressed to my countrymen, has never yet been vain, and I feel sure it will not be unheeded now.

Very respectfully,
GEORGE A. ARBASTER
Late Commander of the Artic Expidition of 1877.

Pastry Without Butter.

The American pie has been subjected to more unjust abuse from foreign writers than any other of our distinctive products, if we except the recent tirade against the American hog. And yet we cannot say that it has been altogether undeserved, because of the villianous compound, thick, hard and heavy, that is often made to do duty as a "crust," and which by courtesy is called "pastry." Light, tender, flaky, and digestible pie-crust and all kinds of pastry can be made most readily by the use of Royal Baking Powder without any butter, or with half the usual portion, if prefered, or with a small quantity of lard or other shortening as desired. Pie-crust thus made is much more wholesome and digestible, besides being more economical and easier prepared. In addition to saving all the butter if desired, ⅓ the flour is also dispensed with, as the crust is rolled that much thinner, the lavening qualities of the Royal Baking Powder swelling it to the requisite thickness. If drippings of lard be used the Royal Baking Powder removes any unpleasant taste, rendering the crust as short, sweet, and pleasant as if made from the finest butter. Those who know the appetizing qualities of the genuine home-made American pie will rejoice that by the aid of Royal Baking Powder in the pastry it can be made quite as digestible as it is delicious.

ONE BOTTLE INSTEAD OF A DOZEN.

"And it took only one bottle to do it," said a gentleman, speaking of Parker's Hair Balsam. I had a run of fever, and when I got well of that, my hair began to fall out so fast as to alarm me. I really didn't know what to do, until one day a friend said, "Try Parker's Hair Balsam. That was some months ago. What surprised me was the fact that one bottle was enough. I expected to use up a dozen." Clean, highly perfumed, not oily, not a dye. Restores original color,

Hon. M. V. Wagner, Mayor of Marshall Mich., has a large stock farm adjacent to the city, with upward of forty breed mares and a fine lot of well-bred young horses and colts. He also owns the celebrated stallions Black Cloud, Recorder, Strathmore jr., and Camanche Chief. Wilkes Spirit of the Times says that Mayor Wagner is one of the leading breeders of his State and a gentleman of experience, and the Turf, Field and Farm adds that Mr Wagner is doing much for the breeding interests of Michigan. Besides being Mayor of the city and superintending his stock farm, Mr. Wagner gives personal attention to the business of the Voltaic Belt Co., in which he is a large stock holder. This company under his judicious management and care has built up a very large trade at home and abroad. It shows what one man of enterprise can do.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are suited to every age. Being sugar coated they are easy to take, and though mild and pleasant in action are thorough and searching in effect. A Safeguard.

The fatal rapidity with which slight Colds and Coughs frequently develop into the gravest maladies of the throat and lungs, is a consideration which should impel every prudent person to keep at hand, as a household remedy, a bottle of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

Nothing else gives such immediate relief and works so sure a cure in all affections of this class. That eminent physician, Prof. F. Sweetzer, of the Maine Medical School, Brunswick, Me., says:—

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."

The same opinion is expressed by the well-known Dr. L. J. Addison, of Chicago, Ill., who says:—

"I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice of medicine, any preparation of so great value as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is more effective than anything else in relieving even the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral

Is not a new claimant for popular confidence, but a medicine which is to-day saving the lives of the third generation who have come into being since it was first offered to the public.

There is not a household in which this invaluable remedy has once been introduced where its use has ever been abandoned, and there is not a person who has ever given it a proper trial for any throat or lung disease susceptible of cure, who has not been made well by it.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has, in numberless instances, cured obstinate cases of chronic Bronchitis, Laryngitis, and even acute Pneumonia, and has saved many patients in the earlier stages of Pulmonary Consumption. It is a medicine that only requires to be taken in small doses, is pleasant to the taste, and is needed in every house where there are children, as there is nothing so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for treatment of Croup and Whooping Cough.

These are all plain facts, which can be verified by anybody, and should be remembered by everybody.

THE London Times is inclined to make fun of the Americans for lavishing so much praise and attention on Mr. Irving and Miss Terry. And by the way, Chas. Kelly, another of Miss Terry's husbands, died Saturday in London.

RUSSIA still thirsts for England's gore. It was thought during the week that peace would be declared, but from yesterday's dispatches it appears that England still expects to fight. The British government is expending money very freely and the credit of $55,000,000 which has been asked for will be given without hesitation.

THE Tribune's Washington special says that Sparks, Commissioner of the General Land Office, threatens to resign unless he is clothed with authority to turn out Republicans and put Democrats in their places. Sparks says that frauds have been perpetrated to an excessive extent in every branch of the land department.

IT is stated that the men of the 65th regiment (French Canadians) at the Northwest were without food for two days, except what they could pick up, and they broke into the provision stores in Calgary under instructions. Mounted police surprised them and Colonel Hughes, who attempted to interfere had a rifle pointed at him. The men threatened to return to Montreal, if they had to walk back.

THE forthcoming National Convention of Inventors to be held at Columbus, Ohio, on the 22d day of April next, will doubtless be the largest ever held on this continent. It is called for the purpose of perfecting a more thorough organization for the protection of inventors, manufacturing and developing inventions, detecting and prosecuting infringements, and instituting a benevolent Brotherhood. All are cordially invited.

SECRETARY BAYARD is a very proud and aristocratic man, and a little too much so to gracefully execute the duties of the honored and exalted position which he now holds under the new administration. His treatment of George W. Williams, the colored gentleman who was nominated as Minister to Hayti by Mr. Arthur and confirmed by the Senate on March 2d, was anything but civil, and will not be looked upon by either party as justifiable usage. It is high time that a man like Mr. Bayard, should do away with all this slavish domineering feeling, especially when he encounters a man who intellectually is his equal. Mr. William's letter is believed to be a plain and truthful statement. The Secretary says that there are severe charges pending against Williams. He does not say what they are, but announces that the colored man will not be sent to Hayti. President Cleveland seems to be pleased with the appointment of Williams.

[illegible]

[illegible] excellent woman. It was entitled "Altruistic Faith," and for her illustration she took Chedidja, first wife of Mohammed, who was rich and much older than she was when she married him. When asked if younger wife, he replied that he loved her best because she believed in him when all men despised him. Chedidja's faith made Mohammed.

There is faith in God, faith in self, and in humanity. The first produces the others. Faith in humanity believes that life is worth living and worth saving. You will have much hunger and thirst, will crave affection when the bloom of youth is supplanted by the ashen hue of age; will cry aloud for help in infirmities, must needs come, because those on whom women rely, though themselves powerless to relieve them of their intolerable aches, pains, prosterations, sleepless nights of agony, and days of distress,—because of the narrowness of their code and the selfishness of their purpose,—restrain them from resorting to those agencies which may lift woman to a plane of greater usefulness, and to a nobler life.

Many a woman lacks the faith of Chedidja. If they had faith in their own reserve of physical power, confidence in the personal experience of others would follow; and instead of a race of suffering mortals,—slaves to the prejudice of those whose only interest in them is bounded by their professional fees,—we should see nobility of station reinforced by nobility of mind, and robustness of life.

The power to rid themselves of the aches, and pains and desperate despair which afflict them, is in women, and ought to come out. You all have a coutless amount of testimony.' Some one will say to you. "Go on and you will conquer."

"How"? Do as your sisters have done! Have faith in their indisputable experiences. We want more life and fuller and need all the help we can get. Man would fail were it not for the Chedidjas. There is much in good digestion to keep a woman sweet and loveable. There is more in thorough action of the great blood purifying organs—the liver and kidneys, for if they are deranged, women can not have the physical comfort so craved and prayed for. To secure this, the help they need,—the help that thousands have already used and to which they say they owe all they possess,—is Warner's Safe Cure. Mrs. Maria C. Tredwell, Stamford, Conn., (President of the State Woman's Christian Temperance Union) a well known leader, says 'it is the only thing which seemed to reach my case.' These unprejucited thousands have blessed the the world because they have become Chedidjas, who have felt it their duty to declare their own faith and to inspire their sisters with the confidence in the extraordinary up-building energy of this wonderful discovery.

Miss Cleveland has evidently an original and fertile mind, and we are indebted to her interesting lesture, a few thoughts from which we have copied,—for a text out of which the above suggestions have grown.

[illegible] has returned from [illegible]

[illegible] to look over the route for the new Phoenix railway. After consultation with the residents [illegible] the Hon. Willard Johnson, and some other friends of the road, he started out to go over the old road-bed as far as Phoenix, to get a near approximation of the lumber needed for cattle-gards, etc. To-day he will return in company with the engineer, James Berns, to the point of intersection with the Ontario & Western, where this company will at once put in a switch to be used in building the new road. The ties and rails will very soon be delivered at this point for a portion at least of the road. The rails come from the Bethlehem steel works in Pennsylvania. A locomotive with a lot of flat cars will follow at once. The projectors have only been waiting for the deep snow to disappear, and expect the coming week to get at work with a force of men between Fulton and Phœnix. They are offered seasoned hemlock ties by the West Shore road. There is nothing now to hinder the rapid construction and early completion of this long talked of road and Mr. Potts is certain from the present outlook that he can run passenger cars over the road on or before July 4. Should there be no arrangement made to connect with the Syracuse Northern, the original route as surveyed and right of way obtained will be adopted, running into the city along the Oswego canal, connecting with the West Shore and running to the latter's depot.

Jury Drawing.

The following named persons were drawn as trial jurors on Saturday to serve at a term of the county court and court of sessions to be held in the court house in Oswego, May 4th, 1885:

Dennis Discroll, William Darrow, Edward Woods, Frank Mouschizor, Peter Pelo, Thomas Pearson, John Hurley, J. Adam Benzing, Alfred T. Bell, W. R. Hosmer, Cornelius Connors Oliver Peck, Oswego city; Francis Osterhout, J. T. Bradford, Palermo; D. C. Briggs, Edward Fredenburg, Henry Owen, Richard Bell, John Taylor, William N. Osburn, Volney; Cornelius J. Miller, Orin E. Reynolds, Granby; A. D. Congdon, Almon Tiffany, Thomas Smith, Scriba; Leroy Shaffty, Andrew Byran, Orin Curtiss, William Mustard, J. W. Burt, Hannibal; Alfred Farnum, Oswego Town; Malcom M. Cheever, Henry B. Battles, Joseph Johnson, Monroe Abbott, New Haven; W. H. Conrad, Schroeppel.

Advice to Sick Men.

Mrs. Grundy not only has convictions but they are based upon experience.

We all know that many a man is deprived of enjoyment of these spring days, but we don't know why it is so. Men are tempted by the warm sunshine and balmy breezes to indulge themselves imprudently in dispensing with underclothing. This is a great mistake. The prudent way is to stick a little longer to the underclothing, and to substitute for thick, heavy underwear some of the elegant garments for spring wear. Light overcoats and suits from Kent & Miller's 18 and 20 South Salina street. It is light, but warm, elegant in appearance, stylish, and is sold at surprisingly low prices. Call and see it. It is really better than a doctor, and far less expensive.

Stricken with Paralysis.

Last Sunday morning as Abner Cheeney left the home of Rev. J. P. Simmons, on Rochester street, on his way to the Baptist church, he was stricken with apoplexy. He was taken back to Mr. Simmons' where he still lies very low with small hopes of his recovery. He had walked from Granby Centre, from the home of his son where he lived, to O. J. Jennings' on Saturday, and Sunday came from there to attend his church. Mr. Chéeney is well known, having resided in this town and vicinity for a period of 50 years. His age is 87.

Teachers' Institute.

A teachers' institute for the County of Oswego, conducted by Professors French and Bouton, will be held at the town hall, Mexico, commencing May 11, 1885, and continuing five days. The law requiring Commissioners to hold institutes, contemplates the attendance of every teacher in the county. Every district is taxed to pay the expense, while any district, whose teacher fails to attend, loses all the benefits to be derived from the work of such institute.

Please to remember Bacon buys and sell for cash and no one can sell cheaper, neither will Bacon allow them to do so. Bargains on every counter at Bacon's.

The ruins of the Catholic parsonage, which was burned recently, has been cleared away.

Mr. Kennedy, surveyor for Hines & Moffett of Watertown, is in town surveying the ground for the proposed water works.

The dwelling house owned by H. C. Beals and recently occupied by Seward Green, in the eastern part of the village, has been repainted and looks very neat

Edward Jones of this village, was authorized by Mr. Osgood of Albany to purchase a horse for him, the price not to exceed $500. It is said that Jones has offered E. W. Ross that sum for his trotter, Sinbad, but the offer was not accepted.

It is to be hoped that sufficient encouragement will be extended to the tove manufacturers whom we stated last week, contemplated establishing a new industry in our midst in the upper foundry. It has seemed in the past as if property holders, instead of thinking how much they would give toward helping a manufacturer to locate here, they would figure on how much they were going to make by it. Such encouragement (?) has driven out men like Kingsford, Remington, Conde, and several other large firms, who, if they could have had the inducements they deserved would have built up Fulton far ahead of its present proportions.

The motto "Always Lead, Never Follow," will be more strikingly illustrated this season than ever before.

Business at the Oswego & Riverside Mills it would seem, had almost assumed its former mammoth proportions. The departments have commenced running nights in order to supply the increasing demand for their goods. They have orders for six months ahead. Several cars loaded with Crompton looms have arrived by O. & W. road and have been placed in position in the factory.

Do not delay in cleaning up and burning or otherwise destroying all filth and rubbish which has accumulated about your premises during the long winter just past. Remember that filth is a breeder of infectious diseases and we are certain that none of our citizens are anxious to entertain such visitors. Lime and copperas scattered about will act as a preventative against the dreaded cholera. A clean yard not only looks well but often inspires your neighbor into action. Once more we say, clean up!

The new street commissioner, James Clark, is actively engaged in cleaning up the streets of the village, Last Saturday a new road scraper was tried on Oneida street, giving universal satisfaction. The commissioner's attention is called to the cross-walk on the east side of Third street adjacent to the Presbyterian church. When the streets are muddy the only safe part of the walk is about two inches wide, making it almost impossible for anyone but an experienced acrobat to effect a successful crossing.

Spring, gentle spring, has come at last. The snow during the past week has vanished like good butter from a three-dollar-per-week boarding house table, and the mud is fast turning into dust. Tin cans, whisky bottles, pasteboard boxes, old rubbers, etc, loom up promiscuously through the town. The face of the farmer has at last brightened up and he is anxious to enter upon his labors. The tramp too, has [illegible]

Who is the most successful business man in town?
Who owns the fastest driving and most valuable horse?

If any well informed citizen feels disposed to answer these questions we will publish the same,

Many Lawsuits.

About six years ago a man named McKee, representing himself to be an agent of L. J. Billings, a Rochester nurseryman, disposed of a large amount of stock to farmers all over Oswego county. His plan was to get as much money as possible and take a note for the rest, payable at one of the Oswego banks. To the surprise of the farmers they were not called on to pay their notes, and most of them had forgotten all about the transaction. Lately, however, they have been notified that the notes are still in existence and must be paid. During the week they have each received a summons, the suit being brought before a justice in Williamstown. About 300 of the suits have been brought. Some have paid the cost and settled, and others attempt to escape payment by alleging that the trees did not turn out to be such as they were represented.

Charged With Abduction.

Charles Parkhurst, a farmer of North Volney, was arrested last week charged with being the father of the unborn child of a fifteen year old girl named Edith Wilcox. He was acquitted of the charge, and was together with his wife, arrested Saturday on a warrant sworn out by the girl's father on a charge of abduction. They were arraigned before Arvin Rice and gave bail in the sum of $400 to appear this morning. The examination is now in progress.

Robbery.

When D. C. More, the new clothing merchant, entered his store last Saturday morning, he discovered that about $100 worth of clothing had been stolen. The thief effected an entrance through a rear window sometime during the night. This is rather a discouraging blow for the new merchant. It is to be hoped that the perpetrator of the crime may be found and punished.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Effie C. Wetherby, wife of Charles Wetherby, of Oswego Falls, died last Monday morning, aged 24 years. A post mortem examination was held by Drs. Hall and Lake, who decided that death was caused by internal hemorrhage, the result of extra-uterine pregnancy. The funeral was held this morning at 10 o'clock, from the house.

Come listen, friends and neighbors all,
Beside me take your place;
While I explain how Cleveland won
The Presidential race.

Folks talked about his little hat,
And number thirteen shoe,
And so, till he to Fulton came
His chance looked rather blue.

But as he rode along and bowed
Response to cheer and shout,
At Oneida street he found
He'd worn the old hat out.

"To Miller's, to Miller's" he quickly cried.
"Send orders through the line;
We'll halt at Oneida street,
And get a hat in time."

The genial Hatter saw at a glance
The cause of the delay,
And quick his latest fashion went
On Cleveland's head that day.

And when the Governor reached the Park,
Folks looked around and said:
"We don't care what sized shoe he wears,
He's got a splendid head.

And as we want for President
A man of taste and style.
We're bound to choose the candidate
Who buys of Miller his tile."

Thomas G. Poole commenced the duties of night watch last Saturday. The merchants and business men of Fulton who employ Mr. Poole may rest assured that their porperty will be well guarded.

A new system of preserving order has been inaugurated in No. 2 school. The doors are kept closed until fifteen minutes before school hours, when Prof. Boothby stations himself at one door and one of the lady teachers at the other. All noisy demonstrations are thus easily suppressed.

All Odd Fellows are requested to attend the special meeting to be held at the lodge room to-morrow evening, Grand Master Bunnell and Grand Secretary Terwilliger will visit the lodge and exemplify the secret work. It is expected that representatives from neighboring lodges will be present.

Mrs. John Dixon of Oswego, aged 54, attempted to draw water from a cistern in a shed at the rear of the house, fell in and broke her neck. She was alone at the time, and was missed some time before she was found. Finally one of her sons saw her feet sticking from the cistern. The cistern was five feet deep and there was about 18 inches of ice and water in it.

The new police force would gain for themselves a credit mark by clearing the various corners about town, of the crowds of idle men and boys who congregate at these places to drink in the gentle sunshine, while at the same time they besmear the streets with tobacco juice, scrutinize and make improper remarks about respectable people who are obliged to pass by.

Last Saturday morning as Pierre Murphy, an old man about 80 years old, was wheeling a barrow up the N. Y. O. & W. railroad track below Oneida street, he was struck by a freight train and his left shoulder was badly crushed, and his arm broken below the elbow. Owing to his extreme age, the shock to his system proved fatal and he died yesterday morning.

A. Rosenbloom, of the firm of H. & A. Rosenbloom, accompanied by his head salesman, Ed Wolcott, formerly of the Bee Hive, left last Sunday evening for New York to purchase new goods for their dry goods store. This store, immediately adjoining their clothing house, is being rapidly fitted up in first-class style, and when finished and stocked will be one of the finest dry goods stores in Oswego county.

Last Thursday evening Fremont Finch of Anniston, Alabama, and Miss Loma Stay of this village, were married by the Rev. Mr. Markham. Mr. Finch will be remembered as a former resident of Fulton, but for the past twelve years has resided in Alabama, where he has an extensive orange grove. The newly wedded pair left for New York, where after a short time spent in sight seeing, they will go by water to their future home. THE TIMES is happy to extend its sincere congratulations.

William Greth, now in Auburn prison for bigamy, in conversation with a reporter the other day, gave the following as an excuse for having his Oswego county wife [illegible]

The interior of the rink is soon to be repainted and improved.

The Fulton club have ordered handsome new uniforms.

Manager Nivirson has kindly offered to give the polo club a benefit in the near future.

The Fulton Cornet Band are deserving of much credit for the excellent music they discourse at the rink nightly.

A novel game of polo is soon to be played in a Utica rink. The players instead of skating, will ride ponies shod with rubber half an inch thick. This will protect the floor and insure the animals a good foothold.

To-morrow evening the third league game of polo will be played at the Fulton rink between the Princess team of Auburn and the Fultons. The visiting club have a reputation of being first-class players, and an exciting game may be looked for.

Last Thursday evening the first league game of Polo was played in the Fulton rink between the Fultons and the Casinos of Oswego. It took the latter forty minutes to win the first goal. The second was won in five, the next in four, by the home team; the fourth and the game was won by the Casinos. Friday evening the Stars of Oswego, accompanied by about 200 of their friends, came by special train under the auspices of the Union League. The game was called at 9 o'clock, and after four hotly contested rounds, each team had won two goals. The fourth and decisive one, after some very skillful playing was won by the Fultons. In this game, each goal was won by Hadcock, of the home team.

The Fulton club, accompanied by a carload of people, went to Oswego last evening and played the Casinos. The game was called at 9:17 and after two minutes of playing the Casinos sent the ball whizzing through the Fulton goal. They also won the second and fourth, the Fultons taking the third by a graceful play of Foster in knocking the ball to Hadcock who drove it through, as he always does if there is a ghost of a chance. Altogether the Fultons played an unusually poor game, and until they can play the same men, and not change positions, they need never anticipate a successful record. They have good material but require practice. Time 43 minutes, referee J. H. Case.

The second Star league game was played at the Fulton rink on Monday evening between the club of this place and the Empires of Syracuse. The game was called at 9:15. After 17 minutes of hot playing the Empires realized that they had no "walk away" with the Fultons and surprised the home team as well as the audience by claiming a goal on three fouls. This is according to new rules, but it was not known by the Fultons that the rule would be recognized in this game, However, the visitors were given the goal and the playing was continued. After a contest of 22 minutes, in which some excellent playing was exhibited, Mace of the home team, drove the ball through the Empire's goal. This called forth loud and prolonged applause. The next two goals, which were played in 7 and 8 minutes respectively, scored for the Empires, the last goal unfortunately being made by one of the Fultons who kicked the ball through. The game lasted one hour. The playing of the home team was creditable and showed marked improvement. The Empires are considered a crack club, and are a gentlemanly lot of fellows. J. H. Case refereed the game in a satisfactory manner.

[illegible] are not stripped off by the [illegible] I rub them off. I want nothing [illegible] The [illegible] cabbage [illegible] in the cellar or [illegible] and let them stay here until they are wilted. They do better than if set out fresh from the bed." Cabbages, like other plants, absorb large quantities of water from the soil through their roots, and evaporate it into the atmosphere through the leaves. The evaporation is most rapid during the heat of the day. During the night the evaporation is slower or ceases altogether, while at the roots keep on sucking up the water from the soil. In the morning, therefore, the plants contain much more water than in the afternoon of a dry, hot day. If the evaporation is excessive, or, the soil is so dry that the roots cannot get water fast enough, the plants wilt, but recover during the night. When you remove a cabbage plant from the soil and thus sever the connection of the roots with the water in the soil, of course the plant wilts in proportion to the evaporation. In a dry atmosphere, and especially when exposed to our hot sun, the evaporation is exceedingly rapid, while in a moist atmosphere and in the shade it proceeds slowly. In any case the plants wilt. It is only a question of time and degree.

Setting out plants during a rain is desirable, inasmuch as the evaporation is moderate. Setting them out before a rain is still better. Cloudy weather, with the atmosphere full of moisture, is equally advantageous. In regard to preserving the roots or stripping them off, it is better to preserve the roots, provided they are not allowed to dry and shrivel up by exposure to the air. If the roots are kept intact, or if the roots which are broken off a short distance from the tips are kept so moist that they will speedily callous over and then throw out fresh roots, the plants will suck up water from the soil and "hardly feel the moving." But if, on the other hand, the fibrous roots are allowed to shrivel up they had better be removed altogether and let the stem throw out new ones. In regard as to whether it is better to set out the plants as soon as possible, or to let them wilt in the cellar, much will depend on the weather. It may well be that a fresh plant, full of sap, by exposure after transplanting to our hot sun, may shrivel up so rapidly that the leaves may be reduced to a powder and the plant destroyed before the roots have time to callous over and throw out new fibers to suck up water from the soil. In the shade in a cool, moist place, the leaves part with their sap slowly and the roots heal over and when set out new roots are formed before the comparatively dry leaves part with the thicker and richer sap.

Practically the real point to be looked to in setting out cabbage and other plants is to get the soil in good, moist mellow condition. This can be done by thoroughly working the soil until it is reduced to the finest tilth. We have seen men setting out plants when the soil was so full of small lumps that as soon as the dibble was drawn out of the ground, the dry lumps would fall in and fill up the hole. The labor is far greater and the chances of the plant living far less. "What would you do?" Work the soil in some way, either with hoe, as the bricklayers do their mortar, or with a plow, harrow and roller, until the desired tilth is secured.

Distance Apart.—This depends on the character of the soil and the variety. Small varieties like the Jersey Wakefield and Winningstadt can be set closer than the larger varieties. The richer the soil the more cabbages it will stand per acre. On cheap land and where nearly all the work is done with the harrow, we should plant in rows three feet apart each way. This gives four thousand eight hundred and forty plants to the acre. On rich and more valuable land, two and a half feet each way will be more profitable. The distance allows the use of a horse-hoe, and you get nearly seven thousand plants per acre. Three feet by two feet gives about the same number of plants per acre.—[American Agriculturists.

In Case of Foreign War.

"War between England and Russia is a calamity to be deplored and if possible averted," said President Noah Potter of Yale College, at Philadelphia Saturday; "but these two great nations are determined to fight, it is clear that the position of this country in respect to the belligerents must be one of firm but watchful neutrality. The United States should not be drawn into the conflict, nor should ground for complaint be given to either of the hostile powers.

"Until the moment war is declared agents of both England and Russia will [illegible], no doubt, purchase vessels from the ship-owners in this country. But as soon as the war has formally begun it will be incumbent upon our government to prevent the departure from [illegible] of any American vessels which [illegible] to think may be designed for use by either of the belligerents. Centrifugal machines for separarting the milk form the cream are now in general use, and as an aid to beekeepers a machine has been invented for extracting honey from the combs by centrifugal force being left uninjured during the extracting process.

An English poultyman say that on the the first appearance of gapes take a quart of oat meal porridge, stir into it a tallow candle, and administer it warm to the chicks. Repeat the remedy every two hours. He states that he has never lost a chick from gapes when the above was administered.

A great deal of butter is injured in quality before the milk is taken from the stable. If poor butter is the result, the housewife or dairymaid is not the one to hold responsible. If the cows are wellbedded, and the milker uses due care, there will be much fewer complaints of ill-flavored butter.

The American Agriculturist has a description of a barrel, barrow, for carrying liquids. Barrel open at the top is fitted into the frame of an ordinary barrow with cleats, about one-third being below the top of the frame. It can be advantageously employed in carrying slops to hogs or cattle and water for plants.

HEALTH HINTS.

Consumptive night sweats may be arrested by sponging the body nightly in salt water.

A troublesome, hacking cough or bronchial irritation is often relieved by gargling the throat with salt water or by gargling the throat with salt water.

After exercise of any kind never ride in an open carriage, or near the window of a car for a moment; it is dangerous to health and even to life.

Strong cold tea is an excellent and most grateful eye-wash. Wet soft linen in it and bind over the eye, bathing freely with the tea from time to time.

Following is an excellent gargle for sore throat: Tannic acid, forty grains; glycerine, one ounce; pure soft water seven ounces. This to be used as a gargle frequently.

A roasted lemon, filled while hot with sugar, and eaten still hot just before retiring, will induce prespiration, relieve hoarseness, and often break up an incipient cold.

One of the minor trials in railway travel arises from cinders in the eye. A simple and effective cure may be found in one or two grains of flaxseed, which can be placed in the eye without pain or injury. As they dissolve, a glutinous is formed, which envelops any foreign body that may be under the lid, and the whole is washed out. A dozen of these seeds should constitute a part of every traveler's outfit.

Kiss Me Good-by, Dear.

This is the phrase heard in the hallway of many a home as the man of the house is hurrying away to exchange daily labor for daily bread in the marts of commerce. Sometimes it is the wife who says it, sometimes infant lips prattle the caressing word, holding up a sweet flower face for the kiss that is its warm sunshine of life, and the strong man waits a moment to clasp his treasure and is gone; and all day he wonders at the peace of his heart; at the nerve with which he meets business losses, or bears business crosses. The wife's kiss did it, and he realizes that it is not wealth or position or luck that makes our happiness, but the influence we bear with us from the presence of those we love.

Kiss me goodby! O lips that have said it for the last time! would you ever ask again in those pleading tones for the kiss so tardily given? Would you not remember that the relation the flower bears to the universe is as carefully provided for as that of the brightest star; the little action of a loving heart goes side by side with the deed of heroic worth; that love is the dew of life; that the parting of a day may be the paring of a lifetime.

"How many go forth in the morning
That never come home at night!
And hearts have broken
For kind words spoken
That sorrow can ne'er set right."

Many tears have been shed over kisses—over those "dear remembered kisses after death." Kiss your children, man of business before you leave home; kiss the mother of your children, and then go about your day's work with a "Thank God" in your soul that you have some one at at home to kiss—[Phrenological Journal.

Business Tact and Opportunity.

A streak of pure good luck in business or the sudden achievment of success and wealth by a happy hit is rare, but there are many lucky and prosperous folks who are so because they watch their opportunities and make the best of them. Mr. Koehler of Rochester, N. Y., tried his hand at canvassing for "Plain Home Talk" and made four dollars in the first two hours. Mr. Sandford of Maine took 48 orders from 47 persons to whom he showed the book. Mr. Taylor in Cleveland took 19 orders in one day. Why do smart, capable men complain of hard times and "nothing to do," when equal opportunities are open to them? They have only to ask for circulars, prospectus and terms of the Murray Hill Publishing Co., [illegible] New York City.

WASHED-OUT HAIR.

There is a sort of pallid, chalky complexion which the novelists call a "washed-out complexion." It is ghastly enough and no mistake. Washed-out, faded discolored, or parti-colored hair is almost as repulsive and melancholy. Parker's Hair Balsam will restore your hair to its original color, whatever it was brown, auburn or black. AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Il'., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for the past eight years; the doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead, three bottles Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

CURE FOR PILES.

Piles are frequently proceeded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomash, etc. A moisture like prespiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a mommon attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and affecting a permanent cure. A light cigar after a hearty meal frequently aids digestion, but if one smokes just after eating, the appetite will be lessoned and food will lose its relish. Thirdly, do not smoke the whole of the cigar. Sacrifice a fourth or fifth, because in the stump the poisonous oil or nicotine of tobacco becomes concentrated. Fourthly, do not smoke more than three or four cigars a day. And in the last place, after smoking cleanse the teeth and thus avoid their discoloration and impregnation with the fumes of tobacco. A moderate and careful use of tobacco does not harm the teeth but when excessive it causes the gums to recede, and cover the teeth themselves with the blackening oil of the leaf.—[New York Sun.

Cleveland and His Portrait Painter.

Mr. Moscheles' portrait of Mr. Cleveland has not been paid for, and it belongs to Mr. Moscheles himself and not to Mr. Cleveland.

When Mr. Moscheles was in Washington recently, the president said to him cheerfully:—"I can hardly tell you why I am president. For a while I was the Mayor of Buffalo, and then an unexpected opportunity sent me as Governor to Albany. I was not anxious to be Governor, and not ambitious to be President. When my term is ended, I think on the whole, that I should like to be the Mayor of Buffalo again."

Mr. Moscheles declares that Mr. Cleveland is in no sense an ambicious man. "His Chief aspiration," the artist said to me with a smile, "is to attend to his business." Nevertheless the President has a decided appreciation of his own dignity. He remarked good humoredly to Mr. Moscheles: "These people will discover by and by that I am not to be set up as a kind of tobacco shop sign."—Buffalo Courier.

ANOTHER CLEAR AND POSITIVE RECOVERY—AN ELDERLY LADY'S LETTER.

Among the numerous letters received by Dr. Kennedy testifying to notable salt rheum cures. the following will be found of inetrest to our readers who May accept our assurance of its authenticity and truthfulness.

Worcester Mass., March 23, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Roundout, N. Y.

Dear Sir: Until three years I have been a sufferer from Salt Rheum. It followed upon an attack of erysipelas, for which I was a long time under medical treatment. I placed myself again in the hands of the physicians, who did, I have no doubt all that could be done. One thing, however, is sure, I was none the better for all the medicine they gave me. The painful and unsightly disease made continual progress, until I began to fear I should never get rid of.

By means of one of those accidents that often result in so much blessings I had my attention called to your favorite remedy, which I was told would surely do me good. I used it and within a much shorter time than I would have believed possible, I received a permanent cure. I am now perfectly free from Salt Rheum. What a comfort this is and how it places your wonderful medicine in my opinion you may guess at but never know. I keep it now constantly in the house as a family medicine.

Yours Truly
MRS. DINAH PHAIR.

Mrs Phair sometime since, went on a visit to Kansas, found a case of Salt Rheum, could not get Favorite Remedy, sent to New York City for it, and cured the case.

The Lawyer's Life.

When the enterprising lawyer sits a scribbling,
She's a scribbling,
With his client close beside him on a chair—
Cane-seat chair—
How he curses in his heart such petty dribbling,
Petty dribbling—
While the client answers questions with a stare—
A vacant stare!
How he wishes that the stair would downward take him,
Outward take him,
And that he again his face might never see—
No, never see,
For he knows that by and by he will forsake him,
Yes, forsake him,
Without giving him the customary fee—
Merry fee!
Then the woman with the husband, whom she wishes—
How she wishes—
Very much to get away from if—she can—
"Hopes she can"
Tells the story which she punctuates with blushes
Rosy blushes,
And soon proves to have in mind another man!
Some other man!
And then the man complaining of his neighbors,
Wicked neighbors!
Wicked neighbors, too, complaining of the man,
That very man!
How they, one and all, will leave their usual labors—
Peaceful labors—
And become at once so very partisan,
Partisan!
So, tho' many people think there is some money,
Is some money,
In practicing the law which seems such fun—
Seems such fun—
Could they know how very little there is funny—
And less money—
They'd say a lawyer's life is not a happy one,
Unhappy one!

QUEEN BESS.

A Story From "The Silver Hill District."

Written for THE TIMES.

BY THE WANDERING JEW.

Quartzburg, Idaho, April 18, 1880.

Dear Miss Bess:—You will look surprised, no doubt, and say, "Who is this from?" but look at the signature and you may have cause to wonder. On the start I'll say that I am an old friend—of your father's. He will tell you all you wish to know of me. But to business: I, in the name of the good people of Quartzburg, offer you the position of post-mistress of our town; and as your ideas of woman's rights—so your father says—are somewhat advanced, I hope that you will accept a chance to put some of your views into practice. This is a busy mining town, rough too, the people partaking of the nature of the town, and we have no "society" here to speak of. I am the postmaster at present, but my mining interests take too much of my time, so I'll have to give the office up. I can get the office transferred to you without much trouble, and your experience at Clear Haven is all that is necessary. The salary is sufficient to make it an object to spend a year or so out here. Your father gave me his consent before I wrote to you, so it all depends on you. If you start Monday next, I will meet you at Idaho City on Tuesday afternoon, and from there you finish the trip in a stage. Send your answer by next mail, so that I will know what course to take. You can board with my wife and I, and we will try and make it comfortable for you. If you are at all romantic, and an admirer of fine scenery, this is the place for you, and I know a young man—a genius—here, who may interest you. Now don't delay, but make haste and hurry, quick. Love to father and mother; I will leave your share until we meet. Now, we won't take 'No' for an answer, so make up your mind to come.

Your's most truly,
Benj. Squires.

* * * * * * * *

"Well," said Bess, "that's a funny letter. 'I, in the name of the good people of Quartzburg, offer you the position of postmistress.' Well, well. But as for his young man, he can keep him. This letter reads like a story, but I will think about it, and now for papa; I must hear what he says about it."

She found her father smoking on the back porch, and without a word put the letter in his hand, watching him closely while he read.

When finished, he blew a great cloud of smoke from his mouth and said:

"Yes, Bess, I'd go. The change will do you good. You will meet new people, see a new country, and at the same time demonstrate that down trodden women are capable of doing work now done by men."

"And perhaps you will find that you could love, honor and obey this man that Ben speaks of, and——Oh! excuse me; the coming woman won't love. I forgot that."

Bess put in no protest to her father's sally, but went away to dream over the letter, and next morning at the table she told her people that she would go.

So it was decided, and that same morning she wrote to Mr. Squires, and began to get ready for her strange trip. While she is traveling I will take time to tell you something about this young lady.

Bessie Delamere had seen twenty happy years pass her by, and during that time had lived at Clear Haven, Michigan. Her father was, and had been for a term of years, postmaster of the village, and his daughter, tired of the idle life she had lived, had gone into the office, and learned by practice the workings of our mail system.

She was a bright, intelligent girl, was very independent, and she favored woman's suffrage. She was of slight build, and her face naturally dark—made darker by exposure—was framed in a [illegible] mass of short, dark brown hair. [illegible]

Among her own sex she was a leader. Most of the girls looked up to her as a paragon, and yet, while enjoying her in her independence were to weak to follow.

Bess believed that a new era for woman was about to dawn; that they would be admitted to all pursuits now followed by men; that wages for the same work would be equal, and that taxation without representation would be a thing of the past. She believed much more, but other thoughts than these she seldom voiced in public.

The trip was uneventful, so we will let it pass. Our traveler arrived in Idaho City, and was met by Mr. Squires, who proved to be a regular westerner.

"So this is Miss Bess, hey? Glad to know you, Bess. How's father and how did you stand the trip? Quite a venture for a young lady, hey? This way, Bess, here's the stage," and before Bess could answer a question, she found herself seated in one of those great western stage coaches, and after the mail and passengers were stowed away, it started with a jerk for Quartzburg.

"Look out of the window, Bess, and you can see the young man I spoke of, as he goes by. It's Frank Hill—Happy Frank, we call him—and he's driving one of his stages on the Last Chance route now, but he takes this line next week, and will have his headquarters at Quartzburg."

She looked in time to see a noble team of four blue horses drawing another stage, and guided by an attractive looking young man, go by with a rush, and she watched the turn-out until it vanished at the turn in the road.

"You will hear his calliope soon, and when you hear it once you will always know it, and that Frank is always on time.

Soon the sound came, as if four whistles had united in one.

"That's one of Frank's patents. He fastened the whistles to the under side of the box, and by a system of gearing starting from the axle, compresses the air in a cylinder and releases it at will in the sound you just heard. He's a great boy, is Frank, and he paints pictures too, and is clever at most everything. Why, the best flume and pump they have at Placerville, he designed, and the centrifugal wheel that drives the saw, and the flour mills in our town was also built by him. But wait 'til you know him, Miss Bess. Monday afternoon you will hear his whistle, just as he strikes the canyon above the town, and in half an hour he will drop the mail bags on the office steps, and go down to the tavern."

The rest of the week was spent in getting acquainted with the people and the town of Quartzburg, and on the following Monday Bess found herself behind the glass partition of the little postoffice. She "tidied up" the place a little and then sat down to look and think over her position.

She sat at one of the little windows, looking out at the scene around her. High above, towered Mount Massive, snow-capped and cool. On the lower planes was the scrubby growth of pines and lower still were the openings made in the mountains by the miners. There also were the tramways, ore crushers and smelters, and down the valley she could see the huts and houses of the miners thinly scattered along the road. The line of mountains faded away in the west and were lost in the clear blue sky.

Looking the other way she could see the Idaho stage road, and could follow it up the valley until it was lost in the canyon beyond. On one side of the road ran the Placer river—a small feeder to the Boice—and it was bridged by a rough but artistic structure that she afterwards learned Frank had put up. Everything about her seemed to point to this man, and her thoughts began to turn to him. How handsome he looked as he dashed by on the Last Chance road. His rough garb, and happy face, and how alive he looked as he shouted at the horses. Strange that such a genius should be buried in this place.

As she thus meditated, the sound of the whistle reached her, and she looked up in time to see the stage as it came through the canyon, and disappeared under a hill. In a short time she heard the rattle of the wheels outside, and a strong tenor voice call out "Mail!"

The driver threw the bags into the door, smiled at Bess, and went his way.

"He don't lack assurance, at any rate" thought Bess, as she sorted the mail. "Ah! here's two letters directed to him, and from New York, too. He don't look much like a New Yorker just now. More like a man from the west, I should say."

The days went quietly by and began to get a little monotonous, and had it not been for the daily appearance of Happy Frank, Bess would have been tempted to give up her position and go home. The attraction between them seemed mutual, and every evening Bess waited until he appeared to escort her to her boarding place. This was necessary, she reasoned, for the men were so rough and she did not have "Snap" with her, and beside, Frank was a better escort than her dog.

She found in him a kindred spirit, sympathetic and attentive. Well posted on all subjects that interested her, and ready to exchange thoughts. He was intimate with but few of the men and Bess noticed that they, like Frank, were quiet, gentlemanly and unassuming.

She learned from Mr. Squires that he had come from the east five years ago. He had made money in the mines and that he owned three stage lines running out of Idaho City.

"Mr. Hill, how is it that you ever took [illegible]?" Bess asked one evening as they walked from the office [illegible]

[illegible] taining a money interest in [illegible]—and began to look around for something more congenial. Squires told me that the three stage lines were for sale, so I snapped them up. Just what I wanted, for I have always been a lover of fine horses. The work was not too heavy, and it kept me in the open air. Of scenery, why I get the finest in the world."

"I gratified two tastes, love of horse flesh and scenery, and at the same time came into a paying investment. On my trips sometimes I became so absorbed in the beauties about me that I forgot myself, until a stumbling horse or a growl from a passenger called me back. And some of those runs—wild they seem to a novice—down the gulches, over the hills, calling forth every energy to keep the stage on the road, through scenes that rival in grandeur the storied spots of the old world, act like old wine on the system, and when each varied trip is over I feel like a careless boy again. The night-cap—as it were—to my exhilaration, in the shape of a pleasant smile from a new comer seems better than all. Some time Miss Delemere, you must take the trip with me on the box, and I will show you a wonder-land, the beauty of which escapes the eye of the inside traveler."

She looked at him as he stood there, tall, dark and handsome. How noble and manly he looked. Bronzed was his face, and glowing with an abundance of good health and animal spirits.

Bess unconciously threw about him a halo, and from that moment began a reluctant worship at his shrine. Every thought was of, or for him, and she began to look to him in all things. At first she tried to conquer the intruder —Cupid—but at last she gave herself up, and began to drift with the tide, take her where it would.

In their rambles about the town, they talked of their past lives, and Bess told of her studies, her plans for the future, of the work she had done and expected to do for woman's sufferage. He listened and smiled at her earnestness, but "could not agree with her on the subject, for he looked at it from a different standpoint."

As the spring grew into summer, they at odd moments explored all the points of interest about the town. Mines were of most interest to her, for Frank could minutely describe every detail. Each Sunday he had some new trip planned, and always a pleasant surprise for her. Many a novelty he devised for her comfort and pleasure, and the vases at the office were always filled with the choicest wild flowers.

One morning she found a long, flat parcel on the office steps addressed to "Miss Bessie Delamere." She took it in, and hastily tearing the wrapper from it, was confronted by herself, painted in oil. There she stood on the steps of the little office, just as she must have appeared the first day that Frank saw her; in the favorite blue dress and gypsy hat. Old Mount Massive was brought in for a background, and also the principal mine with its works, making the picture a regular gem.

The crowning feature, however, was herself. The figure was worked out with that detail and subtility that would do credit to a more experienced artist. The short, dark curls just peeped from beneath the rough hat, and the artist had caught perfectly the attitude, pretty smile and laughing expression of the eyes, so peculiar to Queen Bess.

She sat and gazed at the picture, her brain seemingly on fire with the rush of thoughts, and her heart wildly beating. Could she look as handsome as that in his eyes? the conviction that he loved her came to Bess, and she gave herself over to him entirely.

"Oh, but I must conquer this in some way. I can't let such thoughts creep in now, for I started out on a mission and must go through—but—but—this man has—Oh, I can be a sister to him, and if he begins to talk of love, I'll tell him to banish such thoughts, and think of me only as a sister. I must go on with my work, and I will."

Bess felt very secure in her office, and she tried to imagine how Frank would look when she dashed his hopes. All through that day she was restless. She would not go out to meet him when he drove up, and tried to get away before he could call for her.

"Good evening, Miss Bess, any letters for me? Only one? but it's from father, so I'll wait until I get home to read it. It's most time to shut up shop, I think, and may I wait outside for you? I want to tell you a story."

Bess said "y—yes," and began nervously to put on her hat and light shawl. She soon joined "her brother" on the steps, where they stood a few minutes looking down the silent road, watching the lights as they appeared one after the other, like stars in the heavens. A strange stillness hung over the town, and even at this early hour most of the people had withdrawn to their homes. In silence the lovers went up the road, crossed to the bridge, and lover-like, stopped to gaze into the swift-flowing stream below.

In the darkness Bess instinctively drew nearer to her escort, and ere she knew it he had her encircled in his arms and began to tell her rapidly and passionately of his love. She gave herself up to the delirium of the moment, and when he asked her if she could not give up her mission to become his wife and queen, she could not speak.

"Oh, Bess, it is not so? You do love me? but speak, speak quick, Bess, this suspense is terrible!" but Bess could only put her arms about his neck, and kiss him, not once or thrice, but many times, and when she could speak, she [illegible]

[illegible] to their friends at Quartzburg, and Happy Frank—well named now—took up the reins for the last time, and with his bride on the box near him, went out through the canyon, over the well-known road, and a few hours later he threw the ribbons over to his successor at Idaho City. Back to the east these lovers went, and entered into a joyous married life.

The Dangers of Blood Poisoning.

Since the death of President Garfield, there seems to have been an increase in the number of recorded cases of blood poisoning.

A few weeks ago, the Rev. Noah Schenck, D. D., of Brooklyn, had an operation performed on his foot, inflammation set in and death ensued. If a man be in good health, a wound heals rapidly; if the blood is corrupt, it is slow to heal. Impure blood irritates and inflames the whole system. It follows then, if the blood purifying organs are deranged—since every particle of blood courses through these organs over one hundred times an hour—in a very short time the blood poison must destroy all vitality.

In the winter season Nature demands heat-making food; in the spring she sets up a cooling process; and, to accomplish this, she ordains that the change from winter to summer shall be gradual; if her laws were never violated this provision would be sufficient; they are violated, therefore, we must furnish her help in this spring house-cleaning time; otherwise the seeds of disease remain within us.

Blood is made in the stomach; it is purified by the skin, lungs, liver and kidneys. During a long, cold winter, the liver and kidneys are overworked; the consequence is that in the spring these organs are prostrated; the prostration is indicated by extremely dull, heavy feelings and a weariness which seems to go to the bone; headaches, furred tongue, lack of appetite, itching and discolored skin, mental irritability, depression of spirits, neuralgic pains, convulsions, chills and fever, "malaria."

These little irregularities of feeling are nature's warnings; if neglected, disease may get the upper hand. If you introduce into the blood a little liver and kidney poison, you can artificially produce the above symptoms; it follows, therefore, that to remove them, vitality must be restored to those blood purifying organs. If they cannot perform their work no amount of medicine taken for other organs can have any permanent effect in the system.

Brigadier-General D. H. Bruce, business manager of the Syracuse, (N. Y.) Journal in 1883, found that he was not coming through the spring in good form; he was not sick, but only out of condition; to the timely use of a few bottles of Warner's safe cure, however, he attributed recovery of constitutional tone, and undoubtedly warded off some chronic disorder. This preparation is not a cure-all—it claims to restore the blood-purifying organs to natural vitality; by so doing, it not only cures, but prevents blood corruption and disease. If you doubt its power, ask your friends; millions have heard of it, hundreds of thousands have used it and commend it.

The ill-feelings of spring time are caused by a more or less poisoned condition of the blood; a condition which grows worse by neglect, and finally may send one to the grave.

One day a young physician discovered on his nose what turned out to be a malignant ulceration; the blood virus attacked his brain and killed him.

A prominent merchant of apparently average health died suddenly the other day; an examination showed that one kidney, entirely decayed, had poisoned the blood terribly! Had this condition been recognized in time, he might have lived to the full "three score and ten."

Every day we neglect to take such precautions as are herein indicated, we may be said to drive a nail into our coffin. The blood is poisoned every day, untimely death is inevitable.

I take pleasure in stating that I have known Ely's Cream Balm for more than five years, and have sold it during that time both in Binghampton and Montrose. I consider it the safest and best catarrh remedy in the market.—S. J. Sparkes, Druggist Montrose, Pa.

TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. STRONGER THAN ANY OTHER BUTTER COLOR.

Burlington, Vt., May 3d, 1882

I hereby certify that I have examined the Butter Color prepared by Wells, Richardson & Co., and that the same is free from alkali or any other substance injurious to the health; that I have compared it with some of the best of the other Butter Colors in the market and find it to be more than twenty-five per cent. stronger in color than the best of the others.

I am satisfied that it is not liable to become rancid, or in any way to injure the butter. I have examined it after two months free exposure to the air in a place liable to large changes of temperature, and found no trace of rancidity while other kinds similiarly exposed became rancid.

ONE BOTTLE INSTEAD OF A DOZEN

"And it took only one bottle to do it," said a gentleman, speaking of Parker's Hair Balsam. I had a run of fever, and when I got well of that, my hair began to fall out so fast as to alarm me. I really didn't know what to do, until one day a friend said, "Try Parker's Hair Balsam." That was many months ago. What surprised me was the fact that one bottle was enough. I expected to use up a dozen." Clean, highly perfumed, not oily, not a dye. Restores original color.

A Letter from Dakota.

DeSmet, Dak., April 16th, 1885.

After visiting through Michigan for over a month, having one of the most pleasant visits we ever enjoyed, with a brother whom I had not seen since Feb. 1850, and with a sister whom we had not seen but once since 1842, and their children whom we had seen, we went back to Toledo, O., and staid for a short time and on Tuesday April 7th, at 7:30 p. m. we started for Dakota. We arrived at Chicago at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday one hour late, and had to stay until 7:30 p. m., having a good chance to see a little of the great city of Chicago.

We rode through Illinois in the night, but had a good view of Wisconsin and Minnesota on Thursday. Wisconsin where we passed, is quite hilly, and the hills covered with scrub oak bushes, with fine farms in many places. We passed through three tunnels on the railroad one three-fourths of a mile long. Minnesota is much more level with beautiful villages and splendid farms, and the scenery was grand in some places, particularly along the "father of waters," and also at the crossing of the Mississippi into the beautiful and busy city of Winona. There are many things of interest we could describe, but suffice it to say we passed through many fine places where farmers were busy plowing and sowing wheat on very large farms, and arrived here at 3 a. m. on Friday, and rested until 8 a. m., and we needed the rest.

Our son William met us at the station and drove us half a mile to his comfortable home, and on Saturday we drove over to his farm four miles west, where he has already one hundred and fifty acres of wheat sowed, and expects to have over three hundred acres under grain, wheat, Flax, oats and barley besides a large field of corn, and some potatoes and root crops. On Tuesday last we went out to our son Bradway's (whom most Fulton people know) four and a half miles south of DeSmit. He has a fine farm of three hundred and twenty acres, 160 a homestead and 160 a tree claim. Just across the road from Bradway's, Mark Mason and his wife who was Sadie Phillips, have a clearing of 160 acres and from a rise of ground north of their home we can see the large village of Carthage, fifteen miles to the southwest, on a branch of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. We are very favorably impressed with this country, with the beautiful scenery, the large farms and the rich soil, and it brings to mind the song "Uncle Sam Was Lame Enough To Give Us All a Farm," and wonder why so many of us stay on our from five to twenty acre farms and remain as uncle Asa Phillips once said, "Two shilling men." DeSmit is a fine, thriving village and after we have seen a little more of its surroundings we will, if you desire, give a description of Kingsbury county and DeSmit village. We like to see THE TIMES and hear from the friends in Fulton and Granby. They may hear from us, with your permission, Mr. Editor, occasionally.

We are safe enough in estimating next summer's wheat crop in the United States at not more than 400,000,000 bushels or 100,000,000 short of the last crop. The acreage in Europe shows an even greater reaction, and the crop prospects are hardly more reassuring. Coincident with this sharp decline in supply, there promises to be a sharp increase in demand. In the first place, there are more people to feed. Our own population is increasing at the rate of 1,000,000 a year, and Europe's population is growing enormously—alarmingly, the pessimists would say. Reviving industry will have a marked effect upon the demand for breadstuffs. If there should be a great war in Europe—and it seems almost inevitable—there would be an abnormal quickening of industrial life and a corresponding demand for provisions and the cereals.—[Minneapolis Tribune.

The New York Sun of yesterday says: The news from London looks more warlike. The credit of eleven millions sterling which the Government demanded has been voted, and the promptness with which it was accorded furnishes an indication of the general feeling upon the subject. Mr. Gladstone spoke vaguely of a messenger whom Sir Peter Lumsden had dispatched from Afghanistan with a map and detailed account of the Penjdeh affair, and appeared, together with the other members of the Government, to attach much importance to what his arrival in London should disclose. The incident probably implied one of those distractions with which Mr. Gladstone in a great emergency is wont to occupy the public mind and gain time.

The general feeling in London last night was that there was no hope of peace, and that it was no longer desirable that there should be. It was reported, too, that there had been another battle; and a reputable Belgian newspaper, well known for its channels of information, reported that the Russians had been defeated by the Ameer's forces, with heavy loss.

The relations yesterday between St. Petersburg and London had been strained to a point at which a declaration of war would be a relief to either.

In a Troy bar-room on Saturday evening, Colonel Egolf, prominent in Grand Army circles, and William G. Carr, the son of the Secretary of state had a quarrel over Carr's charge that Egolf wrote a communication to the Brooklyn Eagle severely criticising General Carr. Young Carr struck Egolf in the face, whereupon the latter, who has only one arm, drew a pistol. Bystanders siezed Egolf, but the pistol was discharged. The bullet tore Carr's coat at the waist and inflicted an ugly bruise. Colonel Egolf was taken to the Police station, but was immediately released.

Cheese Market.

(From the Utica Herald.)

AT UTICA April 27.

The meeting of the board of trade to-day was attended by an unusually large number of salesmen. Coming a week later than last year, it was thought that perhaps there would be more cheese offered than on the corresponding date of last year; but the result showed a considerable less amount, less even than two years ago. The season is undoubtedly late, and probably the fodder cheese made this year will fall somewhat short of previous years. At the present time our factories are making just about one-third of what they usually make in the flush of the season. As a rule, buyers have seen the cheese which they took to-day. Most of it is the first make of the season, but it is all full cream stock, and some of it is said to be really fine. Prices are rather better than was expected, the competition on a few lots running them up nearly to 11c., altho' none quite reached that figure. Sales of the day were as follows: Fourteen lots, 651 boxes, at 10c.; 3 lots, 127 boxes, at 10¼c.; 8 lots, 95 boxes, at 10⅜c.; 3 lots, 146 boxes, at 10½c.; 4 lots, 342 boxes, at 10⅝c. Sales 1,574 boxes; commissions 431 boxes; total 2,005. Ruling price, 10c. Transactions of one year ago 2,601 boxes, ruling price 12¾c. Two years ago 2,163, ruling 12½c. The price to-day has been 1¾c. and 1½c. respectively below the two preceding years.

Supreme Court—Oswego County. George M. Case against Thomas R. Wright, Schuyler C. Schenck, First National Bank of Fulton, Eunice L. Root as Executrix etc. of John H. Root, deceased, and Jason H. Markham. Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale in above entitled action, made at an adjourned Special Term of this court held at Oswego on April 25th, 1885, and duly entered in the Oswego county clerk's office on that day, I the subscriber, to whom it was by said judgment duly referred, will sell, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the law office of H. E. Nichols, in the village of Fulton, N. Y., on the 18th day of June, 1885, 10 o'clock a. m., the lands and premises by said Judgment directed to be sold and described as follows, viz.:

An equal undivided one-half part of all that tract or parcel of land, situate in the town of Volney, county of Oswego, and State of New York, being a part of Lot number thirty-nine (39) in the fifteenth Township of Scriba's Patent, and being one hundred fifty-four and 86-100 acres thereof, and being the same premises deeded to said Wright, by John W. Pratt, by deed dated June 20th, 1881; to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

Also all those other certain tracts or parcels of land situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego, and State of New York, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

1st parcel. Part of Lot number sixty-three (63) of the original township of Hannibal, now Granby, and being one hundred forty-six and five-tenths acres thereof, and being the same premises conveyed to said Wright by James Bancroft and wife, by deed dated March 26th, 1878, to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

2d parcel. Being a part of Lot number fifty-three (53) of said original Township of Hannibal, and being the one hundred and forty-nine and one tenth acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright by James C. Jones and William H. Jones by deed dated August 1st, 1867, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, in book 117 of deeds, at page 440, excepting and reserving however the fifty (50) acres thereof, heretofore sold and conveyed by said Wright to   to which said deeds, conveyances and records thereof, reference is hereby made for a more particular description of the ninety-nine and one-tenth acres hereby intended to be conveyed.

3d parcel. Being a part of said Lot number 53, and being fourteen acres thereof, bought by said Wright of Calvin Gifford and conveyed to him by deed dated November 29th, 1875, to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

4th parcel. Being a part of said Lot number 53, and being the twenty (20) acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright, by Eunice Root, by deed dated   and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, in book   of deeds, page   ; to which reference is hereby made for a more particular description, said 20 acres also adjoins said 99 and 1-10 acres in 2d parcel on the East.

In resigning from the office of village trustee, it is due the electors of Fulton to advise them of the reason therefor. Briefly it is this. My whole time is and will be occupied by other work which cannot be neglected. I could not therefore properly perform the duties connected with this office. Instead of hampering the Board with a drone, I thought it would be better to resign, especially as the political complex of the Board is such that it could be done without pejudice to either party.

[illegible] Loiselle, increased his long guarded [illegible]. The Major went up to Fulton, via Syracuse, on last Wednesday, and went out to the fair grounds at the Falls immediately upon his arrival.

"And then," he says to-day, "If I could have been right back at home again and known what I was undertaking, I wouldn't have done it for a hundred dollars."

The convict's directions had been so indefinite that on his first day the Major was unsuccessful in his hunt, and after toiling away for a considerable time, enduring the scorching rays of the sun and the scarcely less troublesome questions of a horde of keepers of the fancy cattle and horses upon the grounds, he gave it up until the morrow. When he returned, Thursday, he found the "cowboys," had been digging in his absence and found nothing; but he was so fortunate as to strike the right place at once and under less than eight inches of soft earth, in one of the stalls, was found the tin box Loiselle had described. The Major unlocked the box before the wondering rustics, partly examined the contents and then left for the depot, managing to avoid his followers and get safely upon the rear of a train. The only information he had vouched was that the box contained jewelry and that it was his business to get it. One citizen, probably an officer, insisted that he must know the visitor's name and address, but had to be content without the knowledge.

The contents of the box, as displayed to the reporter in Major Boyle's private office, this morning, were three ladies' gold watches, one gentleman's gold watch and two silver watches, a chain, locket, string of beads, two napkin rings, besides a lot of odd sleeve buttons, rings, and minor articles of cheap jewelry, most of them valueless and corroded by their long rest underground. One of the ladies' watches, the most valuable article in the whole lot, has been indentified as one stolen from the house of B. R. Howe of Oswego Falls, and steps have been taken towards returning it. Loiselle claims to be able to tell where most of the property belongs, and says he will.

"Take Care! She's Fooling Thee."

A spring serenade was being performed by skilled operators under our window the other night. Mr. Grundy ejaculated a fervent expression of disapprobation, and reached for his gun.

"What's the matter," said Mrs. Grundy

"Cats," answered he savagely.

"Take care! take care!"

"Take care? I've got a gun; what do I want to take care for?"

"Care will kill a cat," was the soft response that disarmed him.

Care will also take every man who wants to be well clothed to Kent & Miller's, 19 and 20 South Salina street, where the most elegant garments may be obtained at lowest cash prices. Light overcoats and suits for men, youths and boys.

Make your garden.

Next Friday is May 1st.

Our liveryman, Mr. Frank Wilson is giving his house a coat of paint. P. Smith is doing the work.

The elegant show windows of F. E. Bacon's store have a decidedly attractive appearance at present.

It will be necessary for extensive repairs to be made on the Erie canal before navigation can be opened.

Clinton Foster an old Fulton boy, but for the past ten years a resident of Iowa, is visiting relatives in town.

"The way to sleep is to think of nothing," says a scientist. All an editor has to do is to ruminate over his bank account.

Mr. Daniel Paddock of Florence, Oneida county, has purchased the Stephen Harris farm, near Mt. Pleasant. Consideration, $3,500.

Mr. Charles Wetherby of Oswego Falls, whose wife died a week ago, has broke up housekeeping and will board with Mr. Marvin Thompson.

Harry Comstock has our thanks for a copy of "The Shanghai Courier" dated Tuesday, March 24th. The paper is printed in English and is similar in make-up to our home papers. The subcription price is $2.50 per month.

Last Monday, Charles W. Washburne and Miss Gertrude Bisnett both of this village, were united in marriage at the M. E. parsonage at Oswego Centre, by the Rev. J. B. Kenyon. THE TIMES extends congratulations.

The subscription to the Oswego street railroad project has been raised to $10,000, the amount required to build the road from Third avenue on the west side to East Tenth and Bridge streets, and from the corner of West First and Bridge to the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western depot.

A serious accident was avoided at the Oswego Falls factory last week. The timbers in the wheel house had become loosened by the immense presure of water against the east and west walls. The wheels were shut down as soon as the danger was apparent, and the building repaired.

At Oswego Falls to-day a herd of Holstein cattle owned by Dudley Miller were sold under a chattel mortgage given by Mr. Miller to a man named Cooper, of Meadville, Pa., of whom the cattle were purchased. Mr. Miller has been dealing quite extensively in Holstein cattle of late.—[Palladium, Saturday.

The bridge over the race, which settled last week, caused by one of the braces slipping out of place, has been temporarily repaired by the street commissioner, so travel is not interrupted. A vote of taxpayers is to be taken to decide whether a new iron bridge will be built.

The case of Bridget Murray vs. Mary Willard which was tried before Justice John E. Parker and a jury last July, at which time the defendant obtained a verdict was appealed by George S. Dada Plaintiffs Attorney to the County Court, has been reversed by Judge Wright.

On Friday evening last, Dr. W. A. Hall ordered an immense supper at the Lewis House as payment on an election bet made with Lawyer W. C. Stephens on the result of last fall's election. About a half dozen friends were invited to join them in the feast. At the close of the repast several appropriate toasts were offered.

All Fultonians desiring to hear Maggie Mitchell in "Maggie the Midget," to-morrow evening in the Academy of Music in Oswego, can obtain tickets at Waugh's cigar store, where a diagram of seats can be seen. If enough tickets can be sold a special train will be run. Tickets for the round trip, including a seat at the Academy, $1.50.

A thorough inspection of the Oswego canal has been made by Superintendent Richardson, who reports it in good condition. Five bridges are being built; one at Littlefields's, about three miles above Oswego, one at Hinmanville, two road and one towpath bridge at Phoenix. Last Saturday a leak was discovered in the waste weir on the short level in this village. The water was drawn out of the level and the break repaired. Mr. Richardson is of the opinion that navigation will be opened about May 11.

If our citizens want pure, wholesome water, now is the time to agitate the question. From what we have been able to learn of Hinds, Moffat & Co., we are persuaded that they wish to meet the people's want. Our village undoubtedly needs a system of water works. This company proposes to furnish pure spring water. It certainly is time to make a move in regard to water supplies for Fulton. We would like to see our people take an interest in the matter and if this company can furnish us the best water in the best way, and at the cheapest rates, to adopt their system, if not, to reject it. It will be well to look into their plans and see if a move cannot be made in the right direction.

It is Observed

That April showers are scarce.

That summer hotel circulars are received through the mails.

That the spring hats worn by the fairer sex are of horrible shape.

That the weather has been delightful for house cleaning the past week.

That the "polo craze" and not the Fulton Polo Club, still has the lead.

That ere long our village will be once more wrapped in a green foliage.

That many little repairs and improvements are being made about town.

That once a year is not too often to pay your subscription.

That it is for the tax payers to say whether or not we are to have an iron bridge.

That the skating rinks and polo clubs as well as churches and theatres, have their enemies.

Last Friday evening a number of young men interested in canoeing met in Morrill Bro's. office and organized a canoe club.

W. J. Watson was elected chairman, Justin Morrill, Commodore, Langdon C. Foster, Vice-Commodore and W. S. Royce Sec. and Treas. The rules of the American Canoe Association were adopted and the Secretary was requested to procure a copy of same. J. M. Foster and J. F. Willard were appointed a committee on design and colors. The Secretary was instructed to give a copy of the minutes to THE FULTON TIMES. The club then adjourned to meet at Morrill Bro's. office this evening at 8 p. m. The members of the club at present are, J. M. Foster, L. C. Foster, C. H. Howe, H. C. Markham, J. J. Morrill, W. S. Royce, F. D VanWagenen, W. J. Watson, J. F. Willard.

The Forresters.

The Forresters have met with grand success wherever they have appeared this season, having played engagements at the Academy of Music Oswego last December to large and pleased audiences, they accepted of a return engagement of two weeks closing April 18. Have played almost every night to packed houses, this week and last at the Grand Opera House Syracuse. Next Monday evening May 4th they open up at Stephens Opera House for four nights. Without doubt this is one of the best attractions that has ever visited Fulton, and our people can enjoy a treat in the amusement line at the low price of 10, 20 and 30 cents.

Yes, they are coming, The Forresters Four evenings next week. See small bills for the plays.

Rink and Polo Items.

The Fultons will play the Empires of Syracuse in the Empire rink to-night.

The common council of Oswego has increased the price of the license on skating rinks from $25 to $150.

On Friday evening the Fultons will play the Stars of Oswego at the Casino rink in that city. A special train will be run.

Miss Hellen Barnes was the winner of the club skates given to the most graceful lady skater, Saturday evening.

In the mile race last Saturday evening, Stewart Falkner defeated W. McGinty and Chas. Mitchel. Time, 4 minutes.

Last Monday evening the Fultons went to Auburn, and again played the Princess with the same result in twenty-six minutes.

The Fultons and the Crescent polo clubs of this village, will play seven games for a prize of $50. The first game will be played to-morrow evening.

Last Thursday evening the Princess polo club of Auburn and the Fulton's played a league game in the Fulton rink, which was won by the visiting team in forty minutes.

Last evening the "Big Six" polo team, of Baldwinsville, and the Crescents of Fulton, played a game in the Fulton rink, which was won by the visiting team in a score of 3 to 2. The game lasted over an hour.

Last Lecture.

Manager Howard authorizes us to state that Robert Collyer will lecture in Stephens Opera House, May 14th or 15th. We are glad that our citizens will have the opportunity of hearing so eloquent a lecture, and know that they will appreciate it.

The first annual meeting of the Board of Excise for the town of Volney, will be held on the first Monday in May at 10 o'clock a. m., in the Police Court room. All persons desiring license are requested to apply on that day, as the Board will not meet again until June. Each application must be accompanied by the money.

It is said that Hon. E. W. [illegible] has accepted an invitation to deliver the Decoration Day address in Fulton.

A. Emerick has rented the cellar under Chas. Whitaker's meat market, and will engage in the business of pickling eggs.

At the M. E. parsonage yesterday, Mr. James Russell and Mrs. Anna Russell, both of Granby, were married by the Rev. W. F. Markham.

Rev. J. S. Riggs of Auburn, has declined the call extended to him by the Congregational church of Oswego, but continues to supply the pulpit.

Last Saturday Slater Laycock, accompanied by his brother and Dr. Hall, left for Canandaigua, where he will receive the best scientific treatment for insanity.

Hon. T. M. Taylor of New York, is to lecture in Fulton May 17th and 18th. He is said to handle his subjects, "Cranks" and "Christianity" in a masterly manner, and should be greeted by full houses.

Captain Fisher, of the Salvation Army, has engaged Washington hall in Mexico for May 3d and 4th, and the Universalist church for the rest of their stay.

Miss Nellie Cavanaugh will enter the new dry goods store of H. & A. Rosenbloom at the opening, where she will be pleased to meet her friends in the future

The quarterly conference of the M. E. church, will be held next Friday evening at the church. All members of the official board are requested to be present.

An intoxicated pedestrian fell against photographer Darrow's street show case last Saturday night, completely demolishing two of the large panes of glass it contains.

A young Oswego woman, named Mary Shearson, while returning home Sunday night from a visit, was followed by an unknown man, who in attempting to kiss her, bit her nose severely.

P. Cullen has been making some extensive improvements in the house on Oneida street adjoining M. V. Connell's. The building has been raised, a flat roof put on, and otherwise improved.

H. & A. Rosenbloom have just received an elegant line of spring and summer suitings and pantaloon patterns, and are turning out by far the nobbiest and best fitting garments in this vicinity.

The remains of R. K. Harris, who died last winter at Fulton, and were temporarily placed in the receiving vault there, were brought to Cleveland cemetery yesterday for final interment beside those of his children who are resting there.—[Cleveland Lakeside Press.

Mrs. Sarah Vedder of Lysander, while laboring under a fit of temporary insanity last Friday, attempted to set fire to the school house in that village. Her attempt was discovered and frustrated by her mother, who was attacked by the insane woman with an axe. She was overpowered with the help of the neighbors, and will probably be taken to an asylum.

Assistant District Attorney Stranahan of Fulton is stopping at the Sandy Creek house. He is engaged in looking up evidence in the Carpenter case and in company with Captain Baldwin spent yesterday at the Carpenter home. District Attorney Mead is expected to be here the last of the week. Both the prosecution and defense claim very strong cases.—[Sandy Creek News.

The marriage of Nevada N. Stranahan to Miss Elsie Merriam is announced to take place at the home of the brides parents in Granby, to-morrow at 11 a.m., the Rev. Chas. Smith of the Presbyterian church officiating. None but intimate friends and relatives will be present. The wedded couple will leave on the afternoon train for the East. The residence on the corner of Third and Academy streets has been fitted up and handsomely furnished and will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Stranahan upon their return. The TIMES is happy to extend congratulations in advance.

The managers of the Oswego Falls and Oswego county fairs met in Oswego recently by appointment, to make some arrangement about the date of their respective fairs, which had been placed at the same time. Nothing definite was done, but it was suggested that Mexico hold her fair the fore part of the week, and Oswego Falls the latter. It is to be hoped that some satisfactory arrangement can be made, as there are a good many farmers in this section who are desirous of attending both fairs.

"George Potts who has charge of the construction of the Syracuse & Phœnix railroad," said A. A. Howlett Sunday, "promises to have the road ready for business by June 1. Making allowances for bad weather and other drawbacks, it is safe to say that trains will be running by the 1st or 15th of July. The work is now advanced to within a mile or two this side of Fulton. Until the line into the city is completed, trains will leave from the Syracuse station and run on the road to Woodard station, the present southern terminus of our road, which is a mile this side of [illegible]

Mr. Benedict, during his entire residence here, has been an ardent and respected member of the Presbyterian church, and for the past ten years an elder.

Politically he was a republican, but was also an earnest temperance advocate, having been for several terms the no-license commissioner, and at one time was a candidate on the Temperance ticket for Member of Assembly.

In his death Fulton loses one of its most active, earnest and prominent citizens, and whose loss will be deeply felt. To the bereaved family, the entire community unites in extending their earnest and heartfelt sympathy. He leaves a wife and son.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, from the Presbyterian church. The scripture was read and prayer offered by the Rev. Charles H. Smith. Brief and appropriate remarks were then made by Mr. Benedict's former pastor, the Rev. J. S. Riggs, from the words "Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace." "The foundation of his religious life," said the speaker, "was deep laid in secret prayer, and from this his whole life work was guided. His constant study seemed to be how to do the most good." Mr. Riggs paid a fitting tribute to the nearly perfect life of his deceased friend. The casket, covered with flowers, was borne by Messrs. Case, Dyer, Seymour, Nichols, Bristol and H. E. Nichols. Relatives and friends were present from Chicago, Buffalo, Detroit, Clinton, Auburn, Lysander and Syracuse.

Yesterday morning Charles Mosher of this village died of dropsy, aged 54 years. Mr. Mosher was well known in Fulton, having been in business here for a period of 25 years. For the past 10 years he has been in poor health, but has remained in active business until quite recently. He leaves a wife. Funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the M. E. church, Rev. Mr. Markham officiating.

Oswego Falls C. L. S. C.

The C. L. S. C., of lower Oswego Falls observed Shakespeare's memorial at the home of the President, Mrs. Russell Carter, last Wednesday evening. The roll was called at 6 p. m. Twenty voices responded with quotations from Shakespeare. Supper was served soon after amid a flow of cheerful, happy humor and enjoyment. Mr. Mead, our genial toast master, added interest to the occasion by calling for the many toasts and responses which followed. Mr. Jennings spoke briefly of Shakespeare, Miss Connor said a few good words on perseverance. Mr. Boyd spoke eloquently and truly of the value of Memorial days. Mrs. Swan showed Shakespeare a student of the Bible. Mr. Williams spoke with much earnestness and effect of the value of mental culture. Miss Carter showed how much we might be benefitted by familiar quotations from distinguished writers. Miss Stoughten in a few well chosen words, impressed upon us the value of study. Mrs. Carter said, setting aside present Shakespearian criticism, "We feel that the work is grand whoever may be the author, and we are very glad that we can unite at this time with many thousands of Chatauquans in studying and memorizing the book." After Mr. Mead, with much pleasantry, had proposed a compliment to the hostess which was answered with a cordial rising vote, the company returned to the parlor and engaged in reading Julius Cæsar. This was a decided success, and after a voluntary of quotations, the circle adjourned to meet at the home of Miss Olive Carter, May 1st to engage in their Addison memorial.

[illegible]

[illegible] The two [illegible] season, [illegible] objec- [illegible], if it [illegible] smothered the grass and [illegible] and if drought came on soon [illegible] cats were cut most of the grass [illegible] there was said to be a [illegible] of the seed; the work [illegible] be done over again. Not a few [illegible] style farmers still follow this method [illegible] progressive [illegible] with early [illegible] sowing of grass and clover without [illegible] grain crop. There should be a pre- [illegible] rotation of corn or potatoes, or [illegible] hoed crops, with abundant ferti- [illegible] from the stable, and deep plowing [illegible] thorough fining of the soil with [illegible] and finishing it with the [illegible]. This work, if done in September, [illegible] rarely fails to give a satisfactory catch [illegible] of the seed, and to make a thick, heavy [illegible] the following season, and to bring a [illegible] meadow, that, with occasion- [illegible] top dressing, may be kept in meadow [illegible] a long series of years, always pro- [illegible] vided that there is but one crop of hay [illegible] in the season, and the aftermath is [illegible] not grazed. The main objection to this [illegible] practice is, that it comes at a time in [illegible] summer when the teams are not at their [illegible] best, and wanted for more pressing la- [illegible] bors in other directions. There is a strong temptation for farmers of limited [illegible] means to delay the fall seeding, if they [illegible] approve of it, until November, when the [illegible] young grass and clover just starting is liable to be thrown out by the freezing and thawing, and to perish. The late [illegible] fall and early winter often furnish fa- [illegible] vorable weather for plowing, and a thorough preparation of the soil for seeding. The more of this that can be done in a season of comparative leisure, the better. Seed sowing at this time is not a safe practice in this latitude. But in the early spring, when the frost is out, and the ground is sufficiently dry for plowing, sow the grass seed and give it the benefit of the whole season, to make roots, and lay the foundation for a meadow. This is not likely to be done with a grain crop sown at the same time. It cannot be done upon our long [illegible] soils without manure and thor- [illegible] ough preparation. The stirring and [illegible] mellowing of the soil is a substitute for [illegible] within limits easily reach- [illegible]. The best results are to be gained with a liberal application of fertilizers, and a thorough preparation of the soil. —[American Agriculturist.

The prudent farmer will now, before too late, test his seed corn.

The early rose potato holds its own [illegible] the new comers.

Raise a flock of turkeys; if they are properly cared for there is money in them.

Lime never should be plowed under, but kept as near the top as possible.

For an early and a permanent pasture sow orchard grass. We have tested it for years in both ways, and it is a success.

Dead limbs on fruit or other trees should be promptly removed. The cut- ting should be below any diseased part, [illegible] will spread the infection. The saw [illegible] should not be applied to healthy trees unless first washed with carbolic [illegible] water.

As the forests go, insects that former- ly fed on them consume our crops with [illegible] consequences. We must en- courage and protect the birds. We [illegible] it will yet be seen that none [illegible] to be killed. Welcome the [illegible], crow and blackbird.

[illegible] may be made to [illegible] varnish- [illegible] of white [illegible] wax [illegible]

[illegible] typhoid fever, [illegible] filth disease [illegible] everywhere regarded [illegible] pollution of the air and [illegible] organics, usually [illegible] matter. Nine-tenths of the wells in villages are impregnant with sewage. Cerebro spinal fever, associat- ed with faulty house drainage, has shown itself in scattered districts in all sections of the State with a mortality record of 297. Erysipelas caused 208 deaths and malarial fevers 800. In the face of a possible importation of cholera it is important that the duties of local authorities should be conscientiously and energetically performed. The Asiatic scourge is not contagious from the person; its seed must find soil outside of the body to multiply in, and this soil is filth. The purity of water, soil and air, the prompt and thorough removal of all sources of pollution by decomposing organic filth will deprive foreign and domestic epidemics of all their terrors. That thorough soil drain- age will abate malarial fevers is beyond argument. Malarial influences have been created by the injudicious obstruc- tion of drainage channels and water courses. The influence of defective school hygiene deserves careful consider- ation and the watchful care of health boards, as it affects the welfare of com- ing generations.

Prof. Cook Heard From.

Prof. Cook lately wrote: "Having studied man and his relations fifty years, and having read Dr. E. B. Foote's Plain Home Talk, I say disinterestedly and emphatically that it is worth its weight in gold; nay, gold cannot measure its value to humanity. It is such a book as only such a healthy, well-balanced magnificent brain can produce. Dr. Foote is one of the few doctors who, in his writings and practice, seeks to cure, not kill; to save and prolong life, not obstruct, poison or destroy it; to teach people the structure, functions, facts forces and relations of the human brain and body, teach them the significance of life and how to make it healthy and happy, also how to make the most of it. Its information, instruction and advices in regard to parentage, marriage, social and sexual functions and relations; its facts and laws of mental, magnetic and temperamental adaption in marriage and parentage that children may be healthy, happy and viable, etc., etc., make it more valuable to suffering humanity than my poor words can express. What a vast amount of saving information for the people; a large book of 900 pages for only $1.50." PROF. J. H. COOK.

Living in New York.

After all, New York is the place to live. If you want to work, to dream, to study, to meditate, go to Boston, but if you want to feel the vital throb of the world's life, go to New York. Out from a half ideal life of books and ideas, and people who live largely for intel- lectual and immaterial results, you may go to New York and are suddenly pre- cipitated into its magnetic life; its strong attractions, repulsions; its depressions and its exaltations, and perhaps after a few days, if you are sensitive to the presence of these throbbing currents of life, you will suddenly leave it, feeling as if, in another hour, the pressure of this strangely electric atmosphere would be more than you could bear—and live. Would you get used to it in time? I question. Yet once away, the spell of its fascination is upon you, and you long for all this wine of life over again. Roses and champagne are not good for a steady diet, it may be, but the perfume and the exhilaration are about you, and you long to breathe it again.—[Corre- spondence Boston Traveller.

A Disappointed Book Agent.

Yesterday afternoon a book agent put in an appearance at a house in the suburbs of Austin, which is called the Athens of Texas. The proprietor of the establishment happened to be busy in the yard reproving, with a club, his dog that had stolen and eaten the meat. When the man saw the agent, he paused for a minute in his labors on the dog, and said:

"Just wait until I get through with this dog and then I'll attend to you. One at a time you know."

Then the agent discovered that he was at the wrong house and passed on, re- fusing to interfere in the family quarrel. —[Texas Siftings.

How He Earned a Pass.

A good story is told of a certain prom- inent railway director, who is equally renowned for his ability to take or make a joke. A railway employe, whose home is in the country, applied to him for a pass to visit his family. "You are in the employ of the company?" inquired the gentleman alluded to. "Yes." "You receive your pay regularly?" "Yes." "Well, now, suppose you were work- ing for a farmer, instead of the com- pany, would you expect your employer to take out his horse every Saturday [illegible]?" This seem- [illegible], but it wasn't. WASHED-OUT HAIR.

There is a sort of pallid, chalky com- plexion which the novelists call a "wash- ed-out complexion." It's ghastly enough and no mistake. Washed-out, faded discolored, or parti-colored hair is almost as repulsive and melancholy. Parker's Hair Balsam will restore your hair to its original color, whatever it was brown, auburn or black. Why wear moss on your head, when you may easily have lively, shining hair 44w4

TWO DANGEROUS SEASONS.

Spring and fall are times when so many people get sick. The changes in the weather are severe on feeble persons, and even those naturally strong are apt as they say, "to be feeling miserable." Then they are just in condition to be struck down with some kind of fever. A bottle or two of Parker's Tonic will in- vigorate the digestion, put the liver, kidneys and blood in perfect order, and prevent more serious attacks. Why suffer, and perhaps die, when so simple a medicine will save you? Good for both sexes and all ages. 44w4

Oil From Nature's Wells.

The skin on head kept soft and flexible by a secretion from the oil glands. When these are clogged the hair dries and falls off. Parker's Hair Balsam renews their action, restores the original color to the hair and makes it soft and glossy. It also eradicates dandruff. Not greasy, not a dye, deliciously perfumed. De- lightful for a lady's toilet table. The best of dressings. Preferable to all simi- lar articles because of its superior clean- iness and purity. 48w4

Are You Tired of Being Sick?

We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hun- dreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases It is pure, sure and pleasant. 48w4

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much bene- fit from Electric Bitters I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for the past eight years; the doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead, three bottles Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at 50 cents per bottle and Bucklen's Arnaca Salve at 25 cents per box by R. E. Phillips.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS.

They are the most important secretory organs. Into and through the Kidneys flow the waste fluids of the body, containing poisonous matter taken out of the system. If the Kidneys do not act prop- erly this matter is retained, the whole system becomes disordered and the following symptoms will follow: Head- ache, weakness, pain in the small of back and loins, flushes of heat, chills, with disordered stomach and bowels. You can thoroughly protect the Kid- neys by BURDOCK BLOOD BIT- TERS, and when any of these symptoms manifest them- selves you can quickly rid yourself of them by this best of all medicines for the Kid- neys. BURDOCK BLOOD BIT- TERS are sold everywhere at $1 per bottle, and one bottle will prove their efficacy.

[illegible] These are the most fashionable of all [illegible] grosgrain.

Jet will be more used than ever in dress and millinery.

For soft summer silks, yokes drawn on cords will be used again.

The bodice of a washing dress should never be made tight-fitting.

Long mantles of ecru canvas with stripes of gay colors are among the novelties.

Angora lace is only another name for "yak," that was so popular twelve years ago.

Spanish lace which will be used in pro- fusion, is now dyed to match the costume exactly.

The bow of ribbon on the side of the neck instead of in front is a fancy of the moment.

Flat turbans and conical-crowned, narrow-brimmed hats are equally fash- ionable for little girls.

The most correct glove for the prome- nade is one that matches the dress—a trifle darker, if possible.

Full skirts are trimmed with several rows of velvet in different widths, placed very closely together.

Red silk jerseys are prettily worn over skirts of printed satin or percale figured with red for house dresses.

The latest novelty in trimming is gold galloon embroidered on handsome India cachemire in the newest shades.

The simple and stylish wool canvas dresses will be much used for the street when cloth dresses are laid aside.

The Llama laces of long ago, moires of every color and design, all striped silks and brocades of a single color are revived.

To brighten up a black silk for sum- mer, a pleated vest of pale blue, pearl grey, rose color or striped white and black satin surah, is often used.

Skirts without flounces or pleatings, either perfectly plain or trimmed over with rows of braid or overlapping tucks, are growing in favor.

A small bow of bright-colored ribbon placed a little on one side of the high coiffure, sometimes directly on top, is the latest caprice for the hair.

Light woolen goods will in a great measure take the place of the muslins, cambrics and lawns, which are so diffi- cult to keep in a desirable state of fresh- ness.

Dressy parasols are ornamented with ribbons tied around the handle and top, formed into pretty looped bows, and one gore of the cover is similarly decorated.

Fan overskirts, pleated to the belt at the top, and drawn open lower down to be carried back and upward on the sides, will be the favorite for summer silks and woolens.

The latest fancy in hair dressing in Paris is the catogan loop in the nape of the neck, the high figure 8 on the top of the head, and fringes of hair and flat curls around the face.

A Wicked Boy.

The wickedest boy lives in Washing- ton. He visited the Observatory a few days ago with a large fire-fly he had caught, and with the aid of some mu- cilage stuck it in the center of the large lense of the telescope. That night, when the astronomer went to work, he perceived a blaze of light apparently in the heavens, and what amazed him the more was that it would give a couple of spurts and then die out, only to burst forth again in a second or two. He ex- amined it carefully for a few minutes, and then began to do sums to find out where in the heavens that extraordinary star was placed. He thought he found the locality, and next morning he tele- graphed all over the universe that he had discovered a new and remarkable star of the third magnitude in Orion; they gazed at it for hours until they were mad, and then they began to tele- graph to the man in Washington to know what he meant. The discoverer took another look and found that the new star had moved 18,000,000,000 miles in twenty-four hours, and upon exam- ining it closely was alarmed to perceive that it had legs. When he went on the dome next morning to polish up the glass he found the lightning-bug. The bill for telegraphing dispatches amount- ed to $2,600 and now the astronomer wants to find that boy.

EXZEMA OR SALT RHEUM.

ANOTHER CLEAR AND POSITIVE RECOV- ERY—AN ELDERLY LADY'S LETTER.

Among the numerous letters received by Dr Kennedy testifying to notable salt rheum cures the following will be found of inetrest to our read ers who May accept our assurance of its authen ticity and truthfulness.

WORCESTER MASS., March 23, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Roundout, N. Y.

Dear Sir: Until three years I have been a suf- ferer from Salt Rheum. It followed upon an at- tack of erysipelas, for which I was a long time under medical treatment. I placed myself again in the hands of the physicians, who did, I have no doubt all that could be done. One thing, how- ever, is sure, I was none the better for all the med- icine they gave me. The painful and unsightly disease made continual progress, until I began to fear I should never get rid of.

By means of one of those accidents that often result in so much blessings I had my attention called to your favorite remedy, which I was told would surely do me good. I used it and within a much shorter time than I would have believed possible, I received a permanent cure. I am now perfectly free from Salt Rheum. What a com- fort this is and how it places your wonderful med- icine in my opinion you may guess at but never know. I keep it now constantly in the house as a family medicine.

Yours Truly
MRS. DINAH PHAIR.

Mrs Phair sometime since, went on a visit to Kansas, found a case of Salt Rheum, could not get Favorite Remedy, sent to New York City for it, and cured the case.

VOLUME 17—NUMBER

REST.

[illegible] has tired—
And what is that I have long desired,
Rest—only Rest.

'Tis hard to toil, when toil is almost vain,
In barren ways;
'Tis hard to sow, and never garner grain,
In harvest days.

The burden of my days is hard to bear,
But God knows best ;
And I have prayed—but vain has been my prayer
For rest—sweet rest.

'Tis hard to plant in spring, and never reap
The autumn yield;
'Tis hard to till, and when 'tis tilled to weep
O'er fruitless field.

And so I cry, a weak and human sigh,
So heart-oppressed;
And so I sigh, a weak and human cry,
For rest—for rest.

My way has wound across the desert years,
And cares infest
My path; and through the flowing of hot tears
I pine for rest.

'Twas always so, when still a child I laid
On mother's breast
My weary little head; e'en then I prayed
And now, for rest,

And I am restless still; 'twill soon be o'er,
For down the west,
Life's sun is setting, and I see the shore
Where I shall rest.

IDA'S PERIL.

"I see nothing as yet, Maggie. I do hope Jesse will not disappoint us."

"Have no fear, Ida," replied Maggie, "and I declare, here they are."

A carriage stopped before the house.

Both ladies descended to receive Jesse and his friend, Arnold, who led the way to the carriage, accompanied by the sisters, Ida and May Bronson, who were visiting their cousins, the Fosters.

"By the by, Ida," said Jesse. "I have a letter for you."

"You have brought me ill news," she said; "the letter is from Eugene Hargrave, telling me he will call to-morrow."

* * * * * * *

"Ida, I do hope you'll make some alterations in your toilet to to receive Eugene Hargrave. The shade is very unbecoming to your complexion."

"I dislike Mr. Hargrave, Pattie, and will not dress specially for him."

"Of course you are at liberty to do as you choose, but some deference ought to be shown him. He is the richest man in the country and very influential" said Pattie.

"What do I care for that!"

Further conversation was interrupted by the arrival of the man in question, and Ida rose to welcome Mr. Hargrave, who was rather handsome, but showed marks of dissipation.

When Ida and May were about to return to London, Mr. Hargrave was profuse in his expression of regret, and remarked, among other things, that he would do himself the pleasure to call on them in town.

A fortnight after he did so, and Mr. Bronson, out of politeness, showed him every respect, and his visits became as frequent as they had been in the country.

One evening after dinner, when the gentlemen, consisting of Jesse Stevens, Bert Sprague, Mr. Hargrave, and Mr. Bronson, were lingering over their wine, Hargrave tapped Mr. Bronson on the shoulder and requested a private interview.

The old gentleman, excusing himself, took Hargrave's arm and led him into the library, while Jesse and Bert sought the ladies in the drawing room.

"My dear Mr. Bronson, I am about to confer quite an honor on your family," Hargrave said, waving his hand majestically.

"Ah, really? I am delighted, Mr. Hargrave. You have shown decided preference for my home and its inmates and I need not assure that I am greatly honored thereby."

"Thank you. Now you have seen my decided attentions to Miss Bronson, but ere they go any farther may I enquire how much you propose to give her as a dowry."

"Your request surprises me," answered Mr. Bronson. "I have given the matter no thought. I must know how my daughter regards you before replying."

"You surely cannot doubt my ultimate success with Ida?" Remember what a marriage with me means."

"I am aware of your position," was the retort, "and to avoid further pain, you had best consult Miss Ida herself, and after her decision we can arrange matters amicably."

And he rose, thanked him, and left the room, promising to send Ida.

Hargrave, adjusting his eyeglass and refastening his bouquet upon his coat, waited for Ida's appearance.

Presently she entered, bright and smiling, and looking wondrously lovely in a bright blue silk dinner-dress.

"Papa said that you wished to see me," she said quietly.

"Your father was right. Ida—there, don't be surprised—I wish to enquire whether Cupid has ever touched that heart which I hope to win for my own?"

"Not knowing whose heart you refer to, I cannot exactly say."

"I mean, are you aware of the drift of my attentions to you?"

"That is rather pointed; pray explain."

He began to grow uneasy. He had made but poor headway thus far.

"I ask you to be my wife," he blurted forth, after a pause; to become Mrs Hargrave, and reign mistress of my heart and fortune."

"Mr. Hargrave, I recognize this honor conferred upon me, but must decline it, since my affections are centered elsewhere. I esteem you as a friend, but [illegible]

Hargrave, grasping her arm, hissed: [illegible] you conduct me to the drawing room, unless I privileged to go alone?"

"I have only this reply to make—that you have grossly insulted me, and if I ever have the opportunity to retaliate, I will not spare you. Make my excuses to the others, and remember me as your enemy."

"Shame, sir!" cried Ida indignantly. "And now accompany me to the drawing room, as your abrupt departure might cause comment."

Together they entered the apartment, and shortly after Hargrave made his excuses and left the house.

Ida related her interview, and they applauded her mode of proceeding.

"Say no more about it," requested Ida, and she sat down to the piano and gave them some music. Then the party broke up to meet the next evening at Mrs. Baldwin's at Tell Cottage.

There, to Ida's great surprise, she met Mr. Hargrave; she bowed coldly to his salutation, and exchanged the formalities of the evening. She firmly declined dancing with him, however.

"You will excuse me, Mr. Hargrave, but after your threats to me. I must decline to dance with you."

"You are kind to remind me of them, Miss Bronson, and if my intention had been to forget the past, your words would have spurred me to renew the old score."

"I care less than ever for your threats, sir." And she she turned proudly away from him.

Stung to the quick, Hargrave sprang forward, and would have rudely detained her had not a gentleman come forward—Arnold Maynard—and interfered.

"How dare you molest a lady?" he said. Then, turning to Ida, he continued: "It was fortunate I appeared in time."

"By what authority do you interfere?" And Hargrave advanced with menacing aspect.

"Take that for your answer," exclaimed Arnold, violently pushing him back. "If you were a gentleman, there would be no need for questioning me."

"You shall hear from me, sir."

"Not another word; you are too cowardly to fight."

Hargrave slunk away, muttering to himself.

"What a bragging idiot he is!" said Arnold, after he had left. I detest men of his calibre."

"He must have sprung from an obscure stock, for everything about him is base and low." And arm in arm they sought the ball-room, and in the waltz forgot their annoyance.

On the way home, it was agreed to spend a month at Harley Bay, and preparations were begun on the following day.

The third day after the reception at Tell cottage, the party, consisting of Ida, Belle and May, Jesse, Bert and Arnold, found themselves domiciled at Harley Bay, determined on an enjoyable time.

Having discovered that an old house upon the cliff was haunted, they resolved to pay it a visit. and on that evening, when the moon hung low, and everything was propitious, the party set forth.

Ida had taken a good position upon a rock high above the ruins, and made sport of those who were more slow in ascending.

But suddenly her voice was hushed, and with a frightened look she pointed to the extreme end of the building.

All eyes were instantly fixed thereon, and they saw a light moving to and fro, and a ghostly figure came in sight.

"There is the ghost!" at last stammered Ida, recovering her voice. "How kind of him not to keep us waiting."

This jest, coming at such a grave moment, produced its effect, and peal after peal of laughter followed it.

Bert, struggling to climb higher, lost his hold, tumbled, and landed with a bruised head among the party.

"This is really alarming," said Belle. "We had better remained at home."

"Oh it's nothing," answered Bert, I was trying to elevate myself, and had a fall in consequence. Why, where is your ghost?"

Sure enough, the spirit had departed, and darkness reigned supreme.

"Who will follow me to yon ruins and explore its hidden mysteries?" tragically cried Ida.

"Lead on, fair maid, I follow!" cried Arnold in the same tone.

They decended, and shortly found themselves in the ruins.

But their courage failed when the moon veiled its light beneath a cloud, and the hoot of an owl emanated from the darkness.

"I think we had better defer our explorations till to-morrow. We have not provided for any emergency, and I am tired of this rambling."

And Belle proclaimed herself exhausted by the scrambling over the boulders.

This was agreed upon and entering their carrages they drove away.

The next morning Ida was up bright and early, and indulged in a row all by herself, refusing escort.

They had to humor her, and gave themselves up to various pursuits during her absence.

When the hour for dinner had arrived and she had not returned, they began to grow uneasy.

The gentlemen entered separate boats and departed in opposite directions, each hoping to be the fortunate one in finding the truant.

As hour after hour passed, and none of the searchers returned, the ladies were really alarmed; and, added to all, a severe storm arose, dashing the waters of the bay into large waves, which beat the shore with a dull sound.

On the following morning a letter reached the hotel, throwing some light upon the matter. It was anonymous, and [illegible] Ida and [illegible]

Bert sought the landlord of the hotel and questioned him.

"Why, yes," stammered the host, "such a person as you describe came here shortly before your arrival, and made rather pointed enquiries as about my expected visitors. He was very particular, too, about obtaining a description of the haunted house."

Thanking him, Bert sought the party and imparted his new idea to them.

In the afternoon of the same day the party found themselves in the shadow of the ruins. Bidding Arnold and a few others keep a lookout on the outside, Bert entered the building and picked his way among the winding and obstructed passages.

Having reached a dead wall, he discovered a huge iron door that obstructed his further progress. It was the work of but a moment to shatter the lock with a stone near by, and swinging open the door, he entered and found himself in a large empty apartment, from which several doors led in different directions. Ere he could prevent it, he received a blow on the head, and some one rushed past him.

Recovering himself, he pursued the person, only to have a door shut in his face.

On hearing shouts from without, and going to the door by which he had entered, he saw a man bearing the figure of a woman in his arms, running at full speed through the hall.

He followed in pursuit and emerged into daylight, only to find the man with his burden climbing the steep cliff against which the ruined building had been constructed.

One glance at the woman convinced Bert that it was Ida, and that the man was none other than Hargrave.

He put down his burden, and still holding Ida by the arm, Hargrave glared at his pursuer with malignant hatred and the fire of insanity gleaming in his eyes.

"Save me, Bert!" cried Ida, piteously, stretching forth her arms in supplication.

Bert made a step forward, but the voice of Hargrave arrested him.

"Not a step further unless you wish to see her hurled down this abyss! I told her my time had come and it has. Advance at your peril!"

His voice was hoarse with passion, and he pushed Ida to the edge of the precipice and held her there.

It was an awful predicament, and the sight well-nigh drove Ida's anxious friend crazy. But who was that stealing from rock to rock, every moment crawling nearer and nearer toward Hargrave and his victim? Yes, was Jesse.

Cat-like he moves toward the desired object, and while Hargrave was still Ida's insensible form over the precipice, he had reached the top and in a moment seized Ida, and dropping her gently to the safe portion of the cliff, clutched Hargrave by the throat, and essayed to bring him to the ground.

Bert and Arnold now made their way upward, just in time to save Jesse from being hurled down the yawning gulf, and binding Hargrave they carried the insensible girl down to the level ground.

It seems that Hargrave met Ida on the bay with her boat, and while seemingly wishing to say a few words, had cast a handkerchief saturated with choloroform over her nostrils, and then secured her without a struggle. When she recovered she found herself a prisoner in the haunted ruin.

Jesse, in his search had come across the empty boat in the neighborhood of the ruins, and imagining she had gone to them, had done likewise, only to find himself a prisoner when he wished to returned to daylight.

The shattering of the lock by Burt had given him his freedom, and it was he who had struck Bert, thinking it Hargrave, who had taunted him with his capture. He had not discovered his mistake until he saw Hargrave rush by him with Ida in his arms, and he immediately started in pursuit, with the result described.

Of course Jesse and Ida were soon married, and equally, of course, were "happy ever after."

GENERAL GRANT'S [illegible]

"Someone Had Blundered!" Can it be Possible?

The New York Herald says: "If General Grant should recover from a disease which should prove not to have been what it has been described, his medical attendants * * will be expected to explain the reasons for one of the most remarkable instances of discrepancy ever recounted in the history of medical practice."

The other day an eminent young physician in the last stages of consumption, unable longer to talk, called for pen and paper and indistinctly wrote this advice to his physicians: "Make dying comfortable."

This seems to have been the sole purpose of General Grant's attending physicians. They were making dying comfortable, but they were not curing their patient. He amazes them by getting better!

The utter failure rightly to diagnose and properly to treat General Grant's disorder was a serious blunder, emphasizing what has so often been said, that professional treatment, being purely experimental, is just as likely to be wrong as right.

Had the General an ulcer on his arm, the physicians would have treated it scientifically, very scientifically. He might have recovered or they might have cut his arm off. Some dear old soul of a grandmother, however, might have treated the sore by some "old woman's remedy" and healed it, but there would have been no professional science in such a proceeding, as her remedy would not be one recognized by the code!

The general's physicians excuse themselves, we are told, because the condition of the throat was hidden from sight. There are thousands of cases where disease is hidden from sight, where the symptoms are very obscure and conflicting. The physicians will treat every-day's symptoms, but they do not cure, and finally the patient dies. Then they discover they have made a mistake! A horrible mistake! The other day a prominent merchant in a neighboring city was found dead in bed. A post mortem examination revealed the fact that one of his other vital organs was entirely decayed, and yet his physicians had been treating him for heart disease!

Some one has blundered.

For weeks the American public have been waiting the unwelcome tidings of General Grant's death. To-day the general is up and around, and riding out.

People get well often in spite of what their doctors say and do. Why? By will power? No. By faith? No.

They live because outside the medical profession and medical pretense there are effective remedial agencies in nature which, though "unrecognized" by the code, have supreme power over disease, and in thousands of cases win triumphs where the so called scientific treatment utterly fails.

A prominent ex-cabinet officer is to-day on the very edge of the grave, suffering from an extreme disorder of the liver. His doctors know they cannot cure him. They simply are making dying comfortable.

The agony of death in many cases is read by surrounding friends in screams of pain, in convulsions of nerve, in spasms of torture—the fixed eye, the chilly breath, the dreadful coughing, body—indicate the limitations of professional skill.

Seven-tenths of the deaths of this country every year are from hepatic and renal disorders, over which physicians have so little power. They will give this, that and the other thing to make dying comfortable, but they know they cannot cure, and yet they will not permit the use of remedies "unauthorized" by their code, whether they are allopathic or homeopathic. If the system, as is common at this time of the year, has no tone, and one has tired and depressed feelings, the doctor will tell you that the blood needs purifying, but he will not tell you, what he knows to be true, that the blood is impure because the liver and kidneys are not performing their blood-purifying functions.

The failure of the physicians in General Grant's case ought to have an eye-opening effect upon the public. It ought to see the futility of trusting entirely in a profession whose practice is so largely experimental. The test of merit is success and when any agency has won a record proved by the testimony of prominent men and women in all ranks of society, it stands to reason that such a preparation is worthy of universal confidence. Who has not heard of it? Who has not used it? Who can gainsay the statement that it has wrought greater benefit for mankind than anything ever discovered inside the ranks of the medical profession? And yet many physicians, bound hand and foot to their code will not allow nor will they prescribe the use of Warner's safe cure. Nevertheless, spite of their small-minded bigotry, it multiplies instances of its singular merit by thousands every day, rests satisfied with the record it has won and challenges comparison with the record of the most reputable physician.

It is a terrible thing to lose our friends, especially if we find out afterwards that they might have been saved.

We are glad General Grant is getting well. He deserves to live and in living he will emphasize the fact that physicians do not have a monopoly over disease; that "scientific medicine," so called is not infallible; that all remedial agencies were not born with doctors and will not die with them.

THE PROPER THING.

The pointed brim bonnet is very popular.

Heavy beaded cords are used for looping skirts.

Military braiding and buttons are in high fashion.

Canvas scarfs knotted into bows are used on bonnets.

Black beaded tulle bonnets will be worn the coming season.

Plaited and panel effects remain fashionable on walking skirts.

A single rosette or fan-shaped bow is the trimming for plain straw bonnets.

Moire ribbons are more effective than velvet for trimming lace bonnets.

Small bonnets remain in favor, but are slightly larger than those of last year.

Green, in every shade it is possible to create, will be one of the leading colors.

Round hats are of the shape worn last winter, with high crown and close brim.

Infant's caps are made of Oriental, or of Valenciennes lace laid smoothly over or else Tam O'Shanter caps made of white embroidered muslin.

Oxidized jewelry is to be again worn The new designs in belt buckles and clasps of all kinds are very handsome.

Long polonaises are going out of fashion. There is a decided preference for plaited skirts and short pointed drapery.

Rough plaid ulsters and Tam O'Shanters are fashionable for little girls. Broad old-fashioned Roman sashes are coming in again.

Short mantles, Jerseys, cloth and silk jackets, Newmarkets, raglans, and dolman visites of medium length, are already fashionably worn as street wraps.

Dresses for little girls are made with full waists gathered into a belt, and in the ever popular Gretchen or peasant style, which has a low-necked waiste to wear over guimpe.

For girls a year old, there are lace caps with a deep lace curtain and a ruche of lace all around. They are trimmed with a bow of old-fashioned gauze ribbon, or a cluster of tiny rose buds.

Stripes are very fashionably worn as underskirts with tunics and bodices or polonaises of plain material, with the striped goods introduced on the bodice as a plastron, waistcoat, or collar and revers.

DESPITE the repeated announcements of the press throughtout the State that Gov. Hill would veto the Niagara Park bill he on Thursday last gave his approval to the same by his signature, which meets with the commendation of the best people of the State. This does away with the twenty-five-cent-every-time-you-turn-around charges heretofore so disagreeable at the Falls, and also scores a credit mark for the governor.

THERE are various accounts sent of what are the exact duties of the arbitrating commissioners in London. The negotiations are progressing quietly. Great Britain has recalled Lumsden and Stewart to use the information they can furnish. It will be weeks before they can get home. The storm of opposition rises high in England, and if Russia should decline to withdaw her troops from any point they have taken, and make the negotiations turn upon the point of "honor" between the two countries, of which the dispatches say so much, the tide may yet overflow its banks.—[Utica Herald.

RUSSIA AND CHINA.

A Quarrel Over the Russo-Chinese Boundray Line.

LONDON, May 4.—A dispatch from Shanghai says the dispute between the Chinese and Russian governments over the Manchoorian frontier question is assuming alarming proportions. The Chinese commissioner appointed to meet the Russian commissioner for the purpose of settling the dispute arising out of the frontier and definitely fixing on a dividing line between Russian and Chinese possessions in Asia, has been awaiting the arrival of the Russian commissioner for several weeks, but as yet that official has not put in an appearance. The Chinese officials are indignant at this and openly accuse Russia of acting in bad faith. They assert that the same tactics pursued by Russia in dealing with the English with regard to the Russo-Afghan frontier are being repeated. The Chinese government will insist on its claims with regard to the frontier line and is fully determined to enforce them.

Teachers' Institute.

The time for holding the Institute is at hand and I trust such arrangements have been made by teachers and trustees as will insure the attendance of of all teachers at the opening of the session. One week is all too short a time for doing the work we need and therefore the necessity of having it all active work. The good results of the institute have been so manifest that the State has made it a permanent institution, and school officers have found the difference so great in favor of teachers who attend them, that no teacher can afford to be found wanting in this respect.

[illegible] belonging as it does to [illegible] a time not heretofore given. The opening paper "The New Orleans Exposition" by E. V. Smalley is a concise statement of the comparative value of this with the Centennial Exhibition, showing its points of weakness and its superiority as well. So little has been written upon this subject, the article is timely and thoroughly interesting. Of the serials, "The Rise of Silas Lapham," a story of the times by W. D. Howells reaches a point in its history which leaves the reader as helpless to foresee the end, and straighten out the way, as ever Silas himself when he at last drew reign at the door of Minister Sewell with his wife Persis, determined to seek his council. These latest chapters bring out in full the versatile power and the genius for keen observation and knowledge of human nature possessed by this great writer. More than the usual installment of war papers, so interesting and so fully illustrative are given.

Cheese Market.

(FROM THE UTICA HERALD.)

AT UTICA May 4.

The market was very tame until late in the afternoon. It was understood that the price would be the same as last week, but the fancies were not so strong. Until nearly six o'clock it was thought that 10⅛c. would be the top. Then it leaked out that a few lots had exceeded that price. Fine cheese, in fact, seemed to be in good demand, and there is no reason why they should not be. The market was well cleaned up in New York last week and there is room for that class of goods. The make in the country is not running heavy, as will be seen by comparison with last year to be found below. The factories have quite as many cows, and in some instances even more, but their make is thus far lighter. A few cows were turned out by this time a year ago, but at present there is no prospect of pasture feed for two or three weeks to come.

Quotations for the the day are as follows: 70 boxes at 9c.; 31 lots, 1,993 boxes at 10c.; 2 lots 110 boxes; at 10⅛c.; 11 lots, 659 boxes, at 10¼c.; 5 lots, 290 boxes, at 10½c. Sales, 3,122 boxes; commissions, 769 boxes; total 4,891. Ruling price 10c. Transactions of one year ago 4,549 boxes, ruling price 12⅝c. Two years ago 4,178 boxes, ruling price 11¼c. The falling off in price is very marked and cruel, but, to it put in Charles Lamb's way it is compensated for by the shortness of the make. "You come late to business," said his employers. "Yes, but then I go home so early," replied Lamb.

LITTLE FALLS May 4.

CHEESE.—There was great interest shown in our market to-day, not because the offerings are greater, for they are not quite as large as last week, but the prices lately paid here have not been satisfactory to dairymen, who are sharply on the lookout for some signs of improvement. With much less cheese offered than was marketed for the corresponding weeks of 1883 and 1884, and prices two to three cents lower, dairymen are showing unusual solicitude as to the prospect of their staple product. Salesmen find considerable difficulty in placing their cheese at prices they consider high enough, and as on the previous sales days, much of the stock went forward on commission. The offerings were brought in to day and inspected and sold mainly at the freight house. Transactions made are as follows:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
1	48	7½ cts.
3	80	8 cts.
3	140	9 cts.
3	75	9¼ cts.

FARM DAIRY.—There were 150 boxes farm cheese sold at 7 @ 8¼c., most at the latter price.

BUTTER.—Butter shows no improvement, in fact prices here to-day are a little below those of a week ago. Seventy-five packages sold at 17 @ 18c. for farm dairy and 20c. for creamery.

MORTGAGE SALE.—Mortgagor Ephraim D. Mowry, mortgaged Frank Dilts, assignee Joseph W. Butler, mortgage dated August ninth, 1877, and recorded in Oswego county clerk's office August 3d, 1877, in Book 114, of mortgages at page 127. The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice, is $206.52. The mortgaged property is substantially described in said mortgage as all that tract or parcel of land, situate in the town of Richland, county of Oswego and State of New York, and being part of Lot No. No. 86, of township No. 21, of Scriba's patent as follows: beginning on the west line of said Lot 25 chains and 2 links from the north-west corner thereof, at a stake 29¼ links S.15° west of center of large leaning maple, and runs thence easterly along the south line of lands sold by John Tyler to Charles Springer, to a stake 48 links north 81° west of the north-west corner of the grist mill; thence northerly along land sold to said Springer to the center of the highway running easterly and westerly past school house in district No. 18, in said town of Richland; thence easterly along the center of said highway, as run in 1840 to lands formerly owned by the late William Gillispie; thence southerly and easterly along the said Gillispie's lands to the east line of said Lot No. 86; thence southerly along said line to the south-east corner of said lot; thence westerly along the south line of said lot 86 to the west side of the mill pond, and Grind Stone Creek, at high water mark, and thence northerly along said [illegible] creek at high water mark, to the east corner of land owned by Oliver Mowry; thence along the north line of said Oliver Mowry's land to land formerly occupied by P. M. Cox; thence northerly along said Cox's land to the east corner of the same; thence westerly to the center of the highway; thence northerly along said highway to Grind Stone Creek at low water mark; thence westerly along said creek at low water mark to Oliver Mowry's land; thence along said Oliver Mowry's land to the west line of said lot No. 86; thence northerly along said line of lot to the place of beginning, subject to the exceptions and reservations contained in a deed from John Tyler and wife and Henry Gillispie to Ephraim D. Mowry. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that the premises, described in said mortgage, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, at the office of the Lewis House, in the village of Fulton, Oswego county, N. Y., on the 2nd day of May, 1885, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon and said mortgage will be thereby foreclosed.

There are opinions and opinions. My opinion is that the changes in gentlemen's fashions are much less radical than those of ladies, [illegible]

[illegible] from coming to [illegible] the ladies department, by the elaborate display of silk and kid gloves, collars, corsets, ladies' cotton underwear, buttons in infinite variety, handkerchiefs of every style, escurial lace scarfs, oriental pompadour and Spanish lace fichus, and in fact, everything to please the feminine eye was artistically arranged from every available spot. A fine line of parasols were placed on exhibition at astonishingly low prices. In the rear of the store every conceivable variety of shawls consisting of white and colored cashmere, Persian, etc., and close by a fine display of carpets of every style and price, Symrna, velvet and brussels rugs, lace and white bed spreads, lace curtains in setts and by the yard. The display of dress goods was magnificent. Among them were velvet in all colors, imported brocade velvets, flannels for combination suits, summer silks in every shade, Mascotte, Rhadzimer and Tricotine black silks and an endless variety of Nun's veiling, albatross, ginghams, Chambrays, cretonnes, lawns, and all patterns of white dress goods. Among the black woolen goods were silk warp Henrietta's, Tricot's, Ottomans, Drap De Almas, Jerseys, etc. In the notion department were fancy toilet sets, beaded gimps, oxidized clasps, bags and belts to match, and fans of every variety. Owing to our limited space we are unable to give but a faint idea of the elegant display of dry goods made by this enterprising firm. All who failed to visit the Bee Hive during the three days of their opening, missed a grand opportunity of seeing what an elaborate stock of goods is carried by Bennett & Stewart.

A Probable Suicide.

PENNELLVILLE, May 3.—This community has been stirred up by the supposed suicide of a girl who has been working for George Benedict, who lives on a farm about one mile north of here. The girl's name was Frankie Thompson, unmarried. She had a child about five years ago, but since that time her conduct has been good. She commenced work for Mr. Benedict April 1st, and he speaks very highly of her. About a week ago she received a letter from a man named Owens at Syracuse, but who is not the father of her child. After that she seemed very down hearted, and to feel very badly. While reading the papers last evening she made the remark that "a great many people were committing suicide now-a-days." No one took much notice of the expression, but she left the house some time in the night, jumping from the second story, a distance of some 12 feet. She was met about 4:30 a. m., to-day by one of the section men who walks the track ahead of the morning train. She was then on the track going toward the station and has not been seen since. She left an envelope in her room directed to Owens, Syracuse, with stamps on but no letter inside. She also left the following letter:

"Dear mother. Do not think ill of me for committing this rash act, for I have nothing to live for. I have already been a curse to you and all the rest of my sisters and brothers; but you have been one of the kindest of mothers. Be kind to my darling Mina (her child.) She is all the world to me but you can bring her up better than I can. Worthy (a brother-in-law) has been kind to me. Now, mother look to God and he will carry you through. Mr Benedict's folks need not think that they are to blame, for they are not, and I hope they will forgive me, for I do not care to live any longer. May God keep you in his tenderest care. To a loving mother."

(Signed) FRANKIE.

P. S.—"Good bye forever. I have such a pain in my head."

On the back of the letter as it was folded was written "gone forever." There is a pond about forty rods east of the station that has been drawn off, but no trace of her can be found. There is small lake just west of the station, where tracks have been found to lead from the railroad track to the edge of the water. Her child is with her widowed mother at Caughdenoy. She was a fine looking girl and aged 24 years.—[Utica Herald.

LATER.—The pond has been thoroughly dragged and the fields and woods scoured without result. Last night about 10 o'clock Miss Thompson arrived at the house of her sister and asked for admission. She offered no explanation of her strange conduct.

Many of the sidewalks about town are in a critical condition and will sooner or later be the cause of some serious accident. Why not act promptly in this matter and repair them at once?

Mrs. Walton of the Salvation Army, has denied the story current upon the streets, that she was anxious to give away her child, thus enabling her to devote her time exclusively to the army.

John R. Allen of Sandy Creek, Oswego county, has indentified two gold watches and chains that were found in the box recently dug up at Oswego Falls, as having been stolen from him a year ago last fall.

There is much talk at South Granby over the marriage of James Russell to his step mother, Mrs. Eben Russell. A band composed of various instruments has been out for two nights making it lively for them.

W. J. Watson's increasing drug business has necessitated the removal of Wm. Hillick, the jeweler, into Lathrop's confectionary store. This skilled workman occupies the south window where he will be pleased to meet his friends.

Word has been received from Mr. Slater Laycock who is in Canandaigua for his health, that there is a marked improvement in his condition, and it is confidently expected that he will soon entirely recover his mental faculties.

Geo. S. Dada of this village, who has been for some time practicing law with his father, S. N. Dada, is about to establish himself in Phœnix, where he will practice his profession. THE TIMES wishes him unbounded success in his new field of labors.

Among the decisions handed down by the General Term at Utica recently, was the following: Thomas G. Poole, respondent. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad company, appellant. Motion for re-arguement denied, with $10 costs.

The thirty-seven bodies placed in the receiving vault in Mt. Adnah during the winter, have been buried the week past, and twelve others have been taken up and reburied. Under the efficient management of Mr. Parkhouse, the cemetery never presented a better aspect than it does this spring.

We have been informed by good authority, that the Catholic society of this village, soon contemplate erecting a fine large edifice on the corner lot opposite their present location. The old church will then be converted into a Catholic school. The location is one of the finest in town. Work will be commenced, it is said, very soon.

We have a base ball club and will soon have a street railroad. What more does Oswego need to make her happy.—[Oswego Times and Express. It needs a detachment of about twelve wide awake salvation army soldiers such as Fulton has had for the past three months. Its happiness would then be sublime.

Last Saturday occurred the informal opening of the dry goods department of H. & A. Rosenbloom. The capacious store was thronged all day with visitors, viewing the tastefully arranged stock of dress goods, gloves, parasols, fans, etc. As fine a line of these goods as has ever been shown in Fulton, were displayed. In a few days, when the rest of their goods arrive a more formal opening will take place, to which the public are cordially invited.

Last Monday evening the Foresters opened a four nights' engagement in Stephens' Opera house, and played [illegible]

A Strange Marriage.

About two miles this side of the village of Mexico lives a widow woman by the name of Marley, with her daughter Cora, on a small piece of land. Mr. Marley committed suicide four or five years ago. For several years there has lived in that vicinity, a negro about 28 years of age, named Andrew Grey. He has borne a good character, and barring his color is considered good looking. Grey has been a frequent visitor at the Marley house, and earned the gratitude of mother and daughter by assisting them to pay off a $200 mortgage on their home. Last week Grey and Cora concluded to get married, and upon learning that blacks and whites were forbidden to marry in this state, they proceeded to Kingston, Canada, where the knot was tied. They then returned to their home near Mexico. The affair creates no excitement among the people in that vicinity.

Rink and Polo Items.

The three legged race last Saturday evening was won by Geo Sylvester and Frank Faulkner.

A game of polo was played last Saturday evening between the Fultons and Crescents and was won by the former team in three straight goals. Time, 9 minutes.

The Fulton polo team have again withdrawn from the Star League. It was rather discouraging to contend with professional players, who were paid a good salary, and always being beaten, so with the Empires they sent in their resignations.

A new polo team was organized last Monday night. They will be known as the "Mother Hubbards." Elaborate costumes have been prepared, and we can promise the public a rare treat the first time they make their appearance.

The game of polo between the Empire Crescents of Syracuse and the Fultons at the rink last evening was witnessed by a fair sized audience considering the inclemency of the weather. The home club played a creditable game but were defeated by the visitors, 3 to 1. Stevenson, first rusher for the Fultons, did some good playing. Last evening was the first out of nine games in which the Empires lost a goal. The club have decided to remain over and play the Fulton Crescents this afternoon at 3 o'clock and and the Fultons again to-night. A hotly contested game may be expected.

Licenses Granted.

The Fulton Board of Excise met last Monday evening, and elected J. N. Sharp, chairman, P. Cullen, clerk, W. C. Stephens attorney. The following licenses were granted:

HOTELS.—J. C. Dresser, Angeline Woodruff, James Clark, G. W. Briggs, Timothy Sullivan, James Mead, T. S. Burden, D. E. Morfa, Elizabeth Keller.

SALOON.—Frank McNamara, James Barnes, Wm. H. Case, M. Pomphret, J. McDonough, Jones & Roberts, James Elder, J. Otis, M. Conley, Gilbert Wallace, Palmer Carver.

STORE.—W. J. Boomer.

DRUG STORE.—H. C. Giesler.

The Board adjourned to meet again this evening at 7 o'clock in the office of W. C. Stephens.

The Carpenter Case.

There has been no jury drawn for the extraordinary term of the Court of Oyer and Terminer appointed for May 12, to try Carpenter, the clerk believing that the jury would be drawn in open court. The error may result in sending the case over to the October term, as there will be no opportunity to try the case, at the June term. District Attorney Mead says that if the question of irregularity can be eliminated from the case he will go on with the trial next week. It is doubtful if the defense would waive the irregularity, even if they could legally do so. In the event of the Special Term next week going down, the District Attorney will make an effort to have the June term adjourned to some time in September, at Oswego, for the purpose of trying the case.

Charles Atwood of Oswego Falls has invented and put into successful operation a simple device to bend links of any size without heating, each one being the exact copy of the rest, at the rate of 3,000 per hour. Another point gained is in the cost of the iron when cut and tied in bundles as is usual.

Canal Superintendent Shanahan is reported as saying in regard to the coming navigation season: "The outlook is very bad, and I fear we will have a poor season. So long as the fight between the Central and West Shore roads is kept up the canals will suffer; it can't be helped. If the roads return to the regular legitimate rates the canal must do well."

"We cannot but smile," says an exchange, "When a man tells us he cannot take his local paper because he wants a city paper. He might as well say he cannot afford bread because he intends having sponge cake. Meanwhile he has to ask his neighbors about the local news and notices and the local paper goes on building up his place of business and conveniences without his support. It is not manly and we say without hesitation that there is something out of joint with a man who does not support his local paper."

Citizens interested in educational matters and its advancements, will soon have an opportunity of attending one of the most interesting events of the year, namely the commencement exercises of the graduating class of Fulton Union school and Academy. The members of the class and their teachers find the time pretty well taken up with the hard studies and the large amount of work which is always required to successfully carry out the program rendered on these occasions. Few public schools in towns of this size throughout the state, excel in management and rapid advancement, of students than the one over which Prof. Boothby holds power.

Try [illegible] on Broadway [illegible]

[illegible] The first [illegible] point to captivate the eye was [illegible] with a trim made up of summer silks, dress goods and artificial flowers of rare beauty. The arrangement of the dress goods and silks were simple in design yet commanding the attention of all. The throng of people who found their way into the interior by the north door on First street, paused and gazed with longing eyes on the elegant display of summer silks on the left at special prices, also wool dress goods in all shades and patterns. Directly across and on the right, was the notion department comprising laces, collars, buttons, handkerchiefs, hand bags, parasols, etc., etc. The exhibit of hosiery was certainly complete and created quite a sensation among the ladies. Among the display in gloves was a novel style in kids, without hook or button. In the centre of the north store stood a magnificent bank of dress goods in silks, satins, velvets and plain surrahs with brocades to match in combination colors. The Oneida street windows were adorned with tapestries, curtain drapery and rich plushes. On the right-hung snow-white bed spreads and eider-down, now so fashionable for childrens' cloaks, while on the left and above hung ladies' underwear. The domestic department including cottons, calicoes, ginghams, towels, etc., was complete. In the south corner of the store was an elegant line of carpets and rugs of the latest styles arranged in an artistic manner. At the foot of the stairs, leading to the main carpet room on the next floor, lay all the shaeds of felt and plushes for embroidery work. The millinery department was a scene of splendor, and evinced the elaborate and decorative tastes of the designer. In the rear of the department was a handsome "Opening Day" motto made of artificial flowers. The two arches composed of flowers was another point of artistic beauty. To those who attended the opening our description will give but a faint perception of what was to be seen.

The Phœnix Railway.

Our reporter met the contractor of the contractor of the Phœnix road this morning and from him learned that the work was progressing as rapidly as could be expected without the rails. The large orders ahead at the works where the fish-plates are being made, has delayed them a full week beyond the time expected, and as the rails could not be used until the fastenings were had, they have been held back to come with the plates. The siding is completed, the ties laid and ready for the switches. The road bed has been gone over, and made ready to lay the track south to the town line, while a full gang of men are at work near the village of Phœnix. By Saturday night a good stretch of the rails, it is hoped, will be laid and there will be no stoppage of work when the iron is on the ground. Superintendent Childs of the Ontario & Western, is doing what he can, and will furnish two construction trains as soon as needed. Willard Johnson has thus far furnished the ties and is taking all that are offered in this vicinity. The West Shore will sell or lend all that are needed to complete the road. All things look bright for the new project.

The Ideal C. L. S. C.

An Addison memorial was observed by the circle at the home of the Misses Patterson, on Friday evening, May 1st. The meeting opened with a duet by the Misses Patterson, Lord's Prayer, and roll call responded to with quotations from Addison, after which the following interesting and profitable selections were rendered:

Essay—The life and times of Addison, Elmer Morrill.

Selection—Account of a Whistling Match, Miss Emma Connell.

Singing—Chautauqua songs.

Selection—Omnipresence of the Diety, Miss Hattie Patterson.

Exercise of the Fan, Miss Louise Ferris

Poem—Soliloquy on Cato, Miss Helen Patterson.

Scrap-box, by members.

The next regular meeting will be held at the home of Miss Emma Connell on Friday evening next, at which time the life and works of "George Eliot" will be taken up in connection with the regular work.

Police Court News.

Last Saturday, Joseph Newton of Granby was arrested by Officer Poole for intoxication and disorderly conduct. He was placed in jail and on Monday was fined $7.00 or thirty days in jail. Paid.

John McCale was arrested yesterday for intoxication and fast driving on the streets last Sunday. He was arraigned before Police Justice VanWagenen, and gave bail in the sum of $100 to appear this morning, when the matter was settled by the payment of $8.00.

With the appearance of soft maple blossoms, bees may be moved out from the cellar.

Let the horse's litter be dry and clean underneath as well as on top. Standing on hot, fermented manure makes the hoofs soft and brings on lameness.

When the angles of the horse's mouth become sore from the pressure of the bit, apply pulverised alum and honey, in equal parts, four or five times a day and use a wide bit.

A. J. Hendry, of Georgia, gives the following as his method of curing hog cholera, which he says has been very successful: Pour one pint of spirits of turpentine in a quart of molasses, and give a gill of the mixture to each animal.

Half a pint of sunflower seeds given to a horse with his other food each morning and night will keep him in good health and spirits and his hair will be brighter. Horses soon become very fond of the sunflower seeds.

An experienced dairyman says: "Never churn your cream till the butter comes in chunks as big as your fist. Stop churning when the butter grains are twice the size of a pin head. Such butter has good grain and brings more than greasy butter."

Grafting the Grapevine.

Numerous inquiries have been made this spring as to the method of grafting the grapevine, but too late for a reply to be given in time to be useful this season. Some of the writers propose to take wild grapevines, and use them as stocks upon which to graft desirable varieties. This would be very poor economy. An old vine of any kind is rarely worth removing, and least of all, a wild one. Such vines are poorly furnished with roots, and would make very poor stocks. If one already has an old vine of poor variety, and wishes to graft it with a more desirable kind, he can do so by digging down and inserting the scions below the surface of the ground. The proper season for this operation is in the fall, when vegetation is at rest. If the old root is in a healthy condition, a very vigorous growth will follow. Another method of grafting is to insert the cion in a strong cane, or branch of the vine, selecting one that may be bent down, and have a union of stock and cion, with a joint or two of the cane, covered with soil. The method known as whip-grafting is employed, the cion and stock being held together by a tie, instead of wax. The grafted cane is then laid in a shallow trench, in such a manner that a bud or two of the cion will be above the ground. This, it will be seen, is a combination of layering and grafting. The cion is nourished at first by the old vine, but in the course of the season the buried portion of the cane will produce abundand roots, and in the fall may be separated from the parent plant. This operation should be performed early in the spring, before there is danger of copious "bleeding," which might prevent the union. It may also be done upon the new growth, after the shoots of the season have become sufficiently matured, in this case using cions of similar new growth. This method with new wood we have not tried, but it is said to be successful. Nearly all of our hardy grapes are grown so readily from cuttings, and come into bearing so soon, that this is the usual and least troublesome manner of propagating them.—[American Agriculturist for May.

How to Get Early Garden Crops.

There are many ways of getting early crops, or of trying to get them, such as starting the plants in the house or hot-bed, and covering them with glass, etc., after they are set out. But when these methods are not adopted, there is still a chance to have early vegetables and a good garden. It is simply to select the warmest and driest soil, and sow or plant early. It is not desirable or wise to sow or plant the main crops before the soil is in good working condition. But for a few early crops on a small scale, we can well afford to run a little risk of losing our seed by too early sowing. One thing however, should not be overlooked. Do not depend on this early sowing, but sow or plant again a little later, when the soil and weather are more favorable. If the first sowing succeeds, you are so much ahead; if it fails, you have lost only the seed and your labor. You can well afford to run this risk. There are some crops which can be sown the moment the frost is out of the soil, with little or no risk. Among these we mention pear, cabbage, cauliflower, spinach, onion, lettuce, celery, beet, carrot, parsnip, etc. It is seldom that these crops are hurt by early frosts. Last year a frost in May destroyed many cabbage plants, but this is a very unusual occurrence. Among the crops which we should re-sow without waiting to see if the first sowing will succeed, are beets, radishes, cabbage, [illegible], beans and sweet corn.—[American Agriculturist for May.

It is said that if a teaspoonful of mustard be mixed with the water and molasses which is usually poured over baked beans, there is no danger of the stomach being distressed after eating them.

A New Orleans doctor calls attention to a very simple fact which merits attention from medicine takers. If the medicine is mixed with very cold water, and a few swallows of the water be taken as a preparatory dose, the nerves of the organ of taste become sufficiently benumbed to make the medicine nearly tasteless. The method will not disguise bitter tastes, but acts well in oils and salines.

For Catarrhal Colds: One drachm of camphor, coarsely powdered or shreded is stirred into a vessel containing very hot water. A paper cone, placed large end downward over the dish, is the means by which the camphorated steam is inhaled through the nose. Dr. G. E. Dobbson asserts positively through the Lancet, that if treatment is continued for twenty minutes, and repeated three of four times in as many hours, great and usually permanent relief follows.

For a Felon: The application of Faradic current, the positive pole to the affected thumb or finger, for ten or fifteen minutes, will allay the pain and inflammation. The application should be repeated the next day, and perhaps a third treatment on the following day may be necessary. This treatment has been sufficient to cure several cases after the parties had lost several night's sleep on account of the pain, and had been advised to have the finger opened to the bone.

Bathing.

Many people are in the habit of dabbling a great deal in bathtubs filled with fresh water during the heated term. This is injurious. Sponge bathing, in the majority of cases, would affect the cooling and refreshing purposes intended and cleanse the pores just as well. Nature evidently intends man shall bathe frequently in summer. In winter, if one is not engaged in particularly dusty or dirty pursuits, a bath all over once, twice or perhaps three times a week should be a plenty. Cold baths are best for the strong and vigorous, but the weaker ones, who begin with tepid bathing water, should end each bath with a dash of water as cold as the system will bear. A good friction with a coarse towel, supplemented with a hand rub-down or perhaps a little bay rum or alcohol rubbed in after the coldest bath, will restore healthy action and bring a glow to the surface, causing the whole body to feel reinvigorated.—New York Telegram.

It is more convenient to weigh milk than to measure it, and the record is easily kept. The owner then knows not only what the cow is worth to him for dairy purposes, but what she should sell for. A good record as a milker is as important in selling her as a good record for trotting is to a horse. Who will pay $5000 or more for a horse when the owner could only say he "guessed" he could go a mile in 2:20?

Oxen are still kept in the New England States and in some parts of New York, but not many farther south. They are "handy" for some kinds of work, but in general they are kept, probably, more from the force of old habits and custom than because they do what horses cannot do. The census shows that their number is diminishing.

Sweet corn is the corn the farmer should grow for fodder. Its value exceeds that of any other sort.

Dear Sir—I took your Blood and Liver Remedy and Nerve Tonic for a severe bilious attack with perfect success.

Completely and entirely cleanses the blood, relieves Billiousness, Constipation and Headache; cleans out and heals the entire stomach and bowels; breaks up and cures Agues and forming Fevers; cures Pimples, Skin Eruptions and Skin Diseases; removes Bad Breath; is an antidote for the Blues; soothes, strengthens and heals Weak and Irritated nerves, producing good rest at night; and completely renovates and restores a disordered system—whether the disorder be slight or grave.

DR. FENNER'S KIDNEY AND BACKACHE CURE—For all diseases of the kidneys, bladder, urinary passages, backache, dropsy, female weakness, nervous debility, heart disease, rheumatism, etc. The most successful remedy that has ever been administered in the diseases named.

Jennette D. Baldwin, of Moore's Hill, Ind., is on the way to a great fortune through the lucky invention of a piano stool that just fits the weak backs of feeble young women.

CURE FOR PILES.

Piles are frequently proceeded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomash, etc. A moisture like prespiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a mommon attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and affecting a permanent cure. "Can you tell me where I can find a Justice of the Peace?" she asked of a pedestrian on Michigan avenue yesterday.

"Yes'm. Down Griswold street one block, and then turn into the alley."

"Thanks. A marriage by a Justice is legal, isn't it?"

"Oh, yes."

"Just as legal outside his office as in?"

"Certainly."

She was evidently a widow. She weighed about 115 pounds, bit off her words like a straw cutter at work, and when she walked her heels clicked on the pavement in a way that talked of business. In ten minutes she had a Justice in tow, and in ten more the two entered a shoe factory where thirty or forty men were at work. While the Justice took a chair in the office the woman entered the working room, passed down to the lower end, and, as she halted before a man of 40 who was running a pepper, she said:

"William, I've got a Justice of the Peace in the office. Come!"

He turned whiter than flour made by the patent roller process, and she took him by the sleeve and continued:

"No fooling, William—come right along!"

He followed her without a word, and as they reached the office she clasped his hand and said to the Justice:

"Go ahead and marry us."

He went ahead, and in two minutes the pair were man and wife. The woman handed the official a $2 bill, kissed William on the chin, and said, as she started to go:

"Now run along to your work. If you should forget where I live, and not happen around to-night, I'll drop in on you early to-morrow—very early! Tra-la! good-bye, all!"—[Detroit Free Press.

EXZEMA OR SALT RHEUM.

ANOTHER CLEAR AND POSITIVE RECOVERY—AN ELDERLY LADY'S LETTER.

Among the numerous letters received by Dr Kennedy testifying to notable salt rheum cures the following will be found of inetrest to our readers who May accept our assuance of its authenticity and truthfulness.

Worcester Mass., March 23, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Roundout, N. Y.

Dear Sir: Until three years I have been a sufferer from Salt Rheum. It followed upon an attack of erysipelas, for which I was a long time under medical treatment. I placed myself again in the hands of the physicians, who did, I have no doubt all that could be done. One thing, however, is sure, I was none the better for all the medicine they gave me. The painful and unsightly disease made continual progress, until I began to fear I should never get rid of.

By means of one of those accidents that often result in so much blessings I had my attention called to your favorite remedy, which I was told would surely do me good. I used it and within a much shorter time than I would have believed possible. I received a permanent cure. I am now perfectly free from Salt Rheum. What a comfort this is and how it places your wonderful medicine in my opinion you may guess at but never know. I keep it now constantly in the house as a family medicine.

Yours Truly
MRS. DINAH PHAIR.

Mrs Phair sometime since, went on a visit to Kansas, found a case of Salt Rheum, could not get Favorite Remedy, sent to New York City for it, and cured the case.

The Shadows of Evening.

Softly the shadows of evening were falling,
[illegible] of a bright summer's day;
[illegible] a sweet little maiden lay watching
Till twilight's last glimmer had passed on its way.
She paused for awhile, then her voice broke the silence:
"Dear mother, why need there be darkness at all?
I love so much better to live in the sunshine,
It makes me feel sad when the dark shadows fall."
Oh, sad was the grief in the heart of that mother,
Who knew that her darling was passing away;
Still bravely she strove her own feelings to smother,
And spake of the brightness that lasteth for aye.
The sun had arisen once more in its glory,
Unveiling the beauties of nature again;
Her darling was nearing that home that would never Be darkened by shadows of sorrow or pain.
"'Tis brighter and brighter," her darling then whispered;
"Dear mother, I know I shall soon be at home;
In the mansions of Heaven I'll watch for your coming,"
And sweetly she died as she whispered, "You'll come!"

[Philadelphia Call.

THE EXPIATED CRIME.

I had had a trying day. Something had gone wrong—I knew not what—in the large warehouse where my brother Robert was master and I was head clerk. Robert, always stern and imperative, was, this day, insufferably so. I had never seen the temper which my dying mother warned me against irritating, so bitter and cutting as now. Why was it? True, I had won the love which he so earnestly coveted; but was I to blame because Olive Stoughton liked me better than him? I was but a poor clerk, and he a thriving, prosperous man, able to give her a splendid home; but she cared more for the little cottage which alone I could afford to live in, and which already we were furnishing for our future residence.

I had lodged with Olive's mother for five years, and Olive had ever been as a dear sister to me. When Robert, who had seen her but a few times, but was struck with her innocent beauty, wanted to make her his wife, she came weeping to me. Her mother had urged her earnestly to marry him; but she could not love one so cold and stern. Would I please go down and talk her mother into reason? Would I tell her that it was not right in the sight of Heaven to form such an alliance?

Before this I had felt quite content that Olive should look upon me as a brother. The thought that she had been so nearly lost to me made me know that this relationship was not all I coveted. I loved her as one who should be my wife; and when I went down to talk to Mrs. Stoughton, I told her so, and she, who saw in my future a counterpart of my brother's success, was easily persuaded that it was best to consult Olive's own inclinations.

That night the weeping girl confessed that she refused Robert for my sake; and as soon as I was able, by close economy, to take a small house in the suburbs, I did so. We were to be married in a week. Something had kept me from telling my brother, but I presumed that he knew it from another source. Perhaps I cannot make anyone understand how much I stood in fear of my brother Robert. He was seven years older than myself, had been the tyrant of my boyhood, and the scourge of my mother. When she died he was my guardian; and although I suspected that he appropriated the little she left me, I dared not ask him any questions lest it might irritate him. On her deathbed my mother had charged me, and I had promised never to oppose him—always to give way to him. My poor mother! she would not have done so had she but known all. He took me into his ware house when I was fifteen, and I had been the slave of his will ever since, never daring to cross his path, until, armed with a desperate courage of love, I had rivalled him in the heart of Olive Stoughton.

On the morning of this day I had caught a malicious gleam in Robert's eye.

He kept me very late at the office that evening, and sent me afterwards on an unnecessary errand connected with a bill of exchange.

When I went to the counting-house the next morning, Robert looked up with the old grave stare, now so familiar and said: "There are two bills abroad this morning of the description of that which you took away yesterday—one of them is, of course, a forged one. Some one here has done it. Who imitates my handwriting, save yourself?"

I was thunderstruck, but recovered myself sufficiently to say, "How do you know that it was done here?"

"Because our own paper was used—the blanks which we had expressly engraved for our bills. No one has had access to them but you and myself, therefore I accuse you."

"But, Robert, you do not believe that I did this?"

"What else can I think? Here is the bill which I have had to redeem. Look at it."

"Nay, I see that it strongly resembles my writing, but it is only a resemblance—I never wrote it. Robert, you are in jest; you do this to frighten me. Look at me; Do I look like a guilty person?"

He colored, bit his lips, and did not reply.

[illegible] "Brother, some one seems trying to do me an injury. I swear faithfully [illegible] will find that person out and [illegible], even if it is years and years [illegible] who it is. It will do [illegible] man, who would [illegible] you have departed. I have all things ready. Go at once, and you are saved: stay and you are lost."

"Fly from the consequence of a crime I never committed? Never, I will stay and if it is possible, prove my innocence."

"You cannot," he said, coldly.

"Perhaps I can discover who has thus injured me."

Another of those strange looks came over his face, and he exclaimed loudly and hastily, "Take your choice. A residence in prison must have charms for you."

It was a terrible thought indeed, but I trusted in my innocence. I did not believe that Robert would allow my name to be thus disgraced. Alas! he had already permitted the police to examine the different handwriting of the clerks, and mine had been selected as the imitation of his own. And they were still in the building, ready to pounce upon him who had forged the bill.

Robert was pale now. He had not calculated upon my firmness; he had depended on my flight. He implored me now to secret myself, but I was obstinate. When my voice was raised, he entreated me to lower it, and pointed to the other room. In my desperation I flew to the door, opened it, and, strong in my innocence, I said: "I am here to answer to my good name. My brother wishes me to go away, but why should I? I am innocent, and will bide the result."

"How is this, Mr. Bernard?" asked one of them. Did you seek to deprive the law of its just prey? You who were so eager just now."

Robert wiped his eyes. I do believe the men gave him credit for brotherly affection and sympathy. But he had shown it too late. I was taken away immediately and put in confinement.

And Olive would hear of my trouble from strangers! And how—oh, how would she bear it? So near our great happiness, and now!

There was no hope. It is useless to record my trial. Even Robert, repentant as he must have been, could not save me now. The bill was too faithful a transcript of my writing. No other clerk wrote in imitation of Robert's hand, and my counsel's suggestion that Mr. Bernard might have written it himself, was considered to monstrous to have a moment's sway with the court.

My poor Olive! alas! she had no one but myself to care for her. But there was a deeper grief even than this. The blow was struck by the hand of my brother! for I could not but doubt that Robert had done this. He hoped and believed that the witness of his guilt would pass unsuspected; but in case it should not, the responsibility must not in any case fall upon him.

I was in prison five years. Three of these Olive visited me often. The fourth, she was wearing away to another land; and before its close, she died. What cared I then to live? I would not have raised my hand for a release from prison. Another year went on. I never heard from Robert, not even when my Olive died. It would injure his respectability to show any sympathy with a forger.

Well, the day of release came. I was indifferent to its approach. I even lingered after I was told that I was free to go. At length I walked out once more into a world which had taught me such bitter lessons. I hurried out of town, and sought my old home—the home which had been shrined in my heart as a picture for five long dreary years. I threw myself upon my Olive's grave. I knew where to find it, for she had selected the spot years before.

Even this scene did not melt my heart. I was hard and cold still. Olive's sweet life had been sacrificed; and mine, oh, what a bitter, bitter offering had been made of mine to him who had made it so dark.

With this thought came one of deep, fierce revenge. What right had he, were twice my brother, to throw this shadow and darkness over me? Had my mother known how he would repay my devotion to her wishes, would she have counselled me to keep back his dark deeds, and sacrifice myself and family to him.

I do not know how I reached the suburban town where Robert had always resided since he left my mother's roof. He was a bachelor, living alone, except for an aged woman who took care of his household matters. To this day I never knew what streets I passed through to his dwelling; but I know I was filled with a fierce ungoverned revenge.

I found myself in the dusk of the evening opposite his house. A dim light burned in one room where the window was slightly raised. I determined to go in, and charge him with the forgery; and I had some unformed idea about denouncing him to the life he had cursed me with so long; worse still—the dreadful thought of killing him on the spot.

Let me here acknowledge all my guilt. I did think of this. How madly I strode across the street and entered the house! I went directly to his room. On a couch, pale, haggard and emaciated, lay the wreck of my brother, once a noble looking, handsome man. He was praying when I pushed open the door, but his voice was weak and low; still I caught enough to know that he was asking forgiveness for the injury he had done to me. Over his couch hung my mother's picture. A sad, sweet look, such as had haunted me five years in prison pervaded the face; and Robert's had softened down from its hard expression into a resemblance of her's. That poor [illegible] hand which I had raised [illegible] [illegible] emaciated arms towards me, all my anger melted. I saw, not the villain who had thus wrought the evil of my life, but the wretch who was wearing out his own in sorrow for the past. All my mother's teachings occurred to me as if spoken by her living lips.

All that he had done, had been for the hope of winning Olive Stoughton's love. He did not give up the hope, until he heard of her death, and knew that she died of grief for me. Oh, the shame, the agony, which his confession embodied! Sickness had shown all his guilt in its true light, and for many weeks his great and only desire had been to see me and be forgiven. It had wrought upon his feeble nerves to that extent that he had that very day decided to give himself up to justice, weak and dying as he was; but the deadly languor that crept over him, made it impossible. He had written his confession, and begged me to have it published. He died that night. Could it wipe out those dreary prison years? Could it restore my Olive? Alas, no; better that our name should pass away from the memory of those who knew its stain.

And so, with a minature taken from my mother's portrait, I came away under an assumed name. I entered into active, stirring, out-door life in my new abode. Robert's property was now mine, but I preferred to work, since that alone could drive away the phantoms that troubled my life. One phantom, however, dear and beloved, has never left me. It is that of the risen angel that would have so blessed my lot and who still blesses it, although unseen by mortal eyes.

THE PROPER THING.

Sun umbrellas are rather large this year.

Corduroy jackets are stylish and serviceable.

Pencils to wear on watch chains are being revived.

Plaited skirts are still worn but many more are made plain.

Useful suits for this season of the year are of woolen goods.

Beaded grenadine is used as parts of combination black dresses.

Among other fanciful bodices are some with lengthwise organ plaits.

Dark ecru otamine striped with moss-green velvet is exceedingly pretty.

Orris root perfumes with violet or heliotrope is the favorite sachet powder.

Dresses of crape and lace take the place of the brocaded grenadines formerly worn.

Suits of striped and plain goods combined have striped skirts without trimmings.

The "Pierrette" hat is the fashionable shape for little girls. The crown is high and pointed.

Swiss girdles, pointed above and below the waist both in front and behind, are made entirely of jet beads.

The greatest novelty in beads is lead shot; it replaces the bright steel bead and is of dead grey without polish.

Rich materials are very simply draped and are made bouffant by the cushion and steels sown in the back breadth.

The most becoming dresses for little girls have gathered waists and jackets tight fitting in the back and loose in front.

Byron collars of "solid" jet, with two scarfs of beaded net to tie below the throat are shown to wear with black dresses.

Mother Hubbard, Watteaus, or the Mother Hubbard front with Watteau back, will be the correct mode for wrappers.

Drapery, as a rule, will be short in front, full and long at the back, kilt plaiting in sections forming part of the skirt.

Dresses of white mohair and alpaca with small red and blue Pompadour figures will be worn at the seaside and mountain resorts.

Apron drapery is made to fall in long straight folds down the left side, and to curve upward on the right, where it joins the back drapery.

A novelty is the "jailer" bracelet. It closes by means of a padlock. A chain is fastened to the bracelet, with a small key depending from it.

Stripes are certain to be worn this spring and will probably be quite popular. There are some decided novelties in these and the color blendings are good.

Butterflies are very much used for ball and other evening dresses. They are placed on the shoulders, on the breast-knot of flowers, and also upon the bonnet.

The great novelty in ribbon is called "epingle ras." It is of a texture without gloss, is of all colors, and combines well with moire ribbons, with which it is used.

Pretty aprons for little girls are made of two wide breadths of nainsook or lawn tucked at the bottom and shirred back and front of the half armhole, which is finished by two wide bands of the muslin tied with a bow on the top of the shoulder to retain the apron in place.

Black lace jackets are revived, and are now made with piece lace cut with darts and side forms precisely as basques are. One of the prettiest of French thread net has five deep points on the edge, covered with lace [illegible] [illegible]. A palm-leaf of jet [illegible] [illegible]

Is This Possible?

Report comes that General Grant's improved condition is due to the fact that he is using a "simple vegetable preparation" forwarded by one of our countrymen from South America, and sent him by the Surgeon General! Is this possible? By an "unauthorized" remedy? Shocking!

And yet, if this "simple vegetable preparation" were owned and advertised by any one as a specific for this terrible disease, certainly the Surgeon General would not commend it, nor would bigoted physicians prescribe it!

Nevertheless, it is a fact that many of the best proprietary medicines of the day as the late Dr. J. G. Holland stated in Scribner's Monthly, were more successful than many physicians, and most of them, it should be remembered, were at first discovered or used in actual medical practice. When, however, any shrewd persons, knowing of their virtues and foreseeing their popularity, secured and advertised them, then in the opinion of the bigoted, all virtue went out of them!

Isn't this absurd?

We believe that a remedy, if properly made, is just as effective when put up, advertised and sold in bulk, as when doled out to patients at enormous expense by their physicians.

Why not?

If General Grant is getting better through a simple unauthorized vegetable preparation where is the vaunted exclusive skill of the medical profession!

Apropos of the suspension of some very prominent members by the Medical and Chirugical faculty of Maryland, for endorsing advertised remedies, the Baltimore American (April 25) says that "when a patent medicine goes on year after year widening its circle of believers, it is a pretty fair evidence that there is merit in it. The regular doctors may ignore it and expel any of their members who use it, but when they do so their action looks more like envy against a successful remedy then a true desire to protect the public." The failure in the Garfield and Grant cases, the American thinks, and properly, has knocked professional pretentions higher than a kite.

But this is not a singular instance of unprofessional power over "incurable diseases." That "simple vegetable preparation" now everywhere known as Warner's safe cure, was once an authorized remedy; was pronounced a "god send" to the medical profession for the cure of kidney and liver disorders, malaria, general debility, spring feebleness, female irregularities, etc., by many leading physicians, but when the formula was fully perfected, and the medicine was put up in bulk and advertised so that every sufferer might know of it and treat himself, then the profession turned upon it and let their patients die rather than use it!

This is certainly a strange proceeding, but it is on a level with all the rules and regulations of a code which has gone so far as to forbid a physician displaying beyond a certain size his name and profession upon his sign!

But the world moves, and merit wins the fight!

An Indian doctor in Utah recently lost a patient and was promptly stoned to death by his tribe.

Where's the sense in spending money for a doubtful affair, when a sure and reliable thing is offered? Hop Porous Plasters for all aches, pains and soreness. The greatest strengthener known. 25c.

A niece of ex-President Van Buren is an applicant for a postoffice.

REGULARS.

One of the strongest proofs of the value of Kidney-Wort as a remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels is the fact that it is used and prescribed by "regular" physicians. Philip C. Ballou, M. D., of Monkton, Vt., says: "Take it all in all, it is the most successful remedy I have ever used."

There are 150,000,000 women and girls in China, nearly all of whom are uneducated and ignorent.

JOHN A. MCKAY - - EDITOR

The session of the Legislature will close this week.

VICE-PRESIDENT Hendricks has gone to Atlantic City for rest and quite, and will vary his hours of repose by preparing his commencement address for Yale college.

THE New York county Democracy on Friday evening adopted resolutions heartily commending President Cleveland's administration, and tendering to him assurances of the organization's h arty support.

THE trouble in the north west continues with unabation. A hard battle was commenced on Saturday between Middletowns forces and Reil at Batoche and continued through Sunday. The battle was decided a draw.

THE New York Sun suggests the names of David B. Hill, Roswell P. Flower, A. C. Chapin, John Amot, Erastus Corning, and J. H. Robb, as Democratic candidates for Governor, with the prospects of Hill and Flower in the lead.

IT is proposed to offer men who enlist for continuous service in the navy better compensation, more desirable uniforms, an improved mess, and a pension upon growing old. It is proposed to educate those who enter for long service, so that they can be of service on the most modern vessels. This instruction will be given by an officer specially detailed to about fifty men taken from the navy each year. The course will begin next June at the Washington navy yard.

MR. GLADSTONE has won the first of the Parlimentary battles. The House of Commons approved his Afghan policy by a majority of thirty. This majority in ordinary time would have been considered rather small but under the present condition of affairs it constitutes a creditable victory. Still it is evident that in the estimation of Englishmen, Mr. Gladstone is not the Gladstone of but weeks ago. His popularity has greatly decreased.

THE prospects for better times are not very flattering at present. The season in this section is very backward, consequently merchantile and other business is stagnant. In general, a good percentage of mechanics are either unemployed or working at reduced wages. Stocks are very inactive and railroad securities are handled with great precaution. We hear people say that a war between England and Russia would be the means of producing a change for the better in the condition of affairs in this country. If America must depend on foreign hostility for her prosperity, she is indeed in a hopeless predicament, and even should the misfortunes of other countries advance the interests of America, it does not evince a right spirit in us as a people, to declare openly our desire for such results for mere money gain. However, we are in hopes that a change for the better will take place very soon.

RUSSIA does not submit the boundary to arbitration, but simply the question whether she had a right to bid Komaroff attack the Afghans under such circumstances as existed when his assault was made. If the decision should be against her she will apologize or not, as seems better; but will be under no obligation to yield Penjdeh or keep away from Herat. It appears probable that the Czar will, after more or less protesting and threatening from England, obtain the former of those towns, and eventually, the latter. The government of Great Britain, finding its allies in Afghanistan unreliable and treacherous, or suspicious and indiffierent as to whether they receive British aid against Russian aggression, seems to be absolved from any obligation to spill English blood in their behalf. Comprehension of his release from the necessity to vindicate Afghan rights is apparently dawning on the Briton, and helping him to bear the humiliation entailed by the retreat of the ministry. He must believe that India is actually menaced, before he will draw the sword against the Russian.—[Syracuse Standard.

Cheese Market.

(FROM THE UTICA HERALD.)

AT UTICA May 11.

Cheese was sick to-day, and everybody looked sick, buyers and sellers alike. Buyers did not want any more of the same kind they had last week, and sellers thought they had had enough of the kind they were experiencing this week. Some were afraid of a repetition of 1879; others held their cheese over, hoping for a better market next week. Those who held over noticed that buyers were taking very little on consignment, and seemed willing to buy cheese outright at the prices offered. This they regarded as a favorable sign. Others noticed that buyers made no effort to get cheese, that they advised in fact to hold back a part of the offering, and that only two buyers took any stock worth mentioning. These facts were regarded as unfavorable. But the season is easily two weeks late. No cows are getting anything out of the pastures; a few are turned out but there is nothing for them to eat. One of our best factories increased in its make six cheese between May 1, and May 12 last year; this year it has had hard work to hold its own and not fall behind. Our sales to-day are 2,200 boxes less than a year ago to-day. The situation in the country therefore is largely in favor of the dairymen. But the trouble is that dealers are still stocked up with old cheese, and so long as they have this they will not touch new. That is the case on both sides of the water, and it tells the whole story at present.

Transactions of the day are as follows: 2 lots, 130 boxes, at 9c.; 41 lots, 2,570 boxes, at 9¼c.; 4 lots, 697 boxes, at 9½c. Sales 3,397 boxes; commissions 425; total 3,822 boxes. Ruling price 9¼c. Transactions one year ago 5,928 boxes, ruling price 12¾c; two years ago, transactions 5,411 boxes, ruling 12½c.

LITTLE FALLS, May 11.

CHEESE.—Dairymen are a good deal discouraged by the extremely dull market here to-day. The make is light and the weather continues so cold as to make it pretty certain that the cows will be turned to pasture later than usual. Stock took a wide range in quality, as heretofore, altho' there is a slight improvement in this respect. Buyers early announced that they wished to take the cheese on consignment, and some would not take it any other way. It was late before any actual sales could be learned, and trade was very slow and dull. Prices are more than one-half cent lower than those of a week ago. Our dairymen do not know what to make of this state of things, but, with all others in the great dairy section, earnestly hope that the worst is experienced. Transactions are about 500 boxes more than last week and are as follows:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
1	37	7 cts.
1	28	7¼ cts.
5	168	8½ cts.
16	627	9 cts.
12	589	9¼ cts.
43	1,769	Com.
78	3,218
Farm Dairy	372
	3,590

FARM DAIRIES.—A good share of the farm cheese was sent on commission, but there were sales at 7 to 9c. The total sales were 372 boxear

BUTTER.—Trade in butter is not much better than in cheese. There were sales of 43 packages of farm dairy at 16 to 18c, The bulk at 17c. There were also 24 packages of creamery at 20c.

A Splendid Book Free!

No one wants to try the experiment of living without eating. When we do eat we want our food nicely cooked and with wholesome variety. Our "gude wives" will rejoice in this chance to obtain, free, a Cook Book that is fast getting a National reputation; for in many ways this book comes as the very one needed, and each copy makes a host of friends for itself. The great charm of it is in the fact that the book is absolutely practical, economical and sensible. The recipes are time-tried and tested and have been most carefully selected from over 20,000 of the very best housekeepers' treasuries of knowledge. And in addition to this the book is full of wise, short, and pointed statements of how to do things and use things to the best of labor-saving and money-saving ways. If you have fifty other cook books, you cannot afford to do without this one, for it will come and take the place of all the others combined. The price of the book is 50 cents, bound in heavy paper cover. Now for our

On motion the Secretary was instructed to pay James T. Pratt $13.50, the balance on hand, for rent. The Secretary was also instructed to publish a list of the factories who did not pay their dues, as well as those who did. The matter of deciding a place for holding the meetings the coming year, was left with the president. The first sale day was fixed for next Monday evening.

Mr. E. Heald of New Haven has just completed for Newton Johnson a beautiful boat. It is built of yellow cedar, seventeen feet long and forty one inches wide. It is nicely trimmed with a variety of woods, and finished in oil and varnish. It is provided with both oars and sail and is not only a credit to the builder, but an object of pride to the owner.

A Dastardly Deed at Oswego.

Saturday night shortly after 8 o'clock, two masked men entered the house of F. S. Thrall of Oswego, during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Thrall. One of them with a drawn knife seized a daughter, aged 14, and under penalty of death commanded silence, but said she would not be harmed if she made no outcry. He then with a long pair of scissors cut off her hair and cut her clothing, saying that he wanted to be revenged on her father. They then collected some articles of silverware and left the house without doing her further injury. The affair is shrouded in mystery. Mr. Thrall knows no one who could have a motive for committing such a dastardly deed.

Decoration Day Subscription Fund.

The committee having in charge the collecting of funds to defray the expenses of Decoration day, wish voluntary subscriptions. All citizens and ex soldiers who wish to contribute to said fund will please leave the same at James Morrow & Co's., or F. E. Goodjon's store on or before May 25. The principal expenses will be for opera house, procuring speaker and hiring carriage for disabled soldiers who cannot march.

Mr. Francis is a promising journalist, and has many friends in Fulton who will be pleased to hear of his progress.

The street commissioner is doing a long needed work on Utica street, between Third and Fourth. The street has been graded, gutters deepened and lawns made in front of each lot. Other streets have also been greatly improved by the commissioner. When some of the cross walks, which are in a truly deplorable condition, have been repaired, several of the finest streets in town will be far more passable than they have been for some time.

Postmaster Gilbert has secured the agency of the Harden Hand Grenade Fire Extinguisher, for the towns of Volney and Schroeppel. It will be remembered that an exhibition of this mode of extinguishing fires was [illegible]

Oswego Falls C. S. C.

This circle held an Addison Memorial on the evening of May 1st, at the residence of Mr. George Wood, opening with piano music and singing "One Step More," followed by report of secretary and roll call with quotations from Addison. Miss Connor then read concerning the life and works of Addison from Chambers Cyclopedia of Literature. Mr. Boyed spoke of the political history of England in Addison's time, Mrs. Mead read an essay from Addison's Spectator. This was followed by singing one of Addison's hymns which had been set to very sweet and appropriate music by Mr. Williams a member of the circle. It was the hymn commencing "The Lord my pasture shall prepare," and as old hymn books were plenty, all joined with spirit in this exercise. Following this was a selection from the "Tragedy of Cato" act IV scene 4, also act V scene 1, Mr. Jennings reading Cato. Mrs. Boyed read Blenheim from "The Campaign." Mr. Williams a selection from the "Letter from Italy." Here the company were surprised by being served with elegant refreshments which were thoroughly appreciated, after which cheerful music and chatting held the circle to a late adjournment. This circle will meet this Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. Henry Schenck. Subjects, Promethens Bound, Epimethens and the Masque of Pandora from Longfellow.

The Great Event.

Robert Collyer, the eloquent and world known lecturer will deliver his famous lecture "Clear Grit" at Stephens' Opera House, to-morrow evening. This is the best lecture ever delivered before the public and it is a golden opportunity to hear this truly great man. We understand that some of the churches have changed their evening of prayer this week so that the privilege of hearing him may not be lost. It is the best lecture of the course. Mr. Collyer will doubtless face a large audience.

J. F. Moffet, representing Hines, Moffett & Co., of Watertown, is here, looking after the proposed works to supply this village with water for fire and household purposes. His maps and plans will be laid before the village board. The board will be asked to present to the taxpayers a proposition to raise $1,600 for thirty-two hydrants, so distributed as to protect every block in the corporation. The annual tax on each thousand dollars valuation will not exceed one dollar, which sum will be fully saved in the cost of insurance alone. Every household will be supplied with pure spring water each day in the year for a small sum. Every town which has adopted this plan is delighted with its working, and it is presumed Fulton will gladly adopt it. [Fulton Cor. Standard.

Quarterly Meeting.

D. C. Cummings of Carthage is in town this week, and is negotiating with the owners of the foundry property with a view of starting a manufacturing business of some sort. The burned portion of the foundry will be rebuilt at once. Our citizens would gladly welcome the return of Mr. Cummings to this village.

Last week a sensation was created by the finding of a child in a pile of rubbish near the Broadway house in Upper Oswego Falls. A jury was empaneled by the Coroner, and the following verdict was returned: "That the body found is that of a still born child, placed there by some person or persons unknown to the jury, between Jan., 1, and May 6."

Mrs. Wagoner writes as follows to the New York Ledger: "My husband, Daniel Wagoner, was a member of company "K," of the 64th regiment of New York volunteers. I cannot find a single living member of that company. If any member of that company is alive and will send his address to Mrs. Daniel Wagoner, Pennellville, Oswego county, N. Y. he will confer a great favor on the family of the ex-soldier."

This evening at the rink will occur one of the best races ever witnessed in Central New York. Lombard of Cortland, and Burdick of Syracuse, will skate a three mile race for a $100 prize, and the championship of Central and Northern New York. Five races were to be contested for by these gentlemen for this prize. Four of them have been skated, each contestant winning two. This, the deciding race, will be the most exciting one ever seen in Fulton.

It is said that a game of polo will soon be played between teams composed entirley of Fulton young ladies. A game recently played by ladies in Providence, was, after 45 minutes of close playing, declared a draw.

A game of polo was played last Friday evening between the Mother Hubbards, of Fulton and the Oswego Falls Manufacturing Co's. polo club, and was won by the latter team after a hard fought battle of 45 minutes.

A game of polo will soon be played between the butchers and grocers of this village. As but few of the players have ever had skates on, an amusing game may be looked for.

Next Friday evening a game of polo will be played between the Stars of Oswego and the Fultons. It is expected that a large delegation from Oswego will attend.

The second game of polo last night between the Mother Hubbards and the Riverside Factory club, was after an hours' play, declared a draw.

The new orchestra at the rink, consisting of a piano, cornet, violin and clarionet, gives general satisfaction.

GRAND SPECIAL SALE

—OF—

Silks and Dress Goods!

Two great causes have combined to create a stagnation in the distribution of these goods in the Eastern markets. These two causes are

OVER PRODUCTION and OVER IMPORTATION

[illegible]

[illegible] is ample time to [illegible] land being got into good [illegible] for wheat. A poor crop of [illegible]. Half the crop is [illegible] to the difficulty of cutting [illegible], and the farmer feels discouraged and is apt to relax his efforts [illegible] promptness and energy are so much needed in preparing the land for wheat. Barley needs the best of land and the best of tilth. It is no use sowing it on wet land, or land that is foul or cloddy. Early soiling is essential, and for this reason, many of our best farmers plow the land in the autumn, and merely harrow or cultivate, or at most lightly gang-plow in the spring. It is also quite common to drill in two hundred pounds of superphosphate per acre with the seed. Two bushels of seed per acre is the quantity usually sown. Some of our best farmers drill in only one and a half bushel to the acre.

In market there are only two classes of barley, the "two-rowed" and the "four and six-rowed." There is no difference between the four and six-rowed. There are different varieties in each class, well worthy of more attention than they have yet received in this country. All we need say here is that the two-rowed is a later and heavier barley than the four-rowed. The four-rowed commands a higher price in market, because it germinates or malts quicker than the two-rowed. For the convenience of harvesting, barley should always be rolled after sowing. This need not be done if you are in a hurry, or the land is not dry enough, until the barley is up or even for a week or ten days afterwards. Barley is a good crop to seed with, but it is so convenient to follow barley with winter wheat, that grass seed is rarely sown with it.—[Am. Agriculturist.

George Campbell, Hopkinsville, Ky., says: Burdock Blood Bitters is the best preparation for the blood and stomach ever manufactured.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

Plant beets, peas and potatoes early.

A fat team costs less to keep than a lean team.

Eggs for hatching should not be over two weeks old.

Wheat, beans and clover seed weigh sixty pounds per bushel.

Spring wheat is the first field crop to be sown; oats come next, then barley.

Hogs crave sulphur, and it is well to mix a little in their food occasionally.

On very strong soil oats are liable to "lodge." Such soils should be given to a crop other than the oat.

In measuring timothy hay in the mow 500 cubic feet should be reckoned for a ton, provided the hay is well settled.

Cheap dirt from the side of the wood pile and old ashes are recommended as one of the best possible dressings to put around fruit trees.

Feed your poultry on raw onions, chopped fine, mixed with other food, about twice a week. It is better than a dozen cures for chicken cholera.

Remember when the time comes to put them in, that turnips make the best of mutton and beef, and nothing can be raised cheaper or more of per acre.

Feed regularly and in variety. Hide the grains in chaff or leaves, and let the fowls hunt and scratch them out. Never throw huge masses of food before them is you wish them to do well.

A teaspoonful of glycerine and a few drops of nitric acid to a pint of drinking water will generally cure a fowl that shows symptoms of bronchitis, when accompanied with a gurgling sound in the throat, as if choking.

Carbonized corn, i. e., corn roasted like coffee, is very beneficial, and, as a change in food for hens, leads to a greater production of eggs and fat. In fattening ducks, carbonized corn, fed the last few days with cut celery, produces flesh that will secure the praise of the epicure and high prices.

The gizzard of fowls is admirably adapted for grinding the hardest grains, and it is well to give it something of this to do. Feeding fowels with meal and water or soaking grain for them is a waste of labor. Even young chickens thrive better on whole wheat or screenings than on meal mixed with water. The drink needed is better given separately.

HIGHER PRICES FOR BUTTER.

All dairymen who use Wells, Richardson & Co's, Improved Butter Color, agree that it increases the value of butter several cents a pound. It is pure and harmless, convenient for instant use, has no taste or odor, and gives a clear, golden color to the butter. It is the very best butter obtainable, and is not expensive. In every state in the Union the demand for it is increasing.

An Automatic Postoffice.

In nearly every railway station in London is a small box on legs, painted crimson, which may be called an automatic [illegible]. It is divided into two compartments. On the top are apertures [illegible] one being for postal [illegible] for envelopes. You [illegible] the slot and open [illegible] beneath, and presto! you [illegible]

[illegible] tree of sweet corn; the extra early are not as sweet as the later varieties, but, like the peas, they are very good until we get something better. The small, hardy varieties of peas, like the Early Kent, will stand rough treatment. They can be sown the moment the frost is out of the surface soil, and after they are up, it is seldom, if ever, that they are seriously injured by frost.

A warm, sandy soil is desirable, with a southern exposure, and if on the eastern or southern side of a wall or board fence or building, so much the better. The soil can hardly be too rich. It is a mistake to spade fine, light sandy land deep for early peas. The surface soil, which has been exposed to the sun is many degrees warmer than the soil below, which has only just thawed. The later varieties, planted when the soil is dry and warm, can be covered with two, three, four, or even five inches of soil, deeper or shallower as the soil is heavy or light; but the small, early peas should rarely be covered over two inches deep, and if the soil is wet and cold, an inch is sufficient. As soon as the peas appear, draw some earth up to the row with a hoe or rake, and if the soil is dry and light, half an inch or so of soil may be pulled between or over the peas. If the soil is moist and heavy, it may be well to scatter a little stable manure on the side and on the top of the row. A board placed edgewise on the north side of the row will reflect the rays of the sun.

Another method of hastening early peas is to soak them in warm water for twenty-four hours and then mix them with moss or light sand and keep them warm and moist until they sprout. Then sow them in the ordinary way—using plenty of seed. We have sown them when sprouted an inch long, but it is better, if the weather is not suitable, to check the growth of the peas, in the house by placing them in a cellar or other cool place. If the land is rich, thick planting is desirable, as it favors early maturity. We make the row three or four inches wide and deep, and sow the peas in the rows, for their whole width, almost as thick as they will lie without touching each other.—[American Agriculturist.

H. C. Geisler would specially recommend to the ladies Acker's Dyspepsia Tablets. As a laxative they have no equal. They are guaranteed to cure chronic consumption, dyspepsia and all diseases arising from a deranged stomach. With a free use of the Tablet, sick-headache is impossible.

Suggestions for the Cow-Stable.

Cows cannot make good butter from poor food. Keep rock salt by them at all times. Cows calving in winter, should not be exposed to drafts and be allowed to take cold. Give bran mashes at calving time, warm the water, use blankets if necessary, and take the best possible care of the cows. If a cow does not clean readily after calving, or within twelve hours, the after-birth should be taken from her by a skillful person. Every herdsman of the present day should understand his business well enough to do this. If not accomplished by hand, the next best thing is to boil two quarts of rye meal, and give her, repeating the dose if necessary. I like to feed each cow about one-half bushel of rye meal just before calving, commencing by giving a handful of meal in a gallon of boiling water to a feed, at first, and increasing in quantity daily, commencing about two weeks before calving. If the udder should become sore, swollen and inflamed, bathe it every two hours during the day with hot soap suds, rubbing it long and gently, and drying with a woolen cloth. The last thing at night, apply lard as hot as she can bear it, rubbing it well, For sore teats, wash clean with warm water, and apply glycorine. For an obstruction in a teat, use the silver milking-tube. The best way to manage a fresh-calved cow, as far as the cow herself is concerned, is to allow the calf to suck for two to five days, or until you are quite sure the udder is all right. Then take away the calf and milk the cow five times a day for a while, especially if she is fed liberally on milk. Garget and milk-fever are the two ailments most to be feared in a fresh cow. The former is produced by concentrated or stimulating food, like cotton-seed or corn-meal. The best remedy to my knowledge is one ounce saltpetre in the feed. Use this medicine two or three times, and frequently foment the udder with hot soap-suds. Anything that interferes with the condition of the cow after calving may produce milk-fever. Exposure, too much exercise, or nervous excitement, are all sufficient to bring on an attack, and a recovery is of rare occurrence. It is the "ounce of prevention" in this case, as in so many others, that is worth the pound of cure. Keep the animal quiet for a week before and after calving, and nurse her well.—John Dimon.

Live For Something.

Thousands of men breath, move and live—pass off the stage of life, and heard of no more. Why? They did not a particle of good in the world; and none were blessed by them, none could point to them as the instruments of their redemption; not a line they wrote, not a word they spoke could be recalled, and so they perished; their light went out in darkness, and they are not remembered more than the insects of yesterday. TWO DANGEROUS SEASONS.

Spring and fall are times when so many people get sick. The changes in the weather are severe on feeble persons, and even those naturally strong are apt as they say, "to be feeling miserable." Then they are just in condition to be struck down with some kind of fever. A bottle or two of Parker's Tonic will invigorate the digestion, put the liver, kidneys and blood in perfect order, and prevent more serious attacks. Why suffer, and perhaps die, when so simple a medicine will save you? Good for both sexes and all ages. 44w4

[illegible] months I was given up to die!!!

"When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that ever was known.

"I called the doctors again, and after several weeks they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I poohed at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again.

In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since."

It has also cured my wife, who had been sick for years; and has kept her and my children well and healthy with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used.

Young girls are timid and shy in courses, and if a fellow is not pretty certain he has found precisely the angel he is looking for, he can manage so as to have the refusal of her for a year or more and at the same time manage to keep his neck out of the reach of a breach of promise suit when he happens to meet some other sweet-faced angel that seems to him better suited to his taste.

It is different with a widow. She gets rid of all her shyness at the earliest convenient opportunity and finds out the principal things she desires to know of him before she allows him to get acquainted. The school girl of sixteen trusts herself to a fine young fellow on sixty or ninety day's sight without security, but the widow, like a thrifty wholesale house, goes out and examines the mercantile reports concerning him and then sells him on her own terms for cash. She has him sized up before he comes to market, and she looks as if she were a very artless creature and fights shy of him whenever he happens to sit a little close to her on a sofa, and there are ten chances to one that he will never look any further, but will buckle right up to her and put the question fairly and squarely, and when he has done so she is not going to tremble all over and blush and ask for a week or a month in which to make up her mind. She will just wind her arms around his neck and look up into his face with one of Ella Wheeler's fiery yearns, and before he has time to catch his breath, he will find himself nailed to the cross with a "yes" that pierces him to his very soul.—[Through Mail.

Unhealthy Positions of the Body.

Those persons engaged in occupations requiring the hands alone to move, while the lower limbs remain motionless, should bear in mind that without constantly raising to an erect position, and giving a slight exercise to all parts of the body, such a practice will tend to destroy their health. They should, moreover, sit in as erect a position as possible

With seamstresses there is always more or less stooping of the head and shoulders, tending to retard circulation respiration, and digestion, and produce curvature of the spine. The head should be thrown back, to give the lungs full play. The frequent long drown breath of the seamstress evinces the cramping and confinement to the lungs. Health cannot be expected without free respiration. The life-giving element is in the atmosphere, and without it is proportionate abundance must disease intervene. Strength and robustness must come from exercise. Confined attitudes are in violation of correct theories of healthy physical developement and the instincts of nature. Those accustomed to sit writing for hours, day after day after day, can form some idea of the exhausting nature of the toilsome and ill-paid labor of the poor seamstress.

M.M. Williams the Druggist, who is always looking after the interest of his customers, has now secured the sale of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup, a remedy that never fails to cure Coughs, Colds, Pains in the Chest and all Lung affections. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Semples free. tf

KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Cures a Terrible Case of Gravel when Other Help Failed.

What is Gravel? what causes it, and who are most liable to it? It is frequently attended with acute pain, and unless relief can be found, produces inflammation and death. Both sexes and all ages are liable to it, although men who have reached or passed middle age are its most common victims. Nothing is more urgently nieeded than a reliable medicine for Gravel, as the disease seems on the increase, and we are glad to say that such a specific is now before the public in the form of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y. We put in evidence the following letter, selected from many similar communications:

Pittsfield, Mass., March, 1884.

Dr. David Kennedy.

Dear Sir:—You have a right to know, and I desire the public to know my experience with Gravel and my remarkable recovery through the use of your "FAVORITE REMEDY." I am a carpenter living in this place, and there are plenty of witnesses to the truth of what I say. My first comparatively slight attack of Gravel was in the year 1878. It passed away, and I had little more trouble until last July, 1883. One day when at work in my shop I was suddenly seized with a keen and terrible pain in my left side. I consulted two physicians at once. One said: "I can do nothing for you. Your case is incurable!" I was frightened and went to the second, who said little, but gave me a prescription. It did no good.

Then began a series of experiences the agony and horror of which words cannot depict. Think of it! I was sometimes taken in the street, and would fall writhing with agony upon the sidewalk. It was death in life. Thank Heaven, I then heard of "KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY," through Mr. P. P. Cooley. I had not used half a bottle when I passed three stones in succession, one of which was nearly one-half an inch long. I persevered with the medicine, the symptoms gradually abated, and I have had no more trouble since. I am well, thanks to you and "FAVORITE REMEDY." Yours most gratefully,

JAMES D. KENNEDY.

What "FAVORITE REMEDY" did in this case it has done in many others. If you desire to do so Address—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. SUPREME COURT—Oswego County. George M. Case against Thomas R. Wright, Schuyler C. Schenck, First National Bank of Fulton, Eunice L. Root as Executrix etc. of John H. Root, deceased, and Jason H. Markham. Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale in above entitled action, made at an adjourned Special Term of this court held at Oswego on April 25th, 1885, and duly entered in the Oswego county clerk's office on that day, I the subscriber, to whom it was by said judgment duly referred, will sell, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the law office of H. E. Nichols, in the village of Fulton, N. Y., on the 13th day of June, 1885, 10 o'clock a. m., the lands and premises by said Judgment directed to be sold and described as follows, viz.:

An equal undivided one-half part of all that tract or parcel of land situate in the town of Volney, county of Oswego, and State of New York, being a part of Lot number thirty-nine (39) in the fifteenth Township of Scriba's Patent, and being one hundred fifty-four and 85-100 acres thereof, and being the same premises deeded to said Wright, by John W. Pratt, by deed dated June 20th, 1881; to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

Also all those other certain tracts or parcels of land situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego, and State of New York, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

1st parcel. Part of Lot number sixty-three (63) of the original township of Hannibal, now Granby, and being one hundred forty-six and five-tenths acres thereof, and being the same premises conveyed to said Wright by James Bancroft and wife, by deed dated March 20th, 1878; to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

2d parcel. Being a part of Lot number fifty-three (53) of said original Township of Hannibal, and being the one hundred and forty-nine and one tenth acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright by James C. Jones and William H. Jones by deed dated August 1st, 1867, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, in book 117 of deeds, at page 440, excepting and reserving however the fifty (50) acres thereof, heretofore sold and conveyed by said Wright to to which said deeds, conveyances and records thereof, reference is hereby made for a more particular description of the ninety-nine and one-tenth acres hereby intended to be conveyed.

3d parcel. Being a part of said Lot number 53, and being fourteen acres thereof, bought by said Wright of Calvin Gifford and conveyed to him by deed dated November 27th, 1875, to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

4th parcel. Being a part of said Lot number 53, and being the twenty (20) acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright, by Eunice Hones, by deed dated and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, in book of deeds, page ; to which reference is hereby made, for a more particular description, said 20 acres also adjoins said 99 and 1-10 acres in 2d parcel on the East.

5th parcel. Being a part of Lot number seventy-five (75) of said original Township of Hannibal, and being the twenty six and 1-10 acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright by The [illegible] Manufacturing Company, by deed dated [illegible] 1st, 1878, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, in book 180 of deeds, at page [illegible] deed and record of the same [illegible] made for a more particular description.

There, soft! you may crush it,
For it is a dude!
Look at the garments,
Clinging like cerements
And the bright locks of hair
Dipped in Cologne,
With the part in the middle,
Which won it endearments,
And the vacant and hopeless air,
Wholly its own.
Pick it up tenderly!
Helpless, inane;
Poor fated innocent,
Choked on its cane.
Had it a father, had it a mother,
Had it a sister, or may be a brother,
Who allow'd it to wander
So far from its home?
Did they dream they would lose it
If suffered to roam?
Poor thing, so young in years,
Not worth a dollar,
See how its suffering ears
Hang on its collar.
Still the world moves along!
Why pause to miss
Out of its busy throng
One life like this?

Neck broken, we think.
Cause—hat set too far back,
And something to drink,
Stomach weak, lemonade
Went to its brain;
Felt itself going, and Swallowed its cane.

DUTY.

A Tale Of War Days.

The bright sunlight of a clear April morning was stealing in through the half closed shutters of the parlor of Mrs. Clayton's pleasant home, and lighting with occasional flashes the fine face of Albert Marshall, as he paced restlessly across the room, and encircling with a halo of golden light the bowed head of the young girl half reclining in the low window seat.

Out of doors all was bright and beautiful, scarcely in harmony with the sorrowing excitement which was convulsing every Federal heart, for the electric wires had borne to every part of the North the tidings of the defeat of her sons by the Confederates.

It was that which lighted up Albert Marshall's face with such stern enthusiasm, and caused his restless movements across the sunlighted room.

"It has become a matter of duty now" he was saying with sparkling eyes; "the best blood of our native State has been shed by the Rebels, and it is time every man who can shoulder a musket should use it to redress the wrong! My place is in the ranks, and I cannot shrink from duty now. Do you bid me go, Genie? Are you willing I should go?"

"How can you ask it?" she said at last, with lips which quivered in spite of her effort at self control. "You know full well I should never be willing!

"Not when you know it is my duty, and that I should be proving myself a coward and traitor to shrink from it?" he said earnestly.

"It is not duty," she answered impatiently; "it is only a boyish enthusiasm in you—a love of change and excitement."

"Only a boyish enthusiasm! O Genie," he said, reproachfully, "how little you understand the feelings of a man in such a moment as this, when our country's flag has been torn down and defied. I must go, Genie! I cannot shrink from the duty so sternly imposed. In one month, Genie," he resumed, after waiting in vain for an answer, "you were to have been my wife, and I came here this morning to ask you to forestall that time and become mine before we part. Shall it be so, darling?"

He bent tenderly over her, awaiting her answer.

For a minute or two she remained silent; then raising her head, and turning towards him a face white with intense feeling, she said with passionate earnestness, "No, not now, nor ever, if you persist in this mad scheme."

He rose slowly to his feet, and stood with folded arms sternly regarding her.

"Virginia Clayton!"

"Albert Marshall!"

There they stood face to face: his, revealing sorrow, disappointment and surprise— hers firmness, scorn and defiance.

"Virginia," he said at length in slow, measured tones, "what am I to understand by this?"

"Just what I have said; if you persist in this, our engagement is broken forever! The man whom I marry must love me well enough to be willing to sacrifice his wishes to mine, and not, for a little vain glory, rush headlong into danger, from which reason and judgment would restrain him."

"And is this your final decision?" he asked coldly.

"It is. You can take your choice—remain at home and I will be your wife at the appointed time, but persist in this absurd scheme of leaving home and friends, from a mistaken idea of duty, and we part forever, for I must stand first; no other love must come between me and the man I marry."

Very, very eloquently he pleads with her, portraying in vivid colors all the necessities of the case; but all in vain. Virginia Clayton was very selfish, but firm as granite in that selfishness; to all his arguments she only answered, "I [illegible] no other alternative."

[illegible]

"Thus would I cast out from my heart," he said bitterly, "every thought of a woman so unworthy my love, that at the moment when I needed love and sympathy most, sternly withheld them except on condition of my becoming a coward and a traitor! I wish you joy of your freedom, Miss Clayton."

He bowed haughtily and turned to leave the room, but his better nature triumphed; he could not leave in anger the woman he had loved better than his own life, even though she had proved herself unworthy. Another moment, and he was beside her, folding her in his arms with all his old tenderness.

"May heaven forgive you, Genie," he said, sorrowfully, "the great wrong you are doing us both. One day you will think differently from what you do now. Heaven bless you!" And with a hurried kiss he was gone.

With eyes half blinded with tears she watched him until he was lost to her sight; then, burying her face in the sofa cushions, gave way to a passionate burst of weeping.

For three long months Virginia Clayton had lived in alternate hope and fear; and now the terrible battle of Bull Run had been fought. She knew the Sixteenth was engaged in it; three days had passed, and with what anxiety she had waited for tidings from one member of that regiment you and I can imagine, who have waited thus for tidings of one dearer than our lives.

At last among a list of wounded men conveyed to various Washington hospitals, she read with a sharp pain at her heart, "Captain Albert Marshall, in the breast, seriously!"

Neither pride or selfishness could keep her from him now, and in six and-thirty hours she stood in the office of the hospital, inquiring for Captain Marshall, Whether she were wife, sweetheart, or sister, the attendant could not have told; but the pale face, intensely brilliant eyes, and the half faltering accents of the voice, told that she was one whose happiness hung upon his answer; and his tones softened while the usual abruptness of his manner became gentle almost as a woman, as his lips spoke the words which crushed her last hope—"Died this morning at ten."

There was no outcry from the pale lips; only a hand of iron seemed grasping her heart—a terrible weight had fallen upon her brain, crushing every feeling. Then slowly, as if every limb were turned to stone, she moved mechanically towards the door.

Some one from the outside opened it before she reached it.

Without looking up, she stepped aside, but the new comer seemed in no haste to pass, and for an instant both stood silently, until her name, spoken in terms which thrilled every fiber of her heart, caused her to raise her eyes with a sudden start of glad surprise: for there, before her, in health and strength, stood the man she mourned as dead. Joy seldom kills, but the sudden reaction of feeling left her faint and weak, and she would have fallen had not his arm lent a willing support.

An half-hour later, seated together in a private parlor of a hotel, when their mutual explanations were over, she believed herself to be the happiest woman in all the world. So sudden, so unexpected had this happiness come that she almost feared lest it should slip again from her grasp; and her heart went up to heaven in earnest thanksgiving for this great blessing, while she humbly prayed to be made worthy of it.

The mistake which had caused her so much sorrow, was occasioned by her ignorance of the fact that Albert Marshall had a cousin bearing the same name as himself, an officer in a Western regiment, who had received his death-wound in the same battle from which he had escaped unhurt. In reading the name, Virginia had never stopped to see that the regiment was not the one for which she was looking; but she never regretted the mistake which had so effectually cured her of her pride and selfishness, which had been the curse of her life.

With the disastrous battle of Bull Run Albert Marshall's term of service expired, and a few days later he returned to his native town, where the vows so rudely broken were renewed at the altar —[Chicago Popular Monthly.

Something For the Baby.

What a terrible affliction about the house is a cross, crying baby! A young man on the very edge of matrimony might easily be frightened from his purpose by having too much of that sort of music at the homes of his married friends. Yet babies cry commonly only when they are sick. One teaspoonful of Parkers Tonic given the little one, will bring rest and sleep to the baby and all in the house. Only 50 cents, at druggists. 1m1

THE PROPER THING.

Bengalines grow slowly in fashionable favor.

Face veils are de rigueur with dressy street toilets.

Eton, Spanish and zouave jackets are worn by young girls in their teens.

Red and yellow, golden brown and tan are immensely popular spring colors.

Golden oats and wheat are sold by the head for bonnet and hat trimmings.

The jersey is the best bodice for lawn tennis, for it is a game that is rough on sleeves.

The Recamier coiffure requires the use of a large old fashioned comb of tortoise shell or jeweled metal.

China crape and sailcloth is an admired, frequent combination in the trimming of French hats.

Red woolen lace trims admirably dark blue cloth and blue wool etamine suits for seaside and mountain wear.

More and more marked grow the differences between street and indoor frocks, morning, afternoon, and evening toilets.

English mohair fabrics, plain and broche, are found in all the large retail dry goods houses in both double and single widths.

Veils of tulle and crepe lisse in every imaginable shade of color and black are finely dotted with gold, silver, steel, bronze or jet.

Even silver grey can be made loud and striking by too free use of bright steel or silver braid, tinsel, fringe, balls, embroidery or motifs.

Morning dresses and elegant house toilets are made dressy with profuse use of ribbons in bows, flots, cascades, panels, and floating loops and ends.

The height and trimmings of hats and bonnets are as exaggerated as ever, and yet comparatively few of these exaggerated shapes are seen in the streets as yet.

The French production of silk handkerchiefs in Oriental colors and designs, shot with gold, are utilized to an enormous extent for trimming fine hats and bonnets.

More and more golden grow bonnets, hats, scarfs, accessories of the toilet, dress trimmings and broche stuffs of all kinds, either for dresses or upholstery and house decorative effects.

Very rich summer black dresses are made of China crape, embroidered for the skirt, and overdresses of black lace, but the richer combination is made of satin rhadames for the skirt and under dress, while the overdress is of black llama or Chantilly lace, in the old patterns and designs.

Short visite mantles with the sleeves entirely of jet embroidery or jet net, and the body of plain velvet, satin, or grenadine broche, are trimmed with jet fringes, jet macaroons, and motifs. Sometimes the sleeves are of plain stuff, while the body is covered with jet bead embroidery or net.

The printed Khyber cloths sold at 18 cents a yard are just the thing to combine with self-covered veilings at 15 cents a yard, for lawn and garden party dresses. The beige, twine colored, and tan woolen laces are the correct trimmings for these dresses, and cheap ribbons make them dressy and chic.

A HEROIC DEED.

Surpassing Even the Deeds of Prowess of Every-day Life.

A few months ago the country was thrilled with the account of a girl who, at the risk of her life, when the whirling flood of the swollen rivers was wresting great bridges from their foundations, skipped along the ties of the western railway, lantern in hand, and saved a train from certain destruction. The state of Iowa awarded her a suitable medal for her bravery. In this instance it was a child who saved the lives of many adults, but as a rule the life of the child is in the hands of older persons.

In November, 1883, a little eight year-old son of Danish parents was suffering with diphtheria. The attack was not severe, but he did not seem to rally after the throat appeared perfectly well. Nausea, headache and low fever succeeded the sore throat, and two or three days afterwards his limbs began to swell mysteriously. The skin became very dry, vomiting was frequent, nose-bleed persistent, and nothing would stay in his stomach. "It was evident to our minds," says Mrs. Thomas Schmidt, wife of the vice-consul of Denmark, residing at Netherwood, N. J., "that some mysterious malady was working ruin in his system. Our physician said he had the terrible bright's disease. To our suggestion that a certain preparation be tried, he made no objection. We gave him six doses a day, two teaspoonfuls at a dose, in sweetened water. It remained upon his stomach, and within a week there was marked improvement. The bowles became regular without the use of cathartics, and the nausea diminished; in three weeks there was a subsidence of the dropsy, and by the middle of May the limbs were perfectly normal. He had a good apyetite, and though he had spent six months in bed, he did not feel particularly weak. In June he was out feeling perfectly well and in July he weighed eight pounds more than he did before he was taken sick. To-day there is only a slight unfavorable condition in his system, and the physicians say we have every reason to believe the child will be perfectly well."

Mrs. Schmidt is certainly to be congratulated on the good results which followed the use of Warner's safe cure, and she says: "We feel bound to make this truly wonderful result known and are perfectly willing to have this letter published." Gratifying as is the result wrought, it is by no means singular, for thousands of children, who seem weak and puny, have had their entire nature changed and their future assured by a prompt use of the preparation. Such disorders are transmitted by inheritance, or arise from children's epidemic diseases, the evil effects of which often prove fatal in later life. The ill-health of many children is that their kidneys and liver are not performing their natural work.

It was a brave feat of the brave girl who crossed the swollen stream on the bridge to save the lives of the passengers; but it was a braver deed, and one worthy of wider recognition which, seeing the perils awaiting childhood, free from prejudice, with a purpose only to save by any effective means, preserves to us the lives of our children.

THE CRIMINAL LAWS.

A wise suggestion was that made by Gov. Hill to the Legislature last week, with reference to a change in the criminal laws of the State, and should have been acted upon by that body. The Governor should have introduced this bill earlier. Everybody knows of the vexatious and costly delays attended in a murder trial, and of the robbery and plunder of the counties, caused by our crooked and unwholesome laws. The Governor proposes to amend the code of criminal procedure so as to avoid the present delay. He says: "However strenuously a district attorney may labor to have swift justice meted out to murderers, the law itself makes this an impossibility, and intervals of one and two years between conviction and punishment are the rule and not the exception." Take for instance the case of the cold-blooded murderer, Orlando Greenfield, which was tried in this county some few years since, of whose guilt there was not a moment's chance for doubt. That case cost Oswego county over $50,000. Think of it! See the reform which Gov. Hill's suggestion contemplates. Who reaps the benefit of these scandalous trials which are transferred from court to court? The lawyers, of course. Therefore with a Legislature composed mostly of lawyers it is not to be wondered at that they would not put forth any great effort to quelch this costly evil. The Governor could hardly expect, however, the Legislature would act upon so important a recommendation at that late hour. In the delay then is where Gov. Hill was weak.

OUR ASSEMBLYMEN.

The work of the Legislature of 1885, whose session closed last Friday does not compare altogether favorably with that of 1884. There were bills which failed that should have become laws. The records of the Oswego county assemblymen is very creditable as well as laudable as will be seen by the following summary account:

Mr. Howe's bills relative to Oswego bonds and water works, also his code amendments and his bill allowing appeals by the Superintendents of the Poor from County Courts to the General Term, are now before the Governor and will no doubt meet with his approval. Through his efforts a bill was passed allowing stenographers to appear before grand jurys. He was also instrumental in the defeat of the Lewiston repudiation bill, and also the bill relative to the draining of Montezuma marsh, which would have materially effected navigation and manufacturing on the Oswego river. Mr. Howe's record is as a rule very creditable.

Mr. Sweet's bill—now a law—which provides that the dairy commissioner shall make a brand or mark which shall designate the quality of cheese or other dairy products contained in vessels and tubs thus branded or marked. The Governor has these bills: three local bills relative to justices of the peace; legalizing the hearing of the claims of Costello & Curtis before the Court of Claims. The bill making radical changes in the tax law relative to offsets by reason of debts was killed in the Assembly.

BRADSTREET'S says: The volume of merchandise being distributed is below late averages. At no prominent distributing centre is the movement of goods equal to previous anticipation, and at most of them the situation is characterized by no special activity in any line. The patchwork arrangements between the western and the north-western railways as to rates, leaves the causes of the late rate cutting—too little business and too many roads—undistributed. The opening of the lake and canal navigation finds rates on wheat from Chicago to New York 8¼c. a bushel, against 7c. last year. This is encouraging. The interest in the industrial situation, centers about the coming contest between the Amalgamated association of iron and steel workers and the manufacturers alliance. The shortage in the growing crop promises to be exclusively in winter wheat, and to amount to about 100,000,000 bushels. The exports continue checked and ocean freights low. A better feeling has been shown in some lines of grocery staples, but on the whole there is not much improvement. Dairy products are dull at lower prices. There is much more likelihood than a month ago, of the wholesale stoppage of eastern mills during the summer.

THE boatmen on the Erie canal in New York have had hard times two or three years past. Competition from the railroads has been destructive, and apparently with the intention of destroying the boating business. The elevator charges have also been excessive. To add to these difficulties, boatmen have had fierce competition among themselves for what business fall to their share. This last evil they propose to remedy by co-operation, the boatmen forming a stock company, putting in all the boats and teams at a fair valuation, and dividing the profits, if any, in the fall. If this plan works, the Erie canal can become a much more formidable competitor [illegible]

[illegible] in Michigan, destroying millions of feet of lumber and other property. Buildings are endangered in many localities.

SNOWDEN was the winner in the Madison Square six days roller skating contest, making 1,166 miles. This beats the score made by the late Donovan.

ROBERT E. OLDUM, a noted swimmer, met his death yesterday from the results of a jump off Brooklyn bridge, a distance of 135 feet. When within thirty feet of the water he began to turn on his side, striking the surface like a shell. He died soon after being picked up.

THE Syracuse Herald company gave a banquet to its retiring editor, Mr. Francis E. Leupp, Thursday night, at the Globe hotel. One hundred guests were present, including newspaper men from all parts of the state. A large number of letters of regret were read. Mr. Leupp has been the editor of the Herald for seven years.

THE New York Sun says that unless Secretary Manning abandons his proclaimed purpose of keeping in the treasury $100,000,000 in gold as a reserve fund for the redemption of legal tender notes, he will very soon, for all other purposes, have to suspend gold payments. The available gold in his hands, Saturday, amounted to $115,398,000 which is $26,000,000 less than on January 2d.

COPIES of the revised version of the old Testament appeared last week for the first time. This revision is considered the most important event in the history of the English Bible since the publication of King James' translation in 1611. It presents the combined results of the labor of a large number of the best Hebraists and Biblical scholars of England and the United States, most of them professors of Hebrew in universities and seminaries.

GOV. HILL has issued a proclamation calling for an extra session of the Legislature which will meet to-day to decide whether or not we are to have a state census taken. The Governor is not in favor of the present census laws which were made in 1855, while the Legislature insists that the law is a good one and refuses to repeal it. The census question is still uncertain. It is probable that the Legislature will re-enact the census bill which Gov. Hill vetoed (and which he vowed he would not sign) and adjourn sine die.

THE rebel Reil was captured Friday noon by three daring scouts on the road near Batouche. He acted unconcerned. At the appearance of Mayor Boulton, who arrived a few minutes after his capture, Reil became frightened and begged them not to shoot him. He was taken into camp and marched directly to the general's tent. Riel asked for a civil trial. He looked care-worn and haggard. It is believed that the capture of Reil will end the rebellion.

Trustees' Proceedings.

Fulton, May 13, 1885.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present, the President and Trustees Bradford, Johnson, and Hulett.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Trustees Kendrick, Chase and Gage came in.

The President appointed Mr Hulett as a member of the committee on Finance and claims, lamps and supplies and ordinances.

The finance committee reported the following bills and recommended their payment and on motion the same were duly audited and the clerk directed to draw orders accordingly, payable from the proper funds, viz:

		claimed	allowed
John White, gas for lamps		$103.95	$103.95
repairing	"	1.48	148

On motion of Mr. Johnson, the finance committee were instructed to see about making a contract for the price of gas.

The street committee reported that they had made some examination of the streets, and also of places where gravel could be obtained, and asked for further time.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick the street committee were given until the next meeting of the Board.

On motion of Mr. Gage it was ordered that the clerk advertise for sealed proposals for lighting street lamps for the ensuing year, such proposals to be handed in at the next meeting of the Board.

A communication from Mr. H. Soule, of Syracuse, N. Y., accompanying plans for cast iron and wrought iron bridge over Hydraulic canal on Oneida street, was read and the same were ordered placed on file.

On motion of Mr. Gage the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the license of the Fulton skating Rink for the ensuing year be and the same is hereby fixed at $50.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the license of Stephens' Opera House for the ensuing year be and the same is hereby fixed at $50.

On motion of Mr. Gage the Street Commissioner was instructed to enforce the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relative to animals straying or being herded or pastured in any of the public streets or parks of this village.

The matter of encroachment upon Cayuga street between 5th and 6th streets, being under consideration, motion of Mr. Johnson, the clerk was instructed to ascertain and report to the next meeting of the board whether or not the notice to remove such encroachments had been duly served.

On motion of Mr. Johnson the board adjourned to Wednesday evening, May 27th inst, at 8 o'clock.

GENERAL NEWS.

The total debt of Virginia is $29,218,000.

Minister Pendleton has arrived at Berlin.

A large detachment of United States troops arrived in New York from Aspinwall Saturday.

Negotiations for a commercial treaty between England and Spain have been broken off, Spain having failed to fulfill her promises.

The title to about three-quarters of the ground upon which the city of Pullman stands, will probably be contested shortly in the Illinois court. The amount of property involved is valued at $1,500,000. The claimant is Archibald Millspaugh of Albion, Michigan.

Harper's Magazine.

With the June number is begun the seventy-first number of Harper's Magazine, having been established in 1850. The opening article, "Ladies Day at the Ranch" is of rare interest, giving a full season's visit to a sheep ranch in Texas, by a company of married and unmarried people, leaving the city with ample means and a love for nature, as shown upon the luxurant prarirle. The pictures are beautifully drawn and make the reader wish he was among the happy company. "How earthquakes are formed," by R. A. Proctor is a useful article and will be read with interest. It gives a different cause for the occurrance of earthquakes than is generally supposed, yet the author's theory seems entirely reasonable and will be conceded as a correct one. A large number of interesting and timely articles are embraced in this number. A leading attraction for the new volume will be a new serial story, by Howells entitled "Indian Summer." This will doubtless add largely to the demand for this already noted magazine.

[illegible] With [illegible] and old cheese fairly taken up, there may be a good demand for grass cheese if the quality is what it ought to be. One thing is certain, until the stock of old cheese in England is disposed of, we cannot look for much improvement here. Times are hard over there, cheese men have lost a great deal of money and they are bound to be cautious this year. And they will not buy new stock so long as they have old on hand.

Transactions of the day are as follows: 3 lots, 95 boxes, at 7¾c.; 29 lots, 2,215 boxes, at 8c.; 4 lots, 279 boxes, at 8⅛c.; 12 lots, 1,009 boxes, at 8¼c. sales 3,979 boxes; commissions 1,915; total 5,612 boxes; ruling price 8c. One year ago we sold 6,014 boxes, ruling 11¼c. Two years ago 6,418, ruling 11½c.

LITTLE FALLS, May 18.

CHEESE.—The cheese trade here to-day may safely be said to be demoralized. It was most discouraging to both buyers and sellers—to buyers whose advice would not in most cases allow purchasers on any basis, or salesmen who are forced in most part to send stocks forward on consignment or hold and await developments. Nobody appears to understand why the market has assumed such shape, as there is not a large surplus of stocks in New York and production thus far this season has been light. Only two or three buyers ventured to fix prices to any extent, a dozen or more others standing ready to take consignments. It was generally admitted that buyers have lost money the past two or three weeks, and it seems they are tired of this sort of business. All are hoping for better things soon, tho' most talk discouraging. The transactions to-day are as follows:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
3	149	7½ cts.
26	1,094	8 cts.
4	392	p. t.
49	2,599	Com.
81	4,231
Farm Dairy	417
Total	4,681

FARM DAIRIES.—There were 447 boxes changed hands at 5½@8c. and commission, most in the latter class. At these sales there were most at 7½c

BUTTER.—There were 22 packages of creamery butter sold at 20c., and 35 packages farm dairy at 17@19c., most at 18c.

AT FULTON.

Monday was the first sale day of the season at the Fulton market. There was a good attendance, but the disposition of the salesmen to sell was very poor when the Utica ruling was received, which was 8 cents. The salesmen looked rather down hearted and were much dissatisfied with the price. There was but 250 boxes offered and 150 sold. Osborn and Hoose did the buying. The New York Tribune speaking of the Fulton market and the cheese industry says:

The outlook for cheese, for the present at least, is poor. Buyers are shy, and although the season is two weeks late, there is only a limited demand. The product is as yet small, for cows are getting very little out of the pastures, and all have to feed on hay or ground feed. The price of cheese must remain low while dealers are still stocked with old cheese. Oswego county is becoming a large manufacturer of cheese, and the low rates in freight, and the quick time made by the New York, Ontario and Western road have made Fulton a cheese centre, and a large number of buyers regularly attend their sales day.

Much anxiety is felt by the friends of Geo. Hall, of Mt. Pleasant, who went to Earlville, Madison county, about two weeks ago to sell his hops. Word was received the Tuesday following that he had sold his hops, $200 or $300 worth. He also sent home a box of tools at that time, and has not been heard of since. It is feared he has met foul dealing.

Machinist.

Mr. George Karg, Machinist, 1138 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., says:—"My disease started when I was quite a young lad by having weak kidneys. I have used just six bottles of HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY, and I solemnly proclaim, 'I feel like a new man.'"

* * "Good counsel has no price, obey it." * *

Mechanic.

Mr. Henry Williams, Mechanic, East Bridgeport, Conn., says:—"About two months ago I caught a heavy cold, which settled in my kidneys. I got a bottle of HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY and with the first dose began to get well."

* * * "Light suppers makes long lives." * * *

Railroad Man.

Frank B. Lee, office N. Y. C. & H. R. R. Little Falls, N. Y., June 8, 1883, says: "My father, 62 years old, had severe kidney and bladder disease for 20 years, urination causing acute pain. The weakness was so great he was obliged to wear a rubber bag. Twelve bottles of HUNT'S Kidney REMEDY completely cured him, and we consider it remarkable. We cheerfully recommend it."

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO'S

IMPROVED

BUTTER COLOR

A NEW DISCOVERY.

For several years we have furnished the Dairymen of America with an excellent artificial color for butter; so meritorious that it met with great success everywhere receiving the highest and only prizes at both International Dairy Fairs.

But by patient and scientific chemical research we have improved in several points, and now offer this new color as the best in the world.

It Will Not Color the Buttermilk. It Will Not Turn Rancid. It is the Strongest, Brightest and Cheapest Color Made.

And, while prepared in oil, is so compounded that it is impossible for it to become rancid.

BEWARE of all imitations, and of all other oil colors, for they are liable to become rancid and spoil the butter.

If you cannot get the "improved" write us to know where and how to get it without extra expense. (46)

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

Commencing Monday April 6

And a very proper question for most people of Oswego county to ask themselves is

Where Can We

spend our money to the best advantage. And where should we go but to McCarthy's.

In the first place he can

SELL CHEAPER

because he buys directly from the manufacturer thereby saving 10 per cent. on cost of goods.

He buys strictly for cash thereby saving 7 per cent.

By this you will see the goods reach his counters 17 per cent

TO THE PUBLIC.

With this issue, THE FULTON TIMES enters upon the eighteenth year of its existence. While feeling assured that our efforts in the past have been fully appreciated, we shall redouble them in the future to make THE TIMES what it should be to the people of Fulton and vicinity—a live, local newspaper, second to none in the county. Our subscription list has been steadily increasing of late, thus greatly adding to the value of THE TIMES as an advertising medium. For the generous support that has been extended to us in the past by our patrons we feel duly grateful, and shall earnestly endeavor to be considered worthy of its continuance in the future.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

We offer a remarkable opportunity to all our readers and new subscribers to obtain

A Splendid Book Free!

No one wants to try the experiment of living without eating. When we do eat we want our food nicely cooked and with wholesome variety. Our "gude wives" will rejoice in this chance to obtain, free, a Cook Book that is fast getting a National reputation; for in many ways this book comes as the very one needed, and each copy makes a host of friends for itself. The great charm of it is in the fact that the book is absolutely practical, economical and sensible. The recipes are time-tried and tested and have been most carefully selected from over 20,000 of the very best housekeepers' treasuries of knowledge. And in addition to this the book is full of wise, short, and pointed statements of how to do things and use things to the best of labor-saving and money-saving ways. If you have fifty other cook books, you cannot afford to do without this one, for it will come and take the place of all the others combined. The price of the book is 50 cents, bound in heavy paper cover. Now for our [illegible] to— That the sprinkler only [illegible] the prominent stores on First street, and thus allows the dust from in front thereof to blow into all the business places that pay for keeping the same under control?

That divers merchants are allowed to encumber the principal portion of the main streets with old dry goods boxes, salt barrels, signs &c. &c., that afford convenient roosting places for loafers, and a constant source of profanity to citizens who are compelled to traverse the streets in the night time?

That our village fathers allow the sewer that was opened diagonally across First street some time last fall, to remain impaired, making a mud hole of unsightly aspect and a pile of paving stone to remain on the west side of the street, the beauty of which is enhanced by the presence of an old wagon bearing the legend "for sale," to continue in the principal thoroughfare for so many months. It would seem as though some one should have pride enough in the "eternal fitness of things," to abate this long continued nuisance.

Fire in the Lewis House

Last Friday evening about 9 o'clock, fire was discovered in the porter's room in the Lewis House. In this room, which is on the lower floor immediately back of the stairs, all the lamps of the house are filled, and a large ten gallon can of kerosene which had been recently replenished, was kept. This, from some cause was fired. The door was fastened and when the fire was discovered the interior of the room was in flames. A bucket brigade was formed, and before a stream of water was obtained from the steamers, which were promptly on hand in response to the alarm, the fire was subdued. Had this fire occured later in the evening, it is very probable that the entire block would have been destroyed, with considerable loss of life. The damage is estimated at $200 which is covered by insurance.

OBITUARY.

Geo., A Washburn, a farmer living about a mile down the river, died last Saturday at his home, aged 51 years. The funeral was held yesterday from the house, under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. Rev. Mr. Barnes of the Universalist church, officiated. He leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters.

Wait W. Hudgins, died at his home in Granby, last Monday, aged 68 years. The funeral was held this forenoon at 11 o'clock, from the house. The body will be buried at Bethel, Cayuga county.

One of the coolest and most pleasant resorts in town is the Vienna Bakery, on First street, where rooms have recently been fitted up as an ice cream parlor. If "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," we can confidently assert that Mr. Barker is an adept in the manufacture of ice cream. The rooms have been tastefully decorated, and we can cordially invite all lovers of the cooling dish to call at the Vienna Bakery and try it for themselves.

It is understood that the Catholic society of this village intend building a fine parsonage, as well as a church, the coming season. The old church will not be converted into a school as has been reported.

Last Sunday a small audience gathered at the Universalist church to listen to Hon. T. M. Taylor of N. Y., who lectured on "Ingersoll's substitute for Christianity". Monday evening he gave his celebrated lecture on "Cranks". Mr. Taylor is a very able, as well as an interesting speaker.

Take a slip of paper and place thereon in figures your age in years, dropping months, weeks and days. Multiply the sum by two; then add to the result obtained the figures 3,768; add two and then divide by two. Subtract from the result obtained the number of your years on earth and see if you will not obtain figures with which you are familiar.

Robert Collyer's lecture on "Clear Grit" at the Opera House last Thursday evening gave great satisfaction to his limited hearers. His discourse was filled with beautiful illustrations and comparisons. Why it is that our citizens do not appreciate such an opportunity as was extended in the appearance of so noted a lecturer as Mr. Collyer, is more than we can account for. The patronage to the lecture course of '85 must be very discouraging to the manager.

The Lacona Fire.

LACONA, May 17.—The fire at this place Friday night broke out in a room in the Barlett block, occupied by Wardwell as a cabinet shop. The loss falls very heavy on the business part of the village most of which was insured for at least one half and some entirely covered. Among those not insured were H. M. Stanward, saloon keeper, losses $2,000; James Hardin, heavy loss on furniture; Nathan Davis and J. T. Goodin, also lose a small amount. On the whole the loss is very large and should be a warning for the future.

Commencing last evening, the shoe stores of this village will close at 8 o'clock p. m., except on Monday and Saturday evenings.

Last Thursday at the residence of Rev. A. M. Roe, in this village, Mr. Myron A. Newton of Syracuse, and Miss Mina E. Chesebro of Fulton, were married.

If the person who took a silk parasol off Mrs. Cooper's show case yesterday morning, will please return it there, they will avoid exposure and oblige the owner.

Balch's Handbook contains the cream of over 50 volumes of reference, is comprised within a single book, and sells at a price that, places it within the reach of all. Examine it.

In another column of the paper will be found a notice from the village board of health in which they state that the sanitary laws will be strictly enforced. The board cannot exercise too much rigidness in this important matter.

Rev. Charles H. Smith will be installed as pastor of the Presbyterian church, next Tuesday, May 26, at 4 p. m. The installation sermon will be preached by the Rev. Mr. Stebbins of Oswego. It is expected that Rev. Mr. Riggs, the former pastor, will be present.

Hines & Moffett of Watertown have been here this week, trying to perfect arrangements for the completion of the water works contract. In reply to an inquiry as to how matters looked, they said that the prospect for a system of water works in Fulton looked very fair. The gentlemen returned to Watertown last evening.

There is said to be fifty carloads of steel rails for the new Phoenix road between Fulton and Oneida. An engine and sufficient cars have been received at the junction, to rapidly push on the work upon the receipt of the iron, etc., which is expected daily. A large number of ties have been laid, and before the week is up, it is probable that quite a stretch of the main track will be laid. An officer of the road said recently that he had twenty applicants for positions on the new road in half a day.

By reference to a card published in another column, it will be seen that the committee on the collection of funds have asked for subscriptions to defray the expenses of a proper observance of Decoration Day. It is to be earnestly hoped that our citizens will respond liberally and promptly to this call, and we would respectfully urge them to do so. From the fact that it occurs but once a year, and as no one will deny the appropriateness of a due observance of the day, it is confidently expected that a generous response will be made. It is the least we can do toward keeping green the memory of the gallant boys in blue who fought so bravely, and enabled us to enjoy the benefits won by their suffering.

[illegible] is a strong point, and if it could be gained, the temperance cause would gain in every way. The treating system as followed in this country is, to my mind, the cause of half the drunkenness of to-day. To illustrate this point I will follow six young men into any saloon in this land:

Scene—O'Reagan's saloon.

Proprietor behind the bar.

Enter six "good fellows": all young, and boon companions.

O'Reagan—Well boys what'll ye have?"

First young man—"This is my treat, boys; what will you drink? Chorus—"Beer!"

This is repeated six times, each treating in turn. Then O'Reagan says, "Have one with me now, gents."

First young man—"Set 'em up again boss!"

And they drink again,—each one treating—but this time it's whisky straight, milk punch or sours. O'Reagan "sets 'em up again," and the six friends separate; light in pocket, clouded in brain.

They wander either to their homes, or into the arms of a policeman. Yet they are jolly good fellows.

Any one can see the error. They drink until they are full in every sense of the word—just because some one else has treated. After the first three or four rounds they take to "ponies," but continue to pay full price for half drinks. The game as they play it is all on O'Reagan's side, and is it any wonder that he can surround himself with mirrors, mahogany, costly glass, and questionable specimens of art?

If any of these young men were to enter the saloon alone they would drink one or two glasses, and leave the place —sober, but with the crowd, it's "drink until you can't see." The bill as framed by the people of Nevada (I believe,) if made a law in this state would do away with this.

In Europe treating to drink is almost unknown, for each man pays for his own liquor. And statistics show that under the word "alcoholism," the highest figures adorn the column of death rates set aside for the United States.

Americans go at drink, as they do at everything, with a rush and a race, and the battle is short too, for it seems only a few days before the prosperous man is either begging on the street, or glaring at you from a padded cell in some inebriate asylum.

* * * * *

I saw a curious drawing last week. It was a map of three of the down town wards of this city, and every saloon was indicated by a small black square. By standing a few feet from the scroll the surface looked like one black blotch. This tells its own story.

* * * * *

Some weeks ago I heard a talk on the adulteration of liquors. The speaker was a well known merchant, and had for some years been in the wholesale liquor trade. I will give only a few extracts from his lecture. Speaking of bourbon he said, that "there is no bourbon whisky in the market to-day. All fictitious bourbon was introduced twenty-four years ago, and the demand was so great that the supply was soon exhausted, and ever since the "old bourbon" has been made by "doctoring" wheat whisky, and other lower grades.

The bourbon of twenty years ago was pure, but with the exhausted new processes, complicated machinery, taxes, inspectors, and gaugers, it has gone down until now it is the lowest, meanest, most devilish drink indulged in by man. Why, the boys and fishes can't live near these whisky factories, and in the face of such facts, what chance does a man stand? You can't find a dealer who will drink his own goods. He knows better, for he it is knows of what they are builded. Then comes French brandy. All I can say for this is, may the Lord pity the man who drinks it. I have an artificial wine at home that judges pronounce "good stuff." Now I know that thirty-two distinct poisons were put in this compound, for I made it myself. It contains a little of everything but grape juice."

This man did not follow the temperance platform for a living, but this was his method of doing his mite for the cause. He was a plain, every day merchant, but his words were true, and carried conviction with them. He told a great many funny jokes, and others not quite so funny that he had met with while in "that damnable trade."

Rink and Polo Items.

Last Monday morning at 10 o'clock seven young men entered into a twelve hour skating race at the rink for a prize of $25. Two of the contestants, Clark and Wilson, withdrew after making about 25 miles, leaving five skaters, who in a period of 11 hours and 12 minutes, made the following score:

	MILES.	LAPS.
McGinty	100	4
Mitchell	85	6
Sylvester	77	2
LaBounty	73	1
Pruner	62	5

17 laps to the mile.

Last evening an amusing as well as scientific (?) game of polo was played at the rink, between teams composed of butchers and grocers of Fulton, which after the most frantic efforts of some of the players to keep their feet out of the cage, was won by the butchers in a score of three to two. Time, 30 minutes. At the conclusion of the game one of the grocers, evidently overcome with remorse at their defeat, attempted to hide himself in the goal, from which he was only extricated by the combined help of the bystanders.

To-morrow evening a game of polo between the Big Six of Baldwinsville and the Fultons will be played in the Fulton rink. The visiting team are said to be physically the largest in the state, and have never lost but one game. An unusually interesting game may be looked for.

Polo was played on horseback at the Casino rink at Utica, the other night, the horses ridden being shod with rubber shoes. The only difficulty was the want of space in which to ride. [illegible]

[illegible] farm and garden culture, the [illegible] for investigation are [illegible] and the methods are simple. The trial of new seeds; the variation of time of planting and harvesting, to determine the best results; experiments with new or unusual crops, as seed-raising, new fodder crops, such as millet, sorghum, mustard, and others; the effects of drainage; the value of special fertilizers, as lime, bone-dust, potash; the trial of the various remedies suggested for insect pests; the methods for preserving posts and other timber; the feeding and management of stock; ensilage; the production of new varieties of vegetables, fruits, grains, and fodder plants, by selection, and it may be by crossing the existing varieties; the invention of agricultural implements, etc. —these are a few of the many interesting branches of agricultural investigation. Consider next the methods of experiment. There are two great essentials at the foundation; exact measurement, and exact record. Measure everything, either by weight, by dimensions, or by duration of time, and keep a systematic record of everything. Add to this thoughtfulness, and you have the whole secret of experimental science. Think what you desire to ascertain, and direct the experiments accordingly. Think over the results of your experiments carefully, and draw your conclusions. In dealing with crops, the customary method is, to divide a sufficient area of land into carefully-measured small plots, and use each plot, or a number for any particular plant under trial. Where it is a question of soil or manures, always have the crop under test on at least one plot, the soil of which is left in a natural condition. The last serves as a basis of comparison with other plots that have been variously fertilized.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

For good celery the soil must be moist and rich.

Let the ground get warm before you put in squashes.

Keep no farm hands that are not kind to your cattle.

Oats and barley sown together make very good feed.

Choose Leghorns for the poultry yard if the sole object is eggs.

Feeding cows' milk to the little lambs pays well for all trouble.

Asparagus should never be cut below the surface of the ground.

Potatoes, raised from large, whole seed, ripen earlier than those from seed cut to single eyes.

Indian corn should be fed sparingly at this season to fowls, as it has a tendency to fatten to an excess.

Don't allow the lantern to be lit in the barn. Even if it goes out, better grope the way to a light place, than run risks of a fire. These are important points to insist upon having the boys and help observe.

The grass that grows in early spring is less nutritious, not only because it is tender and watery, but also from its being grown while air and soil are cold. Even the hay made from this grass is so poor that stock will not thrive upon it, and have to be fed upon grain.

The following should be regarded by those interested in farming: Those who use common fertilizer phosphates should handle them carefully. Nearly all of these commercial fertilizers are partly composed of blood, flesh and bones of dead animals which have come to their death by disease. If by accident the fertilizer comes in contact with a flesh wound or chapped hands, it may result in absorption and severe blood poisoning. This is worth remembering, as it will not be a very long time before thousands of farmers will be handling the fertilizers more or less.

Money and Matrimony.

The reluctance of young men to marry is rapidly taking the shape of one of the most perplexing social problems of our time. In sections where the women outnumber the men by about ten per cent, the situation presents many difficulties. But the disinclinations of young men to marry seems to be in the nature of a contagious epidemic. It is spreading all over the country except in agricultural regions, where people hold fast to old-fashioned ways. The trouble is, too many of our young men are determined to marry rich women, or to accumulate wealth themselves before entering into the wedded state. This state of affairs is unhappy and demoralizing.—[Atlanta Constitution.

[illegible] good, and the grain always wanted at home. No farmer ever has more oats than he know what to do with. Really good, heavy oats, however, are scarce. Many of our oats are a disgrace to us. This is not because the variety is in itself a poor one, but because we have grown it too long without change of seed, and have taken no pains in selecting and preparing the land for the crop. Late sowing means light oats. Early sowing, with other things favorable means heavy oats and a good yield. We like to sow oats on land plowed the fall previous. Sow as early in the spring as the frost is out of the ground —drilled or broadcast as most convenient, not less than two bushels of seed per acre. But as we have said before, oats are frequently sown on the furrows. An implement that will work the surface soil without disturbing the sod, is what is wanted to prepare the land and cover the seed, if sown broadcast. If drilled in, we like to follow with a fine-toothed harrow, and work the surface soil as fine as possible. But do not delay. Get in the seed and work the land afterwards or not, as the season and other work will permit.

Eli Perkins Etiquette.

Engage in an argument with every person you meet.

Never listen to the other person, for if you do you may forget what you want to say yourself.

If you are a professional man, always discuss professional matters in the presence of non-professionals.

If a person makes a mistake in grammar or calls a word wrong, always correct him, especially is there are several people around to hear you.

Never talk in a mild, gentle and musical voice, but toot up high and loud. Drown other people's voices if you can't down their ideas.

When a man is talking, let your eyes wander about the room, and when he gets through ask him to repeat what he said again.

If with a stranger, always use profane and vulgar words. You will be surprised how they will change their estimation of you.

Always talk of your private, personal and family matters while conversing with strangers. They like to listen to long accounts of how you had the rheumatism.

Always make fun of the locality where you are staying. If you don't do that, ridicule or abuse some of the leading citizens. A son or daughter may be present, and they will like to hear you ridicule their old father.

Insist on talking about subjects that the rest of the company have never heard anything about. If you can't find a foreign subject like Europe, or what you did in college, pick out the prettiest girl in the room and whisper to her.

Always pretend to great gentility yourself, and constantly refer to the time when you were at college.

St. John's Short-Sightedness.

St. John, who is very near-sighted, once went to a civic banquet, and forgot his eye-glasses. He sat next to the Chevalier Piqueassiette. The Chevalier's hand was gracefully but negligently posed upon the cloth. A smile of anticipatory satisfaction at the prospect of unlimited turtle soup, illumined his classic features. Suddenly a yell of anguish startled the guests. What had happened? Only this—the myopic St. John had simply but effectually harpooned the lily white hand of the Chevalier with his fork, as he remarked, in a firm but polite tone, "My bread, I think."—[New York World.

Canoeing as an Exercise.

Canoeing promises to be a favorite pastime this season among young men who are fond of athletic exercise. It is a capital form of recreation. Paddling develops both sides of the body, strengthens the chest and hardens all the muscles. It is too, a much more social manner of getting over the water than rowing. You face the prow, see the view ahead instead of behind you, and have none of that machine-like forward-and-back motion which rowing involves.—[illegible]

SCROFULA

Usually develops in early life, and is a peculiar morbid condition of the system, usually affecting the glands, often resulting in swellings, enlarged joints, abscesses, thickening of the lips, enlarged neck, sore eyes. A scrofulous condition is often hereditary, but bad diet, too free use of fat meats, bad air, want of sunshine and nourishing food will induce it. Some people are troubled with scrofulous swelling of the glands, and with ulcers and kernels, which may cause very little pain; others may have inward scrofula, scrofula of the lungs, scrofula of the spleen, scrofula of the kidneys, and scrofula of the bones. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS will drive away any case of scrofula and not to appear in another place, for their action on the blood and bowels will carry the disease entirely from the body.

He Put It Out.

It was over a year ago that Bliss, of Ninth avenue, carried home seven or eight of the hand-grenades used to throw at a blaze and knock an incipient conflagration into a continental cocked hat. He had never met with any loss by fire, but he felt it in his bones that the hour was coming, and he meant to be prepared for it. He put the bottles up in a rack in the hall, and he never went past them without wishing for an opportunity to test their merits. He didn't want to be routed out at midnight and find the roof ablaze, but if he could be on hand when the kitchen stove pipe warmed up the ceiling overhead, or a lamp exploded up stairs, or the ash-barrel got up a bonfire on its own account, he'd show his nerve and laugh at the fire department.

The other night he gave a party, and the long-wished for opportunity came. Someone swung a gas-jet against a curtain, and there were shouts and screams and great confusion. Bliss was as cool as ice. He fell over a chair, upset a young woman, and rushed into the kitchen and got a tea cup of water and doused on the flames. This didn't do any good, and he kicked over a eucher stand and pounded at the flames with a rug. Then he rushed after more water, and this time it was the contents of the dipper which he emptied over the champion progressive eucherist instead of the blazing curtain. It was not until the smoking remnants had been dragged down and flung out doors, that Bliss thought of his grenades, and it wasn't two minutes after he had got hold of one before he had knocked down two men, smashed the parlor mirror and cleared the house of the crowd. Some one turned in an alarm and the engines came out, but Bliss waved a seven dollar tidy out of a broken window in his grimy hand and shouted:

"No use—put up your old machines! First grenade did the whole business without turning a hair."

KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Cures a Terrible Case of Gravel when Other Help Failed.

What is Gravel? what causes it, and who are most liable to it? It is frequently attended with acute pain, and unless relief can be found, produces inflammation and death. Both sexes and all ages are liable to it, although men who have reached or passed middle age are its most common victims. Nothing is more urgently needed than a reliable medicine for Gravel, as the disease seems on the increase, and we are glad to say that such a specific is now before the public in the form of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y. We put in evidence the following letter, selected from many similar communications:

Pittsfield, Mass., March, 1884.

Dr. David Kennedy.

Dear Sir:—You have a right to know, and I desire the public to know my experience with Gravel and my remarkable recovery through the use of your "FAVORITE REMEDY." I am a carpenter living in this place, and there are plenty of witnesses to the truth of what I say. My first comparatively slight attack of Gravel was in the year 1878. It passed away, and I had little more trouble until last July, 1883. One day when at work in my shop I was suddenly seized with a keen and terrible pain in my left side. I consulted two physicians at once. One said: "I can do nothing for you. Your case is incurable!" I was frightened and went to the second, who said little, but gave me a prescription. It did no good.

Then began a series of experiences the agony and horror of which words cannot depict. Think of it! I was sometimes taken in the street, and would fall writhing with agony, upon the sidewalk. It was death in life. Thank Heaven, I then heard of "KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY," through Mr. P. P. Cooley. I had not used half a bottle when I passed three stones in succession, one of which was nearly one-half an inch long. I persevered with the medicine, the symptoms gradually abated, and I have had no more trouble since. I am well, thanks to you and "FAVORITE REMEDY." Yours most gratefully, JAMES D. KENNEDY.

What "FAVORITE REMEDY" did in this case it has done in many others. If you desire to do so Address—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

SUPREME COURT—Oswego County. George M. Case against Thomas R. Wright, Schuyler C. Schenck, First National Bank of Fulton, Eunice L. Root as Executrix etc. of John H. Root, deceased, and Jason H. Markham. Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale in the above entitled action, made at an adjourned Special Term of this court held at Oswego on April 25th, 1885, and duly entered in the Oswego county clerk's office on that day, I the subscriber, to whom it was by said judgment duly referred, will sell, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the law office of H. E. Nichols, in the village of Fulton, N. Y., on the 13th day of June, 1885, at 10 o'clock a. m., the lands and premises by said judgment directed to be sold and described as follows, viz.:

An equal undivided one-half part of all that tract or parcel of land situate in the town of Volney, county of Oswego, and State of New York, being a part of Lot number thirty-nine (39) in the fifteenth Township of Scriba's Patent, and being one hundred fifty-four and 25-100 acres thereof, and being the same premises deeded to said Wright, by John W. Pratt, by deed dated June 20th, 1881; to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

Also all those other certain tracts or parcels of land situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

1st parcel. Part of Lot number sixty-three (63) of the original township of Hannibal, now Granby, and being one hundred forty-six and five-tenths acres thereof, and being the same premises conveyed to said Wright by James Bancroft and wife, by deed dated March 25th, 1878; to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

2d parcel. Being a part of Lot number fifty-three (53) of said township of Hannibal, and being the one hundred and forty-six and one tenth acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright by James C. Jones and William H. Jones by deed dated August 1st, 1867, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, in book 117 of deeds, at page 440, excepting and reserving however [illegible] acres thereof, heretofore sold and conveyed by said Wright to [illegible]; to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description of the ninety-nine and one-tenth acres hereby intended to be conveyed.

3d parcel. Being a part of said Lot number 53, and being [illegible] conveyed to said Wright by [illegible] deed [illegible] reference [illegible] description thereof.

Every Year.

BY ALBERT PIKE.

The spring has less of brightness,
Every year;
The snow a ghastlier whiteness,
Nor do Summer flowers quicken,
As they once did, for we sicken
Every year.

It is growing darker, colder,
Every year,
As the heart and soul grow older,
Every year,
I care not now for dancing,
Nor for eyes with passion glancing,
Love is less and less enchancing
Every year.

Of the love and sorrows blended,
Every year;
Of the ties of friendship ended,
Every year;
Of the ties that still might bind me,
Until time to death resign me,
My infirmities remind me,
Every year.

Oh, how sad to look before me,
Every year;
While the clouds grow darker o'er me,
Every year;
When we see the blossoms faded,
That to bloom we might have aided,
And immortal garlands braided,
Every year.

To the past no more dead faces,
Every year;
Come no new ones in their places,
Every year;
You can win no new affection,
You have only recollection,
Deeper sorrow and dejection,
Every year.

Thank God! No clouds are shifting,
Every year;
O'er the land to which we're drifting,
Every year;
No losses there will grieve us,
Nor loving faces leave us,
Nor death of friends bereave us,
Every year.

FOR HIS MOTHER'S SAKE,

OR

The Romantic Story of My Love and Marriage.

Unmarried at 22, I was rich, entirely my own mistress and considered more than pretty; and still, in spite of many excellent opportunities to change my condition, I was rapidly drifting on toward old-maiden-hood. No wonder people called me hard to please.

I had admirers and suitors in plenty; where is the heiress who has not? And two men loved me.

I say "two men." There were many who made prêtentions, and of whose sincerity I have no means to judge, but these two men I can answer for myself, and I know they loved me.

Never were two people more unlike each other in looks, taste, disposition, temper, in everything. It seemed the strangest thing in the world that both should fancy me.

Even their respective circumstances and positions in life offered a striking contrast. George Redfern was a wealthy and influential banker, forty years of age, grave, quiet and reserved in manner, and with an indisputable and enviable standing in society—a man against whom no breath of reproach or blame had ever stirred; while Robert Dene—my Robert, whom I loved—was comparatively poor, having only his salary as confidential clerk in the Redfern bank (out of which he supported a widowed mother,) and was one of these merry, cheerful, light-hearted fellows who somehow—perhaps from their love of company and pleasure—get the name of being "wild" without deserving it. Certain it is that Robert merited no word of evil, though there was a time when it looked otherwise.

Mrs. Dene had been my dead mother's friend. Naturally I often went to visit her. She was a great invalid, and hardly ever went out, except for an occasional quiet drive with her devoted son, who idolized her; so much so that I grew positively jealous.

For Robert and I understood each other, as lovers will. He was very sensitive and high minded. I thought, at first, that because I was an heiress he would never speak the love I knew he felt, and which I longed to hear; but the welcome declaration came at last.

And I had Mr. Redfern to thank for it. I met him at Mrs. Dene's cottage one evening when he had stopped to speak to Robert on some business, having chanced to see him in the garden as he was riding past.

I was at the window, leaning out, and he saw me. I knew afterward, that that was the reason he astonished Robert by accepting his invitation to come in.

He was a very quiet, retiring man, going little into society, and bearing the reputation of a confirmed old bachelor, but after that evening he changed.

I seemed to meet him everywhere. He made the acquaintance of people whom I visited. He took to going to [illegible], theaters, operas; and when I had met him a good many times, he requested permission to call on me.

Robert heard of it and grew jealous. One evening he came to me, his dear, handsome face looking gloomy and sad enough.

"We have been friends for years," he said, "and I believe you like me well enough to grant me a favor. I love you Kate. That's no news to you, is it? Well, I never should have told you so—never should have asked you to become my wife, because you are rich and I am poor; but, dear Kate, I can't stand quietly by and see another take what I have tried to win; so I want you to tell me truly if you intend to marry Redfern, and if it's 'yes,' I shall go out of the country, and stay out, until I can get over it."

Oh, the happy girl I was when I heard him! The precious words I had longed for were spoken at last. He might have seen the joy in my face. I felt my [illegible], and my eyes grow bright with [illegible]; but he kept his face [illegible] with his pain, and was vexed at me.

[illegible]

"This is no jest to me, Miss Craven, whatever it may be to you," he said quite sharply. "I did not expect that you would make it one. Yes," very coldly, "I am not a love-sick fool. I do suppose I shall get over it."

I looked at him reproachfully. I felt the tears spring to my eyes at his words and tone.

"You don't love me as I love you, then, Robert," I said, softly; "for if you go away and leave me so, I'm afraid I never shall get over it."

"Oh, my darling!"

How quickly his face brightened as he caught my hand.

"You say that, Kate? You mean it? You don't love Redfern—you won't marry him?"

"I love you," I answered, as his dear arms clasped me close; "and you only will I marry."

And so we were engaged. And Robert drove me over to the cottage, there and then, to tell his mother.

"She will be so pleased," he said. "I believe that she suspected my feelings. But I would not confide them to her, lest the fear of disappointment and pain to me, should distress her."

How he loved her! A little jealous pang shot through my foolish heart.

"I fear you love her best," I said impulsively.

"My darling," he said, half chidingly, "one does not measure or compare such sacred loves; each and both is 'dearest.' But my mother suffers from an affection of the heart. Any anxiety or pain must injure her, and a sudden shock would kill."

And then it was that I first understood rightly his devoted care of her, a care in which, from that hour I shared.

Next day Mr Redfern proposed to me. My heart, in spite of its own happiness, ached for the bitter pain he showed when I told him I was already engaged.

"I had set my every hope on you. I cannot give you up!" he cried, with an intensity of passion that startled me. "Oh, child, have mercy on me! Think again—give me time. I am richer than you think; if you are ambitious——"

I interrupted him.

"I am not; I have wealth enough, and covet only happiness. I shall marry Robert Dene, the man I love."

His face was white as death.

"You shall not marry him," he said, with a deep and bitter oath. "Never, while I live. I swear it!"

And he rushed out of my presence like a madman, leaving me shocked, frightened, perplexed, and with a sad, strange cloud upon my happiness.

I said nothing about it to Robert, however. His relations with his employer continued as pleasant as usual, and I did not feel justified in disturbing them. I felt surprised when he told me that Mr. Redfern had himself congratulated him, and made some slight but graceful allusion to the disappointment to himself, but I concluded to keep silence still. What was the use of creating ill-will between them?

"Probably," I thought, "Mr. Redfern regrets his intemperate warmth and foolish words, and takes this method to let me know of it."

And I thought it a very good method too—infinitely pleasanter than a personal apology.

So the time flew swiftly by, and I had begun the preparations for our marriage, and our engagement was understood everywhere, when the storm which instinct had warned me of from the moment in which I had heard that bitter threatening oath, burst suddenly.

It was evening, and Robert and I were sitting together, talking such sweet nonsense as lovers will. We were alone, save for an aunt who resided with me and who had fallen asleep in her easy chair, when suddenly and unceremoniously the door was flung wide open and three men entered.

Two of them were officers. The indignation which their rude entrance caused gave way to sickening fear when I saw the third—George Redfern!

He fixed his hollow, burning eyes upon me. Even in that moment of excitement I was sensible of a shocked surprise at the strange change in him since last we met.

"Men, do your duty," he said briefly.

Next minute Robert was under arrest. I don't know what I said or did in the first horror of it. I remember clinging around Robert's neck, and being pulled away—by auntie, I think—and some one asking; "What's the charge against him?" Then came the stern answer from George Redfern's lips: "Robbery!"

With that word my senses came back to me. I tore myself from auntie's arms and flew to my lover's side.

"It's a lie!" I cried, looking straight into Redfern's face. "He is innocent."

Robert turned grateful, troubled eyes upon me.

"God bless you, my true love!" he murmured, sadly.

And then Redfern's stern, low voice broke in again:

"Men, search him."

I saw it done. I saw them draw forth a roll of notes—ten—of one hundred dollars each, and forming a larger sum than Robert could have come by rightly. I heard Redfern identify them as his own, and declare that none but Robert had access to the safe or vault. And then I heard Robert say, with a moan of agony:

"Oh, God! my mother."

I understood it all. I stepped up to George Redfern and looked into his face.

"Come with me into another room," I said. "I will make a bargain with you. Let your men remain with their prisoner here." And he obeyed me.

When we were alone, I said passionately:

[illegible] you are a villain [illegible] He himself will tell you that I placed those notes in the safe in his presence, and that no one has since had access to it but himself. An hour ago I missed them. You saw where they were found. Let the law decide the rest."

I wrung my hands in agony.

"The law!" I cried. "Man, do you not know he has a mother whom such a charge will kill? Will you be a murderer?"

He caught my hand.

"No," he said, hoarsely, "it is you—not I. You murder two of us; his mother—when she learns the story of his guilt, from which you could save her—and me—you murder me—for the hour that sees you marry him sees me a corpse."

I snatched my hand away.

"I will marry him," I cried, "if the world calls him guilty!"

He answered quietly:

"And kill his mother!"

What could I do? Turn as I would, he brought me back to that at last.

The son's imprisonment on a shameful charge, and probable condemnation—for the plot was carefully laid—would surely kill his mother.

So I accepted the alternative he offered. I promised not to marry the man I loved during the lifetime of the man I hated.

"Never while I live," he said.

That was my oath, and I have kept it. We went back together. George Redfern formally withdrew the charge he made and gave one of the notes to each officer as a bribe for silence.

So Robert and I were parted, and his mother's life was saved.

And the world wondered, and called me a coquette, and "hard to please;" and a year went by and found me 22—unmarried still—Robert's true love still—and miserable.

How many times had I seen George Redfern during that year? More than a hundred times. He had come to me praying, pleading for love—oh, how vainly! Often as I saw him, though I noted how he changed—so terribly—so rapidly! Worn almost to a shadow. Pale, with all the life in him seeming to be centered in his burning eyes. They seemed lit with the fires of madness.

Poor George Redfern! It would be hard if I should not give him pity who gave me so much love.

The end came suddenly. One winter's night a messenger summoned the two whom he had wronged to his bedside. He was dying.

Just the same as ever—strange, abrupt, half-crazed. He took Robert's hand without noticing me, and stared into his eyes.

"I've brought you pain and sorrow, haven't I? Ah, that's nothing! You have brought me down to death. I loved that woman—loved her. Ah, heaven, that doesn't express it! I became a villain for her sake. I liked you, Robert. I meant to make you partner some day, Kate." turning suddenly towards me, "you know I took the notes out of the safe. No matter; I've made my amends. I'm dying and Robert Dene is my heir."

It was true. We remained with him till the last. In the cold, quiet morning he was cold and quiet too—at rest!

"You may marry her very soon," he said in dying, "but not while I live."

Poor George Redfern! He loved me well. I wetted the spring daisies on his grave with tears before I took the freedom that his death had given. After that I laid sorrow by and married Robert.

He was rich now, and his mother to this day believed it was a lover's quarrel that kept us apart so long. Better so, for thus the memory of the man who sought to blast our lives, and lost his own, is spared. And we can spare him in his grave, and pity, too.

For my life's romance had a blissful ending, and I am a happy woman after all.

LAKE NEAHTAWANTA.

Who Owns the Smiling Basin Where Syracusans Have Their Picnics?

FULTON, May 18.—A good deal of interest has been shown in this locality in the ownership of the lands bordering on Lake Neahtawanta, laid down on the early map as No. 8 Lysander, but now in the town of Granby. Within the boundaries of said lot is included the greater portion of our beautiful lake, which lies adjacent to the Oswego Falls fair grounds, and for a number of years has furnished this locality and some Eastern markets with a pure quality of ice, so that at the present time the lake itself has a real value, which must increase as the years roll by.

The original lot contains 600 acres and is part of the military tract granted by the state to soldiers from this state in the Revolutionary war. Under an act of the Legislature, passed April 6, 1790, several large townships, then in the county of Montgomery, were surveyed and divided into lots of 600 acres each and disposed of by ballot: One Jeremiah Skeehan drew lot No. 8 Lysander, and it was conveyed to him by the state in December, 1790. The records of the early deeds were destroyed at the time of the burning of the county clerk's office in Montgomery county. However, in Nov., 1791, Jeremiah Van Rensselaer and Abram Ten Eyck, of the city of Albany, known at that time as speculators in bounty lands, conveyed the lot to William Duer, of the city of New York. The lot was then in Herkimer county. In December, 1806, the lot was in Onondaga county and was sold on an execution against William Duer by Elijah Philips, sheriff, for the sum of $50, and was by him conveyed to one William H. Sabin, who on the same day by deed conveyed it to Charles Lagarenne, of New York city. In 1839 John L. Norton and others, representing the heirs of Walter Franklin, conveyed the lot then in Oswego county, to Richard Smith of Lysander, who conveyed it to John E. and Orson H. Dutton, who in 1853 conveyed it to James Ouderkirk.

Up to 1839 the lot was but lake and woodland, the dry land consisting of about sixty-seven acres mainly on the south side of the lake, with from three to five acres on the north side. In 1859 the lake was permanently lowered, thereby adding some thirty acres of dry land to the south side and seven acres to the north side. Owing to the fact that the lot was unoccupied prior to 1839, it furnished an opportunity for a pretended title, and in 1816 one Castle obtained a deed from one Andrew Shehan, the deed reciting that the granter is "lawful heir of Jeremiah Shehan, to whom said land was given for his services as soldier in the late Continental army." From this deed the Dewey title is derived, now claimed in part by Joseph Sheridan.

In January, 1862, after the lake was lowered and this large body of land was uncovered, Asa Philips saw his opportunity, and without any show of titles for the express consideration of $200 quit claimed to Abram Howe and Bradford Kennedy, all of lot number 8 lying on the northly side of the lake, and thus another alleged title to that part of the lot originated which is now claimed by Daniel C. Case. The question of the title to this last mentioned parcel and the use of the same, has been made the subject of three separate suits between Wealthy Dexter, widow of James Ouderkirk, and Daniel C. Case, all of which have been decided adversely to Mrs. Dexter by the General Term; the one most important has been taken to the Court of Appeals, and parties in interest must await its decision before it can be determined who owns the parcel of land which the late Asa Philips assumed to convey. Many have supposed that the title to the lake was in question, but it seems that it has not been, and no one questions Mrs. Dexter's right to it, unless Mr. Sheridan desires to contest it.—[Syracuse Standard.

Victor Hugo, the poet, and the greatest Frenchman of the age, died at Paris Friday morning, aged 83 years.

Fourteen girls perished in the burning of Sullivan's printing establishment in Cincinnati last Thursday.

The Times' Albany correspondent says: It is reported the next democratic convention will be held in Syracuse and that the date is fixed for an early convention.

Senator Edmunds has written a letter promising to urge, at the next session of Congress, a law to assist Indians, who so desire, in becoming American citizens.

The Goverment was disposed at first to place Reil in jail at Winnepeg, but fearing the symprthy of the French element at that place, it was decided to place him in jail at Regnia, where it is believed the trial will take place. Reil is very nervous and fears being shot by his enemies.

The New York board of trade has issued a call for the formation of "The Union for the Improvement of the Canals of the State of New York." The object will be to bring about thorough repairs and efficiency of the canals, and to urge that permanent improvements be immediately undertaken.

Ex-Secretary Frelinghuysen died at his home in Newark, N. J., on Tuesday of last week, aged about 68 years. Mr. Frelinghuysen was a statesmen of the old type. He entered upon his duties as secretary of state under threatened clouds of storm. Mr. Frelinghuysen was a close friend of Ex-President Arthur.

The debt of the United States, less cash in the Treasury, is now less than fifteen hundred millions. In July, 1866, it was more than twenty-seven hundred millions. Almost half of it has been paid within nineteen years. At the recent rate of decrease less than nineteen years more will be required to pay the rest of it.

Gustavus Kindt, the notorious safe burglar, who has already served several terms in prison has again been arrested, this time for robbing two safes in New York. Kindt is an expert at the business. While serving his last term he invented the lever lock which closes all the cells at one time, and which is now used in many prisons throughout the country.

Wm. A. Beach of Syracuse, who was a hard worker during the campaign and a strong candidate for the marshalship of northern New York, was no doubt disappointed upon hearing of the appointment of Walter H. Bunns of Cooperstown to that office which nets an annual income, of about $6,000. It is believed that Mr. Beach will be given another office. Martin I. Townsend now holds the office of marshalship.

There is every indication that in the approaching campaign the Prohibitionists will be early in the field and stay till the ballots are counted. The hanging of Gov. St. John in effigy, and other intemperate and foolish acts of the Republicans, have given the temperance party a new life.—[Cayuga Chief.

And we believe that out of this new life will spring forth a new party with an honest platform and a high aim. The Prohibition party alone, can accomplish but little in national politics.

COUNTY COMMENT.

The Salvation Army have leased Winsor hall Phœnix. Fighting will begin about June 1.

Elmer Osborne, employed in the oil stone factory at Phœnix crushed his hand quite seriously last week. Dr. A. M. Willer dressed the wound.

The house owned by Mr. Kinney and situated in the lower part of Phœnix was destroyed by fire last Friday. The household contents were saved. No insurance.

Cure for Croup. Use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil according to directions. It is the best remedy for all sudden attacks of colds, pain and inflammation, and injuries.

Call at R. E. Phillips Drug Store and get a free trial bottle of this certain cure for all Lung Diseases. Large bottles, $1.00.

VICTOR HUGO'S DEATH.

Incidents of the Great Man's Closing Hours—Honors to the Dead.

Paris, May 23.—A storm was raging when Victor Hugo died yesterday. The news of his death was announced to the assembled crowd by Victorien Sardou. The dying man lay in a trance for some hours before the end. He awoke suddenly, raised his head, gazed at his family and friends standing around the bed and sank back lifeless. His white hair and beard grew quite long during his illness. The body is much emaciated, but the brow still retains its grandeur. The sculptor Dalon has taken a cast of the face. A photograph and another sketch has been taken. The body has been embalmed. When death was announced there was an indecent push of reporters to the house, and the servants were obliged to repel them. The front door was closed, leaving a table in the street for visiting cards. Immense quantities of flowers are arriving at the residence. Deputations from the municipal government and from Parliament offer condolences this evening. Next arrived Mme. Bernhardt, the actress, dressed completely in white, bringing an immense crown of white roses. Half of Hugo's fortune of 4,000,000 francs is bequeathed to his daughter, Adele, who is in a lunatic asylum. It was Hugo's wish that his heirs and executors should hereafter join in building a lunatic asylum. Jules Simon says that the whole Academy will attend the funeral, and that Maxime de Camp will deliver the oration. The death of Hugo has caused intense grief thoroughout the continent. It is stated that Hugo passed away peacefully without suffering. His death has caused a profound emotion in the capital. The residence of the deceased is surrounded by crowds.

Cheese Market.

(From the Utica Herald.)

AT UTICA May 25.

Another big drop took place to-day in cheese, much to the disgust of factorymen who had looked for a decline of ½c., instead of 1c. Everybody said, "where is it going to for a bottom price?" and everybody's neighbor looked wise and shook his head without reply. It was a blue market, and yet not entirely without hope. It does not look as if the market was going entirely to pieces. Whether it will go a little lower no fellow can tell, but it is suspected that fodder cheese has pretty nearly if not quite reached its lowest point, and that when we get grass cheese it will be worth a little more money. The consignments to-day are 25 per cent. of the offerings, and some of those who consigned believed that they would do better if they sold at the prices offered. Quite a number of factorymen also held back three or four days cheese in accordance with the advice of the Herald, nor are they likely to lose anything by doing so. The fact is that buyers have been losing money all thro' the season, and they meant to get cheese to-day low enough to at least give them a commission. Transactions were as follows: 70 boxes light skims at 6¼c; 3 lots, 135 boxes, at 7 cents; 3 lots 162 boxes, at 7⅛c.; 56 lots, 4,258 boxes, at 7¼c.; 6 lots, 562 boxes, at 7⅜c.; 11 lots, 1,056 boxes, at 7½c. Sales 6,248 boxes; commissions 2,083 boxes; total 8,330 boxes. Ruling price 7¼c. Transaction one year ago 8,565 boxes, ruling price 10⅝c. Grass is growing finely now, and the cows were all turned out last week.

Little Falls, May 25.

Cheese.—No encouraging features were manifest on our cheese market to-day. Prices are off ½c. below last week's figures. The proportion of actual sales is considerably greater than last week, but this was due more to the yielding of salesmen than to the desire of buyers to purchase for they were just as unanimous in advising consignments. In case of purchases buyers are extremely timid, and the least fault on the part of the stock is sufficient to cause a refusal except at an unusual sacrifice on the part of the salesman. The quality of stock is running very fair for the season. There is no one bold enough to hope for a better market till all the fodder cheese is gone, and another week will take nearly all of this class of goods. By June 8 we shall have a fair offering of grass cheese here, and we shall then be able to judge whether trade is to show any improvement during the season. Sales to-day are:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
1	35	6 cts.
2	68	6¼ cts.
6	375	7 cts.
36	2,006	7¼cts.
1	68	7⅜cts.
1	50	7½cts.
3	265	p. t.
55	2,447	Com.
105	5,214
Farm Dairy	750
Total	5,964

Farm Dairies.—Sales of 750 farm cheese were made at 8¼ to 8c., including considerable on commission.

Butter.—There were 22 packages of creamery butter sold at 20c, and 20 packages farm dairy at 18 to 20c., the latter being mostly taken by our local grocery trade.

AT FULTON.

The market has about assumed its usual briskness. There was fifteen factories represented, offering about 600 boxes. The buyers bought considerable at 7¼c., Utica ruling.

Supreme Court,—County of Oswego.—Jacob Slater against [illegible] Slater: To the above named defendant: You are hereby summoned to answer the Complaint in this action, and to serve a copy of your answer on the plaintiff's attorney within twenty days after the service of this Summons, exclusive of the day of service; and in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the Complaint. Trial to be held in the county of Oswego. Dated this [illegible] day of April, 1885.

FROM

D. McCARTHY & CO.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

On Wednesday, May 6th, 1885.

We shall commence a

OF

Silks and Dress Goods!

Two great causes have combined to create a stagnation in the distribution of these goods in the Eastern markets. These two causes are

OVER PRODUCTION and OVER IMPORTATION.

At the greatly depressed prices ruling in those clogged markets, we have selected large lines of Fine, Medium and Low grades

SILKS, SATINS and COLORED DRESS GOODS

Which we shall run off

Resolutions of Respect.

At a special communication of Hiram Lodge, No. 144, F. & A. M., held May 19, 1885, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, it has pleased the Great Supreme Architect of the universe to remove from our midst our late brother, George A. Washburn, in the prime of life, and usefulness, therefore be it

Resolved: That in the death of Geo. A. Washburn, this lodge mourns the loss of a faithful member, and an upright citizen.

Resolved: That this Lodge be draped in mourning thirty days, as a token of our respect, and esteem for our deceased brother.

Resolved: That the heartfelt sympathy of this Lodge be extended to his family in their affliction.

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the editors of the village papers for publication.

Where to Buy Your Carpets and Furniture.

The enterprising firm of A. A. Graff & Co., 61 and 63 South Salina street Syracuse, N. Y., are doing a large trade with people in this place and vicinity, for the simple reason that their prices are always the lowest and they carry an enormous stock to select from. Be sure and call there before buying elsewhere. They pay freight on all goods purchased of them. 46tf [illegible] Elected—Work to Commence at Once.

We are happy to be able to state positively that the contemplated manufacture of The Howe Ventilating Stove is a new industry that will soon be established in our midst. For some time past a number of our most enterprising citizens have been endeavoring to establish a company for the manufacture of the above stove, with a capital stock of $20,000, all of which has at last been subscribed, and repairs will at once be commenced on the Upper Foundry. The burned portion will be rebuilt, and all other necessary improvements will be made. The stock of the company is nearly all taken by prominent men of Fulton; who are all energetic, pushing, live business men, constantly endeavoring to keep abreast of the times. The following are the Directors: F. G. Weeks, J. W. Pratt, A. E. Emerick, Almon Bristol, E. R. Redhead, George Emeny and E. L. Messenger. At a meeting of the Directors held yesterday afternoon the following officers were elected: F. G. Weeks, President; E. R. Redhead, Vice-President; Almon Bristol, Secretary and Treasurer; E. L. Messenger, General Manager.

Mr. F. G. Weeks, the president, as many of our readers know, is one of the largest paper manufacturers in the State, a man of unbounded enterprise, and it is almost unnecessary to say that the success of the new company is fully assured with Mr. Weeks at the head.

Mr. Messenger of Buffalo, is an earnest practical business man, and having had a large experience in the manufacture of stoves, is thoroughly competent to assume charge of the works. The advantages to Fulton from the establishment of this new industry are almost incalculable. The ice has at last been broken, and our citizens can see that there are some men in the village who are earnestly endeavoring to build up Fulton. This is but the beginning. Other companies will be formed, new industries will be established, and it will not be many years before Fulton will take the place that it ought to have taken years ago, among the first of the manufacturing towns of the State. Even now the question of establishing another stock company for the manufacture of the Cummings feed cutter is being very strongly agitated. It is to be hoped that this work will go on, and instead of our business men persistently "sitting down" on all contemplated improvements, will put their shoulder to the wheel and their hands in their pockets, and help build Fulton up as it deserves to be.

Cuts His Throat.

Last Thursday morning about 6 o'clock James King, a farmer living about four miles south of Fulton, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. Mrs. King recently had a stroke of paralysis, and as the attending physician gave but little encouragement for her ultimate recovery, Mr. King became very despondent, and while in this state of mind, went to the barn, and after fastening the door upon the inside, committed the deed. Coroner Marsh of Oswego Falls, empanneled a jury and an inquest was held and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above facts. Mrs. King's death occurred only a few hours after that of her husband.

South Scriba.

SOUTH SCRIBA, May 22, '85—Married at the residence of Mrs. Capt. Sweet, South Scriba, May 21, by the Rev. E. C. Miller of Mount Pleasant, Mr. John Lawrence and Miss Irena Ross of Chicago. The bride is a grand daughter of Mrs. Sweet, and has been spending the winter with her, and is also a daughter of Capt. Ross, who is well known in this part of the county, having formerly run a store at Palermo Centre. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence are spending a few days with friends here, and will shortly return to, and make Chicago their home.

Mr. Nicholas Yule, an old and respected resident, died Tuesday, aged about sixty years. The funeral was held at the late residence Thursday.

An eleven pound boy made his appearance at Mr. George Gibson's a few days since.

Mr. Charles Snow has nearly lost his sight, with but little hope for recovering it. Q.

The summer time card on the Syracuse and Binghamton and Syracuse and Oswego divisions of the D. L. & W. road will go into effect about June 1. There are no great changes anticipated.

This evening occurs the May night musicale and dance, given by F. K. Jones and Will Hardy. Some of the best local talent will assist at the concert. An elaborate program has been prepared.

J. H. Cauanaugh & Co. have the agency for the Rochester vitrified sewer pipe. This tile is highly recommended and is being used quite extensively. Should you have occasion to use the above named article it will pay you to call on the firm.

The attention of stock raisers is called to the notice of Mr. Pendergast's jack, in another column. Raising mules in this locality has proven not more expensive nor hazardous than raising other cattle, while the market value at the age of two or three years is largely in favor of the mule.

Friday evening a children's fancy dress carnival will be held at the rink. Prizes will be given to the young lady wearing the finest costume, and to the lady wearing a costume having the best arrangement of colors regardless of its cost or quality, also a prize to the boy wearing the finest necktie, and the one with the finest hat or cap. All contestants will be under 17 years of age.

Mr. David Webster, who sprinkled the streets of our village last year, and has recently recommenced this summer, has, owing to the lack of appreciation and support by a large number of our business places, been obliged to discontinue the work. The amount he collected last week would barely support a team, leaving him almost nothing for his week's labor. It can readily be seen that the refusal of one store on a street to pay for sprinkling is a great inconvenience to all the rest. Mr. Webster desires us to state that if a sufficient number of business places will subscribe so that he can afford to go on with the work he will do so. It is to be hoped that enough business men will contribute to make it an object, and a good one, for Mr. Webster to continue his commendable work. The immense advantages to be derived from a thorough sprinkling of the streets are so obvious that it is a waste of time to try to enumerate them. Again we say, support the street sprinkler.

South Hannibal.

SOUTH HANNIBAL, May 25, '85—Mr. J. M. Goodelle has sold his house and lot to Mr. Metcalf of North Sterling. Mr. Goodelle will move back on his farm.

Mr. H. J. Smith of Hastings Centre was in town last week.

INTER-ACADEMIC UNION

Will Meet in Fulton July 1 and 2—The Annual Address—Prize Speaking—The Particulars.

As THE TIMES has before stated, that at the last meeting of the State Inter-Academic Literary Union held at Waterville, N. Y., in 1884, it was decided upon that the next meeting should be held at Fulton, Wednesday and Thursday, July 1st, and 2d. With this meeting occurs the competitive examination open to Academic students throughout the entire State. It is expected that upwards of 200 strangers, including principals, contestants and visitors will be in attendance, and of this number there are about 150 contestants for whom free entertainment is to be had. Eighty of this number have already been provided for. It is to be hoped that our citizens, especially those who are abundantly able, will act liberally in this matter.

On Wednesday evening prize speaking by gentlemen will occur in the Opera House. On this evening the music will be under the supervision of Mr. N. H. Gilbert, who is making great preparations for the occasion. Prize speaking by the ladies will take place on Thursday evening. The Music will be in charge of Mr. John Baccus. Hon. Chas. E. Fitch, editor of the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle and also a member of the State board of regents has been secured to deliver the annual address, which will take place on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Academy chapel. Mr. Fitch is well known throughout the State as an eloquent speaker. Prof. J. F. Cooper will have charge of the music at this hour. The examinations will take place at the chapel during the day under the instruction of School Commissioners Metcalf and Cole and ex-Commissioners Howard and Parkhurst. Reduced rates on railroads and at hotels have been secured.

This gathering of talent which promises to be a grand and honorable event for Fulton, was brought about by the untiring efforts of Prof. A. Boothby, and it is therefore right that he should have the co-operation of the people in his labors to make this meeting of the Union a successful one and to properly entertain the visitors.

Oswego's Defaulting Treasurer.

The Oswego Palladium of Saturday evening published an interview with Thomas Crawford, the defaulting city treasurer, now in Hamilton, Ont. Crawford's statement is that he found himself short $600 at the end of his first year as treasurer. He could not account for it, and confided his troubles to Father O'Connell of St. John's church of that city, and upon his advice he engaged in margin dealing in the hope of making enough to make good the shortage. He made at first a small gain but subsequently lost. For two years past he has been speculating with city money, generally losing and finally resulting in his fleeing from the city, short $26,000. He says he took no money to speak of with him, and puts the blame of his course upon Father O'Connell.

Mr. O'Connell in reply to the charges says that his first transaction with Crawford was in 1877, when he borrowed a small sum. The largest sum he ever borrowed of Crawford he says was $600, which he used in buying a government bond, with the understanding that Crawford could have the money at any time when he needed it. The priest has a book with which he proves that Crawford borrowed much more of him than he secured of the absconder, and that the ex-treasurer now owes him $5,500. He declined to say anything to his congregation on the matter Sunday, nor to the newspaper which told Crawford's story, simply stating that Crawford is a wicked man and a liar.

Police Court News.

"Billy" Collins was arrested by Officer Pool last week for being intoxicated in the street and endeavoring to create a disturbance. While being placed in the village bastile he kicked the officer quite seriously, who promptly knocked him down. Upon his arraignment the next morning he was sentenced to one year's imprisoment in the Onondaga penitentiary.

Decoration Day next Saturday.

Watch for attractions at the rink.

John Foster has a handsome new canoe about ready to launch.

Seward Green has our thanks for late copies of Traverse City papers.

A traveling musician gave our village a regular horning the other evening.

The Commerce party will meet with Miss Eva Case at the residence of Hon. Geo. M. Case this evening.

Regents examination at the Union school and Academy for this term, will commence the second Monday in June.

The house on the corner of Third and Utica streets, recently purchased by Mr. Snow, of the firm of Snow & Loomis, is undergoing repairs.

Cards are out for the marriage of Mr. Stephen A. Lefaivor to Miss Bertha Neal, daughter of ex-mayor Neal of Oswego, at the church of the Evangelists this afternoon.

We invite the attention of our readers to the wonderful bargains in dry goods and clothing offered by H. & A. Rosenbloom, elsewhere in this paper.

To-morrow afternoon a game of ball will be played on the fair ground between sides composed of young men from the east and west sides of First street.

Next Saturday several local sportsmen are to inaugurate a woodchuck hunt. All persons wishing to enter will meet at Kendall's restaurant Friday evening, when sides will be chosen.

Mr. Steel who has been runing a saloon under the Lathrop block during the past winter, has suddenly left town. Financial trouble is supposed to be the cause. A "constable sale notice" is tacked on the door.

Work on the new Phœnix railroad is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. The ties and rails have been laid to the town line of Schœppel, and before the week is out it is expected that the track will reach Phœnix. The latest improved, split switches are used.

Mr. W. B. Vail, the foreman of the Patriot office, went to Geneva last week and was married by the Rev. Dr. Hogarth, to Miss Viola Alsop of that village. They will make their future home in Fulton. With their other friends, THE TIMES offers its hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Vail.

Schuyler Schenck of Toledo, Ohio, was in town last week. It is learned that Mr. Schenck will not rebuild his block before fall, as Sheridan Bros. do not care to go in business before that time. It is very probable therefore that neither of the Oneida street blocks will be rebuilt this summer.

U. S. Fish Commissioner Walters, of Rochester, arrived in town this morning with 40,000 California salmon, which he deposited in the river a short distance below the village. While here he received a dispatch authorizing him to inspect the fish-ways that have been placed in the river.

Last Thursday as Henry Youngs of this village was at work in the R., W. & O. shops in Oswego, where he is employed, a small piece of steel entered his right hand near the third joint of the middle finger, making a very painful wound. Fears were at first entertained that owing to blood poisoning the loss of the hand would ensue, but Dr. Lee is confident that no such serious results will occur.

The marriage of Cameron Benedict of this village and Miss Julia Weed of Mexico, takes place to-day at 12 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. Mr. Bayless of the Presbyterin church of that village will preform the cermony, assisted by the Rev. J. S. Riggs of Auburn. Mr. Benedict will return to Fulton after a brief wedding trip and will reside at the home of his mother on Third street. We extend our most sincere congragulations to the happy couple.

Memorial Day.

FULTON, N. Y., May 26, 1885.—In compliance with general orders from National head quarters, Saturday, May 30, will be observed by Daniel F. Schenck Post No. 271, as Memorial Day, and all honorably discharged soldiers and sailors, whether members of the G. A. R. or not, are cordially invited to join with the Post in the observance of that duty. The Post will assemble at their rooms at 1 o'clock p. m. and proceed to the Opera House, where the exercises will commence at 2, after which the line will be formed on Cayuga street with the right resting on Second. The line of march will be as follows: Preceeded by the Sons of Veterans drum corps, counter march on Cayuga to First, down First to Oneida, up Oneida to Third, up Third to Buffalo, up Buffalo to Fourth, up Fourth to Broadway, up Broadway to cemetery, where the usual ceremonies will be observed, after which the Post will march down Broadway to First, down First to the Post rooms and disband.

All persons having flowers will please send them to the Good Templar's Hall on or before 9 a. m. or notify Dr. G. V. Emens and they will be sent for.

The bright sunshine which cast its gentle rays in and upon the altar which was profusely decorated with flowers and boquets of exquisite beauty, scenting the air with a rich fragrance, gave to the interior of the edifice an appearance that could not but inspire those present with a feeling of fitness for the occasion. The services were opened with "Te Deum Laudamus," rendered by the choir which consisted of the following persons: Arvin Rice, James Hoff, F. E. Goodjon, Mrs. J. Kirk, Mrs. Chas. David, Miss Lawrence, Allie Stephens, Cora Foster, Julia Kimball, Katie Mace. Mrs. F. A. Emerick, organist. Rev. Mr. James of Liverpool, the newly elected moderator, then stepped forward and made a few appropriate remarks and a brief prayer. After the reading of the scripture, the choir sung a hymn. The sermon was delivered by Dr. H. H. Stebbins of Oswego, from Matthew 7—29. "For he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes." After the sermon the usual questions were put to the pastor and congregation by the moderator, and the same being assented to by them respectively, the pastorial relation was declared to be established. The charge to the pastor was given by the Rev. J. S. Riggs, his theme being, "Magnify your Office," and the charge to the people was given by the Rev. Dr. Torrey of Cazenovia, N. Y., his subject being "Let him be your minister." The closing prayer was offered by the Rev. Chas. Olmstead of the Congregational church of Oswego Falls. Before closing, Rev. Mr. Smith invited the congregation to the church parlors where a reception was held through the evening. Refreshments of choice varieties were served by the ladies. The gathering dispersed at about nine o'clock, filled with kindly feeling toward their new pastor.

Rink and Polo Items.

Last Saturday evening Mr. Clate Osborne, of Big Rapids, Mich., gave an exhibition of trick and fancy skating at the rink. Mr. Osborne will be remembered as a former resident of Fulton, having lived here about twelve years ago. He is said to be the champion skater of the west. His exhibition here gave good satisfaction.

The game between the Fultons and Casinos of Oswego, at the benefit last night, was decided a draw by Referee Case.

To-morrow evening one of the finest attractions ever shown in this village, will appear at the rink. The celebrated polo players from Boston, the Newports and the Nantaskets, two teams comprised entirely of ladies, will play a game of polo at the Fulton rink. Owing to the great expense of obtaining this attraction, the price of admission has been placed at 25 cents. Don't fail to see them.

The Crescents and factory team played over an hour last evening, each team securing two goals. They were called off and the game called a draw. The mile race between Davis of Oswego and Falkner of Fulton, was won by Davis.

The Fulton Polo club benefit last evening proved a decided success.

Last Thursday evening a game of polo was played in this rink between the Big Six of Baldwinsville, and the Fultons. After an hour of very close playing, each side had won two goals. The fifth and deciding one, which was closely contested for some time was finally won by the home team. This is the second game the Big Six have ever lost. They are fair players but depend too much on "slugging" to win much favor with contesting clubs.

OBITUARY.

Last Sunday morning about 2 o'clock, Mr. Lafayette Alfred, died at the residence of his daughter Mrs. G. S. Piper of this village. He was 66 years of age. Mr. Alfred has been for many years one of the most prominent citizens of Oswego county, having held several offices of trust. About a year ago he came from Mexico accompanied by his wife, to reside with his daughter Mrs. Piper, and most of the time has been able to appear on the streets. He has a son Charles Alfred, living in Fargo, D. T., whom he visited last year, but as his health did not improve in the west he returned to Fulton. Word has been received from his son Charles that he will be present at the funeral, which will occur to-morrow. Short services will be held at the residence of Mr. Piper, and the remains will then be taken to Mexico where they will be buried under the auspices of the Masonic lodge, of which the deceased was a member. The services will be held in the Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Bayless officiating.

John Scanlon, of Hoosic Falls, N. Y., who has been in poor health for some time, died last Saturday morning at 5 o'clock. His father, James Scanlon of Oswego Falls, and brother, Morris Scanlon, and his sister, of East Palermo, were with him when he died. He leaves a wife and four children. Funeral services, with solemn High Mass, took place last Saturday at the Immaculate Conception church in that village, the Rev. Father Mahoney officiating.

Last Monday word was received here of the death of Jennie, wife of Chas. Smith of Scranton, Pa. She will be remembered as the daughter of the late Sidney Smith of this village. Her remains will arrive in Fulton to-day, and be buried in Mt Adnah.

Mrs. Anna L. McDougal of this village, died last Sunday of consumption, aged 31 years. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon, at the M. E. church, Rev. Mr. [illegible] officiating.

[illegible]

[illegible] will like to attend. THE TIMES will heartily aid in making this benefit a complete success.

Mrs. Grundy on Decoration Day.

Decoration Day is a day of memories.

Its insignia is the flowers of the field.

Their fragrance typifies the glorious deeds of the dead.

Their beauty is the testimonial of our present estimate of their deeds.

The memory of the past contrasting with the prosperity of the present quickens our gratitude.

It is well that by the institution of Decoration Day the people are thus kept in remembrance of what once was, what now is, and what may be.

These, likewise, are things of which Kent & Miller, Nos. 18 and 20 South Salina street, would have people kept in mind; of past discomforts; of their ability to relieve them; and of what comforts may be obtained by purchases of fine seasonable clothing at very low prices, at their great clothing emporium.

Assessors Notice.

The undersigned, assessors of the village of Fulton having completed their roll for the present year, have left a copy thereof with Dr. J. Watson, at his drug store, where the same may be seen and examined by any person interested therein until the 6th day of June, inst. on which day the said Assessors wil meet at Arvin Rice's law office, at 10 o'clock a. m., to review assessment on the application of any person deeming themselves aggrieved thereby.

[illegible] on the pasture, [illegible] on a pasture in the spring after the snow is gone is one of the [illegible] fertilizers for [illegible] barnyard manure [illegible] on a pasture. I [illegible] brought to a good state by [illegible] of ashes, bone dust or [illegible] in the spring; then later on, when pasture is scant, feeding the cows with shorts daily; the shorts more than pay for their extra expense by an increase in milk and the droppings which go to enrich the pasture. The feeding of oilcake, grain or roots on the land is an excellent way to manure permanent pasture. Of course the ploughing in of green crops, or green manuring as it is called, has some advantage over the feeding of crops on the land, as by this means the whole crop is returned to the soil. Green manuring is especially adapted to light sandy soils, which need humus to increase their retentive power, but it is profitably practiced also on heavy soil. The green crops should, if possible, be ploughed in about the time of flowering. Among the plants most often grown for green manuring are white mustard, rye, buckwheat, common clover, cowpeas, etc. A neighbor of mine had good luck with some poor pasture land which he ploughed up and manured with wood ashes and barnyard manure, the latter well rotted. He planted potatoes and got a fair yield the first year. The second year he seeded down to grass and it set well and was free from weeds."

Improving an Orchard.

When an orchard is in a very bad condition it may be greatly improved with a moderate outlay, if, after giving it a good pruning, the land is given a heavy dressing of ground bone and ashes, or 500 pounds of muriate of potash should be applied to each acre, spreading it broadcast on the surface. If fruit be the object, when the grass is in blossom it should be rolled down with a heavy roller, and permitted to remain as a mulch for the trees. This not only keeps the ground well covered but it causes the grass to come up next spring quite thin, and thus the grass roots are lessened, giving the roots of the trees a better chance to grow.

One Higher.

Two men, strangers to each other, sat side by side in the Bush street depot the other day. One was a corpulent, pompous man, and the other under-sized and humble looking. The third man approached, and without looking directly at either one inquired:

"Say, Major, will you tell me what time the Niagara Falls train leaves this side?"

Both men pulled out their watches and made answer in chorus, but as they did so the pompous man turned in his seat and said:

"I supposed he was addressing me, as he mentioned my title."

"Did you say Major?" asked the little man of the inquirer.

"I believe I did."

"Oh—ah! I beg a thousand pardons. I understood you to say Colonel, and supposed of course, you meant me."

The big man lost fifteen pounds of flesh in the next two minutes, and it took twenty minutes hard walking under the freight sheds to cool him off.—[Detroit Free Press.

[illegible]

[illegible] least anxiety to his mother. He knew that Madame Dore never slept while her great big, celebrated son was absent; and from his 20th to his 50th year, when Gustave was in the city, he never passed a night away from home. When he came in he had to traverse his mother's room in order to reach his own bed—which Madame Dore had placed in the toilet chamber proper—she wanted to have the "little one" near her. When Gustave got into bed, Madame Dore would tuck his bedclothes in; and the good old Francoise would bring him a bowl of something nice and warm—after which both bade good night to their spoiled child.

TROUBLED BY HALLUCINATIONS.

But Gustave would often play tricks on them. When they believed him to be asleep, the truth was that he often arose and stole on tiptoe to his studio to throw on paper the outlines of the conception which haunted his ever-fermented brain. Dr. Michel, the nephew and friend of the artist, attributes the premature death of Gustave Dore in great part to the fatigue and nervous excitement consequent upon his nocturnal labor. It is now known that towards the close of his life Gustave had excited his imagination to a degree that brought on serious nervous disorders. He was greatly troubled by hallucinations; and when during his nightly labor, he lifted his eyes from the paper, he saw in the penumbra of his studio—lighted by one solitary lamp—the figures of Shakespeare's dramas that so greatly preoccupied him. All the characters of those mighty plays seemed to dance a dance of death around the artist. Ophelia curtsied to Hamlet, and Juliet balanced before Romeo in the midst of a throng of phantoms where King Lear sat by the Merchant of Venice, and Julius Cæsar chatted with Macbeth. This morbid mental condition at last took so terrible a form that Dore shuddered at the idea of night work; he would often beg his nephew, Dr. Michel, to keep him company. He found that he required the presence of a living person to aid him in chasing away the specters which haunted him.

THE MOST CRUEL TRIAL.

It is well known that the poor artist suffered terribly to find that his paintings had no place among great collections. This was the most cruel trial of his life. Another of his griefs was that his water color sketches never fetched so high a price at great sales as those of other distinguished artists. It was not that he cared for money, but because his pride was wounded by the inferior estimate placed upon his work. He would contrive a thousand ruses to make people think that his water colors were being bought up at any price. I remember that one year an amateur offered him 10,000 francs for "La Cour des Miracles," at that time on exhibition in the Rue de Seze.

"Too late," replied Dore, "I have just sold it to an American for 25,000 francs.

He was complimented upon this good bargain even by visitors to his house, and he always accepted their congratulations with a hearty laugh. But after the death of Gustave Dore the water-color drawing was found again; had been hidden away in his studio among a pile of old canvass. He had voluntarily sacrificed the 10,000 francs offered him merely in order to make people believe that he could get 25,000 francs for a water color drawing as well as any other man. Perhaps this shows a little pettiness of mind; but where is the perfect man?—[N. O. Times-Democrat.

He Couldn't Make Out.

The proprietor of a tannery having erected a building on the main street for the sale of his leather, the purchase of hides, etc., began to consider what kind of a sign would be most attractive. At last he thought a happy idea struck him. He bored a hole through the door post and stuck a calf's tail into it, with the bushy end flaunting out. After a while he noticed a grave looking person standing near the door, with spectacles on, gazing intently at the sign. So long did he gaze that finally the tanner stepped out and addressed the individual:

"Good morning."

"Morning," replied the man without moving his eyes from the sign.

"You want to buy leather?" "No."

"Want to sell hides?" "No."

"Are you a farmer?" "No."

"Are you a merchant?" "No."

"Lawyer?" "No."

"Doctor?" "No."

"Minister?" "No."

[illegible] I called the doctors again, and after several weeks they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I poohed at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again.

In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since.

It has also cured my wife, who had been sick for years; and has kept her and my children well and healthy with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used.

Newspaper Etiquette.

It frequently happens that visitors to newspaper offices do and say things which are improper, and rude, and annoying. The visitor does not mean to be rude, and has really not the slightest idea that he is making himself disagreeable, for the reason that he is not accustomed to newspaper etiquette. For the reason, we wish to throw out a few hints that will enable the visitor to avoid unintentional giving offence.

When you enter the printing office do not handle the type in the cases. If you wish to examine the type say so to the printer, and he will be glad to stop his work and empty the case on the editor's table, where you can sit in his chair and examine the type at your leisure. Never mind putting back the type the printer can do that after you get through.

Don't read the proof sheets, clippings or manuscript. If you want to know what is going to appear in the next paper ask the editor to read it out aloud to you. He has plenty of time, and will be grateful to you for a chance to quit his work and entertain you. If you want to look over the cash book, make the editor go and get it for you.

Never ask for a sample copy, but take half a dozen.

Never spit tobacco juice on the floor; always spit on the exchanges or on the walls, otherwise the editor will think you are not accustomed to a newspaper office. Make the editor feel that his presence does not annoy you.

Never ask for any old exchanges. Just help yourself to the unopened ones for they always contain much later news than those that have been opened.

Ask the editor, if you are a perfect stranger to him, to supply you with a duplicate key to his postoffice box, so you can get his papers regularly. If he is a gentleman he will furnish you with a duplicate key without your asking, but some editors are not gentlemen.—[Texas Siftings.

KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY
Cures a Terrible Case of Gravel when Other Help Failed.

What is Gravel? what causes it, and who are most liable to it? It is frequently attended with acute pain, and unless relief can be found, produces inflammation and death. Both sexes and all ages are liable to it, although men who have reached or passed middle age are its most common victims. Nothing is more urgently needed than a reliable medicine for Gravel, as the disease seems on the increase, and we are glad to say that such a specific is now before the public in the form of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y. We put in evidence the following letter, selected from many similar communications:

Pittsfield, Mass., March, 1884.

Dr. David Kennedy.

Dear Sir:—You have a right to know, and I desire the public to know my experience with Gravel and my remarkable recovery through the use of your "FAVORITE REMEDY." I am a carpenter living in this place, and there are plenty of witnesses to the truth of what I say. My first comparatively slight attack of Gravel was in the year 1878. It passed away, and I had little more trouble until last July, 1883. One day when at work in my shop I was suddenly seized with a keen and terrible pain in my left side. I consulted two physicians at once. One said: "I can do nothing for you. Your case is incurable!" I was frightened and went to the second, who said little, but gave me a prescription. It did no good.

Then began a series of experiences the agony and horror of which words cannot depict. Think of it! I was sometimes taken in the street, and would fall writhing with agony, upon the sidewalk. It was death in life. Thank Heaven, I then heard of "KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY," through Mr. P. P. Cooley. I had not used half a bottle when I passed three stones in succession, one of which was nearly one-half an inch long. I persevered with the medicine, the symptoms gradually abated, and I have had no more trouble since. I am well, thanks to you and "FAVORITE REMEDY." Yours most gratefully,

JAMES D. KENNEDY.

What "FAVORITE REMEDY" did in this case it has done in many others. If you desire to do so Address—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

MALARIA?

As an anti-malarial medicine

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale in above entitled action, made at an adjourned Special Term of this court held at Oswego on April 25th, 1885, and duly entered in the Oswego county clerk's office on that day, I the subscriber, to whom it was by said judgment duly referred, will sell, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the law office of H. E. Nichols, in the village of Fulton, N. Y., on the 18th day of June, 1885, 10 o'clock a. m., the lands and premises by said Judgment directed to be sold and described as follows, viz.:

An equal undivided one-half part of all that tract or parcel of land, situate in the town of Volney, county of Oswego, and State of New York, being a part of Lot number thirty-nine (39) in the fifteenth Township of Scriba's Patent, and being one hundred fifty-four and 56-100 acres thereof, and being the same premises deeded to said Wright, by John W. Pratt, by deed dated June 20th, 1861; to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

Also all those other certain tracts or parcels of land situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego, and State of New York, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

1st parcel. Part of Lot number sixty-three (63) of the original township of Hannibal, now Granby, and being one hundred forty-six and five-tenths acres thereof, and being the same premises conveyed to said Wright by James Bancroft and wife, by deed dated March 26th, 1875; to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

2d parcel. Being a part of Lot number fifty-three (53) of said original Township of Hannibal, and being the one hundred and forty-nine and one tenth acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright by James C. Jones and William H. Jones by deed dated August 1st, 1867, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, in book 117 of deeds, at page 440, excepting and reserving however the fifty (50) acres thereof, heretofore sold and conveyed by said Wright to to which said deeds, conveyances and records thereof, reference is hereby made for a more particular description of the ninety-nine and one-tenth acres hereby intended to be conveyed.

3d parcel. Being a part of said Lot number 53, and being fourteen acres thereof, bought by said Wright of Calvin Gifford and conveyed to him by deed dated November 27th, 1875, to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description thereof.

4th parcel. Being a part of said Lot number 53, and being the twenty (20) acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright, by Eunice House, by deed dated and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, in book of deeds, page ; to which reference is hereby made, for a more particular description, said 20 acres also adjoins said 99 and 1-10 acres in 2d parcel on the East.

5th parcel. Being a part of Lot number seventy-five (75) of said original Township of Hannibal, and being the twenty-six and 3-10 acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright by The Oswego Falls Manufacturing Company, by deed dated January 1st, 1876, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, in book 159 of deeds, at page [illegible]; to which deed and record of the same reference, is hereby made for a more particular description.

6th parcel. Being a part of said Lot number (75) and in the Village of Oswego Falls, and being the thirty-two and 55-100 acres thereof, conveyed to said Wright, by said The Oswego Falls Manufacturing Company, by deed dated November 1st, 1875, and recorded in said Clerk's Office, in Book 158 of deeds, at page 445, excepting however so much thereof as lies on block No. [illegible] of said Village of Oswego Falls, reference is hereby made to said deed, record and map of said village made in 1848 for a more particular description thereof.

At Home.

BY CLARK W. BRYAN.

At Home we keep our treasures the precious ones of life;
Father, Mother, Brother, Sister, Children, Husband, Wife;
At Home we lay foundations for coming good or ill,
And start out on the journey up life's uneven hill,
At Home.
At Home we build heart temples wherein we may enshrine
The [illegible] and the tables where our olive branches [illegible];
At Home we ask and answer the questionings of fate,
And seek to find the narrow path up the gate that's straight,
At Home.
At Home we shun the broader way to gates that open wide,
[illegible] hold the path of rectitude when opening paths divide;
At Home we trace the chart of time, with mingled hopes and fears,
Find pain and pleasure, sun and storm 'mid treasured smiles and tears,
At Home
At Home where loved ones gather, the purest joys we know,
While holding closely in embrace our own, for weal or woe.
At Home we drink of sorrow's cup, when falls affliction's tear,
And greetings and farewells are said by those we hold most dear,
At Home.
At Home we tire and wander, but though we roam afar,
We keep the range and reckoning of our magnetic star.
At Home the dearest spot on earth, where deftly and with zest
We weave life's web to lay it down and seek eternal rest,
At Home.

A LOW SWEET VOICE.

I

"Is this Mr. Rufus Harley?"

"Yes, sir," I replied, turning and beholding a well-dressed gentleman.

"I am Anderson Gray," said he, extending his hand.

I knew by reputation, Mr. Anderson Gray. He was a magazine writer. His articles, by their strangeness, had attracted my attention. I was editing a weekly paper and I was said to be a humorist. It was a great surprise to me when I found that my reputation was growing; that I had become known in distant states.

"I have read many of your articles," said Mr. Gray, as he shook my hand, "and I very much admire your style. Your humor has a subdued refinement of realism. Its very lack of hilarity commends it to the readers of good literature."

I bowed my acknowledgements. I was not flattered. Macaulay, speaking of the peculiar character of Charles the Second, said that to be below flattery was quite as possible as to be above flattery. Perhaps I was below flattery.

"I have come to your town," said Mr. Gray, when we had talked during several minutes, "for the purpose of permanent location. The mildness of your climate has recommended itself to me. Here I shall continue my magazine work. You are not a married man, I believe?"

"I am a bachelor," I replied.

"So am I. Where do you board?"

"I have a room up on Magnolia street. I take my meals at a restaurant."

"If not in any way objectionable, I would like to share your room."

"Instead of being objectionable, Mr. Gray, I shall regard it as a companionable acquisition."

"Thank you."

I found in Gray that strangeness which I had found in his articles; yet he was an agreeable companion, regardless of the fact that there was not, in his mental constitution, a single humor. He was not inclined toward the gloomy, yet, he said nothing that in the least suggested the humorous.

"Harley," he one day said to me, "Did you ever know a humorist to become insane?"

"I don't know," I replied. "Perhaps they are all insane."

"Let me tell you, Harley, humor is the best evidence of sanity. The poet and the philosopher, the astronomer and scientist frequently go to the madhouse, but the humorist, alive to the foibles of humanity, keenly appreciative of lingual bulls and social mis-steps, exhibits a strength of sanity which other people must admire, but which other people cannot hope to imitate. The humorist does not kill himself. Do you know what's a fact, my dear boy? The negro does not commit suicide. Why? The negro is a humorist. The German commits suicide. Why? Because he is [illegible] humorist."

"It is strange to me that all writers are not humorous," I replied. "Humor is so easy and so natural that I do not see how any one can keep himself from falling into it."

"The very fact that it is [illegible] is the [illegible] fact that keeps men from falling into it," Gray rejoined. "To be natural is difficult; to be unnatural it is easy. Do you know that humorists are born?"

"[illegible] If they were not born, there [illegible] would be any. Fools are also born. Circumstances do not make fools. Circumstances make wise men, however."

"My dear Harley, you are too metaphysical for a humorist. By the way, the [illegible] people are crowding me [illegible] of my [illegible]. Do you [illegible] puzzled, hence their appreciation of his work.

[illegible]

One day as I was walking along the hall, nearing my room, I heard Gray and a woman talking to each other but when I entered the room I found Gray alone.

"Did I not hear a woman's voice?"

He looked up in a surprised way. "I don't know," said he, "I have seen no woman."

Two days afterward I again heard the woman's voice. She was imploring him to love her.

"My dear husband," said she, "you know that I worship you. Will you not love me?"

"I do love you," he replied.

I knocked on the door.

"Come in," said Gray.

I entered. No one but Gray was to be seen. There was no closet, no hiding place in the room. "Gray, I am sure that I heard a woman's voice."

"My dear humorist, men of your class are constantly hearing strange voices."

Several evenings later I lay on my bed. Gray came into my room. I had not lighted a lamp, and the room was dark. I was half asleep when he entered, and I did not speak. I heard him sit down.

"Manette," he called.

"Yes," replied a low sweet voice.

"How long have you been here?"

"During the entire evening."

"Sit by me. You are a lovely creature, Manette. Your hair is as soft and fleecy as a summer's haze."

I struck a match. Grey sat in a rocking chair. Near him, a low stool had been drawn. I could see no woman.

"Hello, you are early," said Gray.

"Yes, I wasn't feeling very well. Say, didn't I hear a woman's voice just now?"

"I don't know."

"I think that I did."

"Did you ever hear the story of—"

"Never mind the story of any one Gray. I would like to receive an explanation. I have, on several occasions, heard a woman's voice in this room. The woman was addressing you."

"My dear fellow," he replied "you are certainly very strange. I did not think that humorists were given to such odd fancies."

"Gray; I do not indulge odd fancies. I am a practical man."

"A practical man, my dear Harley?"

"Yes, a practical man."

"My dear Harley, you wrote an article last week, describing the embarrasment of a young man who attended a marriage ceremony."

"Yes."

"Well, now, do you think that a practical man would write such an article?"

"To tell the truth, Gray, I don't think that he would."

"Well, then, don't call yourself a practical man. Have you read my 'Echo of the Soul?'"

"Yes."

"What do you think of it?"

"It is a curious piece of work."

II.

I was sitting in my room one day when I heard Gray ascending the stairs. I had been so perplexed by the woman's voice that I was determined upon making an investigation. I crawled under the bed. Gray entered and sat down. He took up a book and began to read. Peeping out, I watched him. The book, after a while, fell upon his lap. His face assumed a strange expression. His eyes half closed looked like the eyes of a dead man.

"Manette, do you not think that I am a long time coming."

"Yes," replied a low, sweet voice. I looked eagerly but could see no one. I am not superstitous, but I trembled violently. Listlessly, his head sank upon his breast. I could see his lips moved.

He was speaking for himself and he was speaking for the woman. I crawled out from under the bed.

"Gray!" I exclaimed.

He jumped.

"What's the matter, Harley?"

"Who is Manette?"

He sprang to his feet and clasped his hands. His face wore a look of agony.

"I must go," said he.

I did not again mention the name to Gray. My perplexity drew no boundry lines, but I said nothing. On Saturday evening, a day when we went to press, I remained late at the office. As I ascended the stairway leading to my room, I listened, expecting to hear the low, sweet voice, but all was still. I opened the door. The room was silent.

I lighted the lamp and looked about me. Great God! Gray was stretched upon the floor dead. His eyes were half open. In his right hand I found a folded paper. I copy the contents:

"My Dear Harley. I am dead. Oh, I am a humorist, you see. It is said that humor must be true to life. Can it not as well be true to death? You will no doubt ask yourself—it would be useless to ask me—why this tragedy was committed. It could not be avoided, my dear Harley. During many years I have been insane. My wife, a beautiful woman left me because I was crazy. Ah, poor girl she died in a mad house. Her name was Manette. Her hair was light and fleecy. I can see it now, whenever I close my eyes she comes to me. How earnestly she implores me to come to her. Had I been a humorist I should not have committed this deed. Humorists never do things which they should perform. All humorists should [illegible], but they do not. I [illegible] have [illegible]

[illegible]

"You say, darling that my hair is as fleecy as a summer's haze?"

"Yes, angel" replied a man's voice. I looked in every corner but could see nothing.

THE PROPER THING.

Skirts are no longer made narrow at the top.

Very short mantles are popular with young ladies.

India Ponge makes handsome and serviceable traveling cloaks.

Coachman's drab is a favorite shade for brides traveling dresses.

Plain slippers are again trimmed with black ribbon bows.

A black silk remains the most useful and convenient of toilets.

Brocaded stuffs grow more and more in vogue as the season advances.

The velvet bodice will be very generally worn with thin summer costumes.

Velvet is one of the most economical trimmings for cheap straw bonnets.

Black fans are appropriate with almost any costume or for any time or place.

Braids, galloons, and strings of big beads are the favorite dress trimmings.

Dog collars of solid jets are to be worn with black costumes the coming season.

The pretty checked and stripped silks make very cool and stylish suits for summer.

Linen collars and cuffs will be more generally worn this season than for many years.

Supple silk gloves of exquisite texture and lustre come in the lovliest colors this spring.

Vests are now made so narrow that ribbon three inches wide will serve for a stylish vest.

Novelties in crepe lisse ruching have little rolled points, on the tips of which are tiny pearl beads.

Peasant waists, with lacings in front over full white muslin waistcoats, are worn by little girls under seven.

A ring upon the first finger ranks next in bad taste to a ring outside the glove, says a clever New York writer.

Velvet ribbon bows in all the popular shades now come attached to a clasp pin, and can be applied to any toilet.

The simplest muslin dresses have the skirt made round and its only ornaments should be tucks two inches wide.

An English decoration for a parasol is a lace pocket handkerchief carelessly dropped on one gore and tacked in position.

Embroidered tissue veiling is used for trimming for summer hats. It is in all colors; red, however, is the most stylish.

Mohair dresses trimmed with white braid will rival the more costly blue, white, and striped flannel, for boating and mountain dresses.

The novelty in white suits is the tailor made pique, trimmed with tucks and bound with braid after the manner of tailor-made suits.

Colored linen collars and cuffs in many new designs and styles are to be worn at seaside resorts this summer with flannel dresses for morning wear.

The human face should be oval, and the dressing of the hair and the arrangement of the bonnet trimming should be done with regard to producing this effect.

Chantilly, the most beautiful of all black laces, is fashionable again for scarfs, mantelets, fichus, and tunics or polonaises to be worn over silk dresses, black or colored.

A Little Mixed.

Boy—"Pop, can't I go fishing?"

Pop—"Of course not; it's Sunday."

"Well, can't I go to-morrow?"

"Yes, I'll go along with you, too. Feel just like it myself."

"I'm glad of that; we'll have a bully time."

"Yes, sirree. You go right to work digging worms."—[Philadelphia Call.

ATLANTIC MONTHLY.

The June number comes promptly to hand with a most affectizing table of contents. Among the good things are chapters IX and X of Holmes' Portfolio. Chapters XI and XII of the "Smoky Mountains," by C. E. Craddock—whose real name is Miss Murfee, and one of the first novelists in America as her present novel in the Atlantic clearly proved. Miss Jewett's serial, entitled "A Marsh Island" is continued, and which is pronounced by all as a most engaging story filled with delightful characters, scenery, atmosphere and all that goes to make a charming story. "The Forests and the Census" is a timely article by Francis Parkman, which everyone should read, and which the press would be doing a great favor to the world to copy. The saving of the forests has become a vital importance, not only in a sanitary way, but in a material manner as well. Every article is good and the present number seems fully devoted to "Literature, Science and Art." For sale at Ney's.

NEW YORK BRIC-A-BRAC.

Clean Towels—An Odd Sign—Rapid Transit Lunch—The Jump to Death, and Brooklyn Happy Children.

NEW YORK, May 23, '85.

"One half the world don't know how the other half lives." I'll admit that thats "a chestnut," but it is never-the-less true. Here's something to prove it. I have a circular issued by the "clean towel association—limited—of New York." The object is to furnish a clean towel every day to any one who will pay one dollar and a half a month. The towels are all stamped, and numbered, and put up on a patent roller. Now that's a simple scheme, and yet some man with an enlarged cranium, will make a fortune out of it. In a smaller town such a scheme would die in two weeks.

* * * * *

In Brooklyn I found an odd sign which will tell its own story. Here it is:

"We dye to live
While others live to die;
The longer we live
The better we dye
And the longer we dye
The better we live."

* * * * *

A short description of the different classes of restaurants in New York would make a large, but interesting volume. I don't intend to write such a book, but I want to tell of a unique lunch room I have patronized several times.

It is on Broadway, below Cortland street, and is called "The Buffet." The room is about twenty by forty, and the front portion is occupied by an immense soda fountain, and the cashier's desk. All around the room extends a marble shelf, placed at such a height that it is convenient to eat from. In nickle plated trays, on one side of the room, sandwiches, of every kind known, are piled up neatly; each pile covered with a damp napkin. At the end of the room are the steam coffee, tea and chocolate boilers, and on the other side is pastry of all nations. No chairs, or tables are visible, and there are no waiters. Three young men act as floor managers, but they do not offer to help you. You enter the place, select what sandwiches you wish, rush down to the end of the room, grab a cup of coffee, and eat and drink standing. Then comes dessert, and you select a check from the wall pockets, pay at the desk and in a few seconds you are again battling with the noonday crowd for a place on the pavement.

Rapid transit lunch. All done in less than five minutes, Presto. I'll anticipate the question, and say that a person can't eat a thirty cent lunch for ten cents, although you select your own check.

* * * * *

The surveyers were at work last Sunday at the New York entrance of the bridge, and I was led to believe that the long wished for, much talked of extension would soon be a fact. In the mean time the Brooklyn people all have to stand the crowding, pushing, and jamming incidental to a trip in the cars across the bridge. It's the best natured crowd I ever got into, and even though an umbrella does poke a persons eye out once in a while he does not think of grumbling. And as every one's ribs have become calloused they don't mind a little squeezing.

* * * * *

The great bridge, aided by a desire for notoriety, and a physical impossibility, has at last killed its man. R. E. Odlum thought he could jump into notoriety from that structure, but he jumped into eternity instead. Tuesday evening, May 19th, a little after six o'clock a coupe was driven onto the bridge, from the New York side, followed by a covered furniture wagon. In the coupe was a friend of Odlum's who served as a decoy to call the attention of the police from the jumper. Odlum was in the furniture wagon covered with a blanket. Just as the police descended on the coupe the other vehicle passed the tower and here Odlum divested himself of his outer garments and jumped upon the rail. He stood there only a second, and raising one hand above his head, jumped clear of all obstructions, and like a flash descended into the river below. Before he struck the water he lost control of himself, and when he rose to the surface he was a mangled man. He lived long enough after his friends got him on board the tug to ask, "What kind of a jump did I make, boys?" His friends claim that the dread of arrest unnerved him, and on account of the police he had to jump before he could brace himself for the leap. Odlum was a native of Ogdensburg, N. Y., and was a professional swimmer. The distance jumped was one hundred and forty feet. Time three seconds. I don't doubt that some one will make this jump successfully, for there are three men now who are only waiting for some financial backing.

On Wednesday next, May 27th, will occur the sixty-seventh anniversary of the Brooklyn Sunday School Union, and on that day the "City of Churches" will be resplendant in gaily dressed children, silken banners, flying flags, and floral decorations. Brooklyn is the only city that indulges in this unique holiday, and "anniversary day," is one of the red letter days in the annals of the little Brooklynites. After the morning service at the different churches the children march in divisions to Prospect, or other public parks, for a lunch, and romp on the grass. The tables at Prospect Park are a sight, and they actually extend "o'er hill and dale." [illegible]

The Beauty of Youth.

No matter how handsome or stalwart a young man may be otherwise, nothing can make up for a partially bald head. Shining talents are attractive, but a shining poll is not. The cause may be sickness or anything else, yet Parker's Hair Balsam will stop the loss of the hair and start a new growth of glossy and soft hair so quickly as to surprise you—restoring the original color at the same time. Not a dye, not oily, delicately perfumed. Only standard 50c. dressing. 1m1

THE New York State Sunday-School Association will hold its annual convention at Binghamton, June 9, 10 and 11. Every Sunday-school is entitled to send delegates, and it is hoped that, at least, every county and town association in the State will be represented. The committee has the program nearly ready for publication.

REPORTS covering every wheat producing county in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota and the Pacific coast indicate that the gloomyiest views advanced concerning the winter wheat outlook for 1885 must be accepted as most accurate. The absolute uniformity of returns indicate that the outlook for winter-sown this year is the worst in ten years. Under the most favoring conditions, the total winter and spring wheat yield will fall considerably under the short crop of 1881, when the total product was 380,000,000 bushels. With the exception of Michigan, Oregon and Washington territory on the far western slope, the causes leading to the decreased output of winter wheat are almost identical. In Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas and Missouri the ground was bare of snow during the severely cold weather at the close of the winter and was followed by dry, cold winds.

LAST Saturday, just before train No. 6 on the Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific railroad reached Chicago a dispatch was received by the depot police that the train was in the hands of a maniac who had defied all efforts to capture him. A dozen policemen were detailed to secure the man, and upon the arrival of the train a fierce battle ensued, during which Con Barrett, one of the officers was killed outright, and several others seriously injured. When the maniac was finally secured, he said that his name was Louis Reaume, that he was en route to his home in Detroit, from Denver. On his person was a cartridge belt for sixty shots, of which fifty were used, and a 44 caliber revolver of the navy pattern. He boarded the train at Kansas City, and from there to Chicago had driven every passenger from his car, resisted their efforts to sidetrack it and literally had things his own way. At different stations he fired at all persons attempting to board the car. He was shot three times before he was secured.

At Pittsburg yesterday, the iron workers strike was inaugurated. The strike seems to be general throughout the West. About 100,000 men are thrown out of employment. Both sides are firm. At some places a long suspension of work seems inevitable.

The terrible epidemic of typhoid fever which is devastating the village of Plymouth, Pa., sounds a loud warning against uncleanliness in all forms. Since the first breaking out of the disease, up to Wednesday of last week, there have been 905 cases in the place. The deaths in two weeks numbered 55, and 134 were convalescent. At the date of the last report many were still in a critical condition. Over 280 families are destitute and depending upon aid from outside. A relief corps from Philadelphia and other places is on the ground doing all in its power to relieve the fever stricken people. Over $13,000 has thus far been distributed among the sufferers.

Cheese Market.

(FROM THE UTICA HERALD.)

AT UTICA June 1.

Our market to-day has again shown a downward tendency, and declined 1½c. from last week's prices. It is discouraging all around, but no more so to the dairyman than it is to the dealer. The latter has been losing actual money every week this season, while the dairyman simply fails to get any money. Each thinks he has the worst end of the rope. There was considerable activity on the market to-day, despite the fearful weakness of prices. Factorymen were pretty well frightened, and sent on their whole shipment without reserve. Nobody can judge whether bottom has been touched or not. Some think yes, some think no, but all are willing to get rid of fodder cheese. Next week there will be some grass cheese, but good solid grass stock will not be in market until two weeks from to-day. That kind of stock is being made to keep, and we believe there is a tendancy to hold it for some time if it will not bring better prices.

Transactions for the day were as follows: 90 boxes at 5c.; four lots, 170 boxes, at 5½c.; two lots, 105 boxes, at 5⅝c.; 55 lots, 4,410 boxes, at 5¾c.; five lots, 458 boxes, at 5⅞c; and 11 lots, 1,750 boxes, at 6c. Sales, 6,992 boxes; commissions 4,332; total 11,219 boxes. Ruling price, 5¾c. One year ago transactions were 10,143 boxes, at 7⅛c. Two years ago they were 8,180 boxes at 11c. On the corresponding day in 1879, sales were 9,758 boxes, at an average price of 7⅛c. To-day's prices are the lowest ever known here at this time of year.

LITTLE FALLS, June 1.

CHEESE.—The cheese trade continues from bad to worse and all are wondering where the end will be. A further decline of fully a cent and a half since last Monday was foretold by no one here, and it is a hard blow for dairymen to bear. And the prospect is a bad one for dairymen to contemplate, for good judges predict that this state of things is likely to continue. Trade was extremely slow to-day, factorymen waiting for each other to dispose of their cheese, fearing to sell at the ruinously low prices. But it was no use waiting; buyers were as much discouraged as factorymen, for all who bought cheese last week lost money, and even where cheese was taken on commission buyers heard so much fault found with the returns of sales made that it was little satisfaction to do business in this way. Yet transactions to-day are largely on commission. Buyers and salesmen are alike "at sea" and both move with extreme caution.

Following are the transactions:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
31	1,297	5¾ cts
23	1,510	6 cts
1	91	6¼ cts
46	1,968	Com.
106	4,866
Farm Dairy	791
Total	5,657

FARM DAIRIES.—There were 791 boxes of dairy cheese, including several of the smaller factories making home trade cheese, sold on the morning market. Prices ranged from 5 a 6¼c., the bulk going on commission.

BUTTER.—There were 86 packages of creamery butter, in fine lots, sold at 18 a 22c. The strictly wholesale trade did not pay over 20c., the higher rate being paid by the local grocery trade.

AT FULTON.

About 25 factories were represented at this market with 1000 boxes, of which 350 were sold at 5¾c., Utica ruling. The balance was either held over or sold on commission.

Board of Trustees.

FULTON, Wednesday May 27th, 1885.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

All present except Trustee Kendrick.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Mr. Johnson, who was appointed a committee to procure a map showing the line of the canal through the village, reported the duty performed, and presented a map from the State Engineer's office.

On motion of Mr. Gage, the map was received and ordered placed on file, and the committee discharged.

The Clerk reported that the notices to remove encroachments on the north side of Cayuga St., as required by resolution of the Board adopted September 30th, 1884, had been served.

On motion of Mr. Johnson the bill of J. Kavanaugh for lighting street lamps was audited at the amount claimed, $40.68, and the Clerk directed to draw an order on the Treasurer therefor.

Mr. Gage, from the Finance Committee reported that no reduction in the price of gas for street lamps could be obtained.

On motion of Mr. Johnson the Street Commissioner was instructed to proceed at once to repair the pavement on First street.

Trustee Kendrick came in.

On motion of Mr. Johnson the Clerk was instructed to correspond with Mr. S. C. Schenck and request the removal at once of the brick and rubbish on Oneida street in front of his premises.

J. W. Pratt, President of the Fulton Water Works Co. and H. E. Nichols appeared before the Board and presented a proposition from said Company relative to supply of water for fire and other public purposes, and requested that a committee be appointed to investigate the proposed system.

On motion of Mr. Johnson the President and three trustees to be named by the President were appointed a committee to visit and examine water works in other towns and report to this Board at as early a day as practicable. The president named as such committee Messrs. Johnson, Gage and Hulett.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick the following ordinances relative to sidewalks were adopted to wit:

Be it ordained, That the several owners of the following described premises be and they hereby are required to make new side walks in front of and adjacent to the premises hereinafter specifically described; said parcels being owned or occupied by the several persons hereinafter named, to wit:

West side Fourth street:
Fulton Water Works Co., lot 9, blk 112.
Mrs. Sophia Dodge, lots 10 and 12, blk 112.
North side Cayuga street:
Frank Rafferty, lot 3, blk 51
Thomas Summers, lot 4, blk 51
John O'Grady, lot 6, blk 51
North side of Highland street:
Mrs Mary Hawthorne, lot 14, blk 103
Mrs. Ellen Tovey, lot 7, blk 104
Michael Harty, lot 14, blk 104.

And be it further ordained that the several sidewalks hereinbefore specified be made of sound two-inch hemlock plank, laid lengthwise, or one and a half inch pine plank laid cross-wise on 3 by 4 stringers well secured with earth to make a firm foundation and securely nailed. That the same be laid five feet in width and that the outer lines be evenly laid and in line with other walks already laid adjacent thereto, and that the same be so made and laid within 30 days from the service of this notice; and further resolved that the Clerk cause the aforesaid ordinances to be at once served upon all persons affected thereby, and cause proof of such service to be made and filed.

Be it ordained, That the several owners of the following described premises be and they are hereby required to repair the sidewalks in front of and adjacent to their premises hereinafter specifically described and upon the same grade as they are now laid. Said premises being severally owned or occupied by the several persons hereinafter named, to wit:

East side of Third street:
Mrs. R. T. Jones, lot 1, blk 15
South side of Utica street:
Mrs W T Church, lot 5 and 6, blk 36.

And be it further ordained that such several sidewalks be repaired of the same material as was used in the original construction thereof and that they be so repaired and put in good sound serviceable condition within ten days after the service of this notice, and further

Resolved, That the Clerk cause the aforesaid ordinances to be at once served upon all persons affected thereby and cause proof of such service to be made and filed.

Mr. B. J. Kimball appeared before the Board and presented a map of the village prepared by him, showing names of owners of property. On motion of Mr. Johnson Mr. Kimball was authorized to prepare a copy thereof for the use of the village, at the price of $15.

The Clerk presented a list of the persons liable to highway tax under the provisions of Section 54 of the village charter, and the Trustees assessed each of such persons two days' labor on the highways and directed the collection thereof by the Street Commissioner.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick all Firemen in active service, and all persons who have a certificate of full service in the Fire Department, together with the members of the Board of Trustees were exempted from the payment of Poll tax.

Mr. A. J. Snow requested permission to erect a wooden dwelling house on his lot, corner of Utica and Third streets, and on motion of Mr. Johnson, the same was granted.

Bids for the lighting of street lamps, having been previously presented, were opened and found to be as follows:

	For each gas lamp	For oil lamps
J. Kavanaugh	$4.00	5.00
Hale Curtiss	4 00	5.00
Thos. Wright	4.10	5.10
Geo. McCann	4.15	5.15
Geo McCann	5.25	5.25

On motion of Mr Kendrick the bids were referred to the Lamp Committee, to be reported on at the next meeting.

Mr. J. W. Pratt appeared before the Board and asked if the village desired to renew the lease of right to cross with fire engines &c premises on west side of First street and south of Rochester street.

On motion of Mr Gage the matter was referred to the village Attorney to ascertain the rights of the parties interested in said premises.

On motion of Mr Hulett the Board adjourned to May 28th inst at 7 o'clock p. m.

ARVIN RICE, Clerk.

FULTON, May 28, 1885.

Board met, pursuant to adjournment. Present the President and Trustees Bradford, Chase, Gage and Johnson.

On motion of Mr. Bradford, a committee consisting of Messrs. Bradford, Chase and Kendrick was appointed by the President to examine the floors and walls of the Engine House and report to the Board what repairs if any are needed.

Trustee Kendrick came in.

The polls of the special meeting were opened at 7 p. m. and closed at 9 p. m.

Upon the Resolution to raise $1,[illegible], by tax for the purpose of building an iron bridge over the Hydraulic canal on Oneida street, there were 52 votes cast, of which 49 votes were for the Resolution and three votes were against it.

Upon the Resolution to raise $150 by tax for the purpose of repairing the masonry to the bridge over the hydraulic canal on Oneida street there were 52 votes cast, all of which were for the Resolution.

Both the Resolutions were declared adopted.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick the Board adjourned to June 2d, 1885 at 8 p. m.

McCarthy's
(SPRING OPENING.)
The formal spring opening of
McCARTHY'S
Mammoth Dry Goods, Crockery House Furnish-Goods stores will take place for One Week
Commencing Monday April 6
And a very proper question for most people of Oswego county to ask themselves is Where Can We
spend our money to the best advantage. And where should we go but to McCarthy's.
In the first place he can
SELL CHEAPER
because he buys directly from the manufacturer thereby saving 10 per cent. on cost of goods.
He buys strictly for cash thereby saving 7 per cent.
By this you will see the goods reach his counters 17 per cent
Below Any Other Store
In Oswego.
And in every case the customer will have the benefit of this 17 per cent.
N. B Remember where a penny will go the farthest you can best trust a dollar.

[illegible] this committee is to take active steps to inform themselves, and if so we are in sympathy with them. It is time that there should be action and less talk. We want water works and believe that four-fifths of the citizens want them. Whether they shall be put in by the village or a company is past argument. Our government sends John Roach an order to build a vessel. It is built, is satisfactory in every respect. Government thinks it knows more about vessels than Roach, and hires him to build one according to its direction. The vessel is built and fails to meet the requirements. It is simply one more lesson taught that a man who creates a business and is successful knows more about it than one who is inexperienced. It is true that men charge for their experience and knowledge. So they ought. When brains and energy have won a position for a man they should have their reward. We mean to say that this village will find it much cheaper to contract for water works, than to attempt to build and run them itself. We believe the wise course to pursue would be to order an election on the question and let the people investigate. A man with much property in Fulton is not going to vote a tax upon himself unless he becomes satisfied that it is advisable. We believe it is a question for the people to consider and decide, and the only way to do that practically, is by an election. If any benefits are to be gained this year, it is time some more progressive steps be taken. It is proper for the board to appoint a committee, but not proper that their decision should be an ultimatum. At the same time the board ordered this committee appointed it should have ordered an election if so requested by the present water works' board.

The New Stove Works.

Work in the upper foundry is being rapidly pushed forward, preparatory to its occupancy by the new stove works. The patterns are being made, and immediately upon the completion of the building, active operations will be begun. The articles of incorporation have been filed at Albany and at the county clerk's office in Oswego. Mr. Redhead, the Vice-President of the company, informs us that every effort will be made to have the works in full running order as soon after July 1st as possible.

Unclaimed Letters.

The following letters remain uncalled for in the post office at Fulton, Oswego [illegible]

Decoration Day.

At an early hour last Saturday, the streets of Fulton assumed a lively aspect, throngs of visitors crowded the streets and members of the G. A. R., with their tasty uniforms gathered in knots here and there talking over old times and scenes while they were at the front. About two o'clock the procession was formed in front of G. A. R. hall, and headed by the Sons of Veterans drum corps, marched to the opera house, where an address by the Hon. N. W. Nutting of Oswego was listened to with close attention by a large audience. The exercises were interspersed by music by the post, and the recital of Wadsworth's touching poem, "The Blue and the Gray," by the speaker's little daughter, a girl of about ten years, was beautifully rendered and received with enthusiastic applause. The G. A. R. then marched to the cemetery, to the graves of our honored dead, and

> "Covered them over with beautiful flowers, > Covered them over, those heroes of ours."

Pleasantly Disappointed.

Those who anticipated the luxurious enjoyments of a picnic on the beautiful river last Saturday and were frustrated by the inclemency of the weather, soon shook off the feeling of disappointment upon receiving a cordial invitation from Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Case to join them at their pleasant home on Fourth street in the afternoon and remain during the evening. At about five o'clock there had assembled nearly twenty-five would-be picnicers, all seeming in excellent spirits. Mr. and Mrs. Case entertained their guests in a very hospitable manner. Early in the evening all adjourned to the dining room where was spread a most delicious repast. Upon the arrival of Prof. F. K. Jones, at about nine o'clock, the rooms were made ready for dancing. Through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Case, Decoration Day, which at first promised gloom and disappointment, proved to be one which will always be pleasant to the memory of those who were present.

Umpire Taylor's Decision.

A report comes to us from Fulton, apparently well authenticated, that Umpire Taylor of Fulton was insulted by members of the Binghamton team on their arrival in Fulton Saturday night, because they took exception to his manner of umpiring the game. As we have before said, a home umpire is rarely found who will do as full justice to a visiting team as Mr. Taylor, and on Saturday his decisions, so far from being against the Binghamtons, at times bore rather hard upon the home team, and certainly the Binghamtons have no cause to complain. If the reports in relation to the Binghamtons are true, they will gain no credit by the transaction.—[Oswego Times & Express.

We understand that Taylor has sworn out a warrant, and Officer Pool left for Syracuse this noon, for the purpose of arresting McGinnis, the member referred to above.

The Oswego Yacht Fleet.

The Oswego yacht fleet opened the season with a cruise to Big Sodus Saturday. The fleet left Oswego in a gale of wind and rain at 9:15 o'clock. The Ethel arrived first in three hours five minutes and thirty-two seconds; the Laura second, three hours eleven minutes and thirty-two seconds; the Katie Gray third, in three hours thirteen minutes and forty-eight seconds; the Fascination fourth, in three hours seventeen minutes and forty-nine seconds. Three minutes after leaving Oswego the Cricket lost her topmast and shattered her masthead, and the Ella was troubled with her centerboard. Both boats were taken in tow. The Ethel won the race without a topmast, which was carried away off Lewis' Bluff. The wind was southward and the distance forty miles. A. J. Foster of this village, a member of the committee, attended the race.

We are in receipt of the first copy of the Traverse City Journal published by A. L. Faulkner, late of Oneida, N. Y. It is a bright, newsy sheet.

The windows of the different dry goods stores in town were tastefully and appropriately decorated last Saturday, and attracted considerable attention.

The plans and specifications for the new factory building are completed and work will be commenced early next month. The building will be four stories high and 375x90 feet.

The Carthage Republican says the assessment of village property in that village this year is over $125,000 less than it was last year. This is the result of the great fire which destoyed over twice that amount.

Fred Sutherland, who has been officiating as station agent at Pennellville for several weeks, has received the appointment as agent at Phœnix Junction, the office being about two miles this side of Fulton.—[Lakeside Press.

Arrangements have been made by the N. Y. O. & W. Railway and the N. Y. & Buffalo Railway for a stage line between Nyack and Nyack Turnpike, the fare to be 25 cents. The stage line is to be under the charge of Mr. Edward Phillips.

Rails have been laid on the Phœnix road up to within two and one-half miles this side of Phœnix. The work is again delayed by the non-arrival of iron. Phœnix will not be reached this week. Willard Johnson is in New York in the interest of the road.

A two-cent stamp will carry a letter weighing an ounce after July first, instead of half an ounce, as at present, and after that date publishers will pay but one cent per pound for the transmission of their matter, instead of the two cents now exacted.

The game of ball played by the young men of the east and west side of First street on the park last Thursday afternoon resulted in a score of 40 to 47 in favor of the west side. James Jones of Cayuga street umpired the game in a satisfactory manner.

Mrs. George Hall, whose husband disappeared from Mount Pleasant some time ago, has received a letter from him in Oregon. He went to Madison county and sold his hops, and with the proceeds started for the Pacific coast without a word of good bye or explanation to any one. When he got there he wrote.

Mr. Moffet of Watertown, was in Fulton last week looking after the interest of the Water Works company. Arvin Rice, clerk of the Board, with a delegation of trustees, is this week visiting several towns which have lately introduced the Watertown system, with a view of its early adoption in this village.

A narrow escape from a serious accident occurred last Friday evening at the Oneida street crossing of the N., Y. O. & W. railroad. Mr. S. E. Lincoln, wife and child were riding down the street when the approach of an engine frightened the horse, which reared in the air and fell to one side, breaking the thills. The occupants of the carriage fortunately had time to get out unhurt.

H. C. Beals of this villgae, prompted by a spirit of patriotism, and a desire to help onward the good work of "Liberty Enlightening the World," started out yesterday to obtain subscriptions to the pedestal fund. All subscribers, besides having a lasting souvenir of the Bartholdi statue, can always remember that their efforts helped to put upon its feet the greatest monument of modern times. Mr. Beals is entitled to considerable credit for his commendable work. He succeeded with very little trouble in obtaining a large number of subscriber. The statue was shipped May 21 on the steamship "Isere." The vessel upon arriving at New York will be met by Government steamers, who will escort it up the bay. Salutes will be fired and a grand demonstration made in honor of the event.

The house of Schuyler Schenck at Toledo, Ohio, was recently entered and a most daring robbery committed. Mr. Schenck was in the West on business at the time. Mrs. Schenck with the nurse, was locked in a room together. There were no other occupants in the house. The robbers (for there was several of them) entered the cellar window. They thoroughly ransacked the house and cleared the dining room table of all the silver [illegible]

[illegible] John B. Lovingston and wife of St. Louis came on to be present on the occasion, also Mrs. [illegible], sister of Mrs. Osgood, from Greenfield, Mass., Mrs. Fisher and grand daughter of Pulaski, N. Y. Mrs. Caroline Osgood aged seventy-nine years, walked without fatigue from her residence to the house of her brother-in-law. Only a few intimate friends were invited, some twenty-five or thirty. Mr. C. S. Osgood and wife came here from Pulaski thirty-three years ago.

He has been warmly interested in the wellfare of this village and town and has freely lent a helping hand to all that promised prosperity and reform. In education, temperance and religious work he is an earnest and conscientious worker. With far from robust health he has, by prudent care, accomplished much. He still looks after his agricultural interests and has a fine farm just out of town.

After a bountiful and delicate repast the Rev. J. C. Breaker was called upon and made some very appropriate and timely remarks, briefly reviewing what changes had taken place within the past fifty years. He wished them longer life and health, until, peradventure they celebrate their diamond wedding. He was followed by a very touching and pleasant testimonial read by Mrs. Caroline Osgood, wife of the late Willard Osgood. Mr. John B. Lovingston of St. Louis, an old friend, paid a high tribute to the character of Mr. Osgood and wife, as did also J. D. Lasher, L. Babcock, R. E. Phillips, Wm. Morton and others, in short speeches. After some music and warm interchange of sentiment the company withdrew, wishing many blessings to the twain who were just entering the golden years of married life.

The guests felt that a most enjoyable time was had, owing largely to the foresight and untiring industry of the daughters, Jennie and Libbie Osgood.

Several beautiful and valuable presents were left by children and friends. The house was most tastefully decorated with golden mottoes and fragrant flowers.

The following rhyme was read and requested to be published:

Doth it seem fifty years since you said, "I will"
Love one another, through good and through ill.
And comes not the thought, as you backward gaze,
Of the joys and griefs, strewn along life's ways,
And memories sacred and ever dear
Bring the forms of loved ones we wish were here?

Mourn ye not nor shed the unbidden tears,
Their's is a Home where all are golden years!
May you with sweet accord your burdens bear,
As all your joys and hopes you kindly share;
With kind friends, proving by acts of love,
A kinship to that which comes from above,
That life is more than "wine" or "angel food,"
It is a noble record, true—"Os-good."

As you turn your face to the other shore
Where the poor tired heart aches and chafes no more,
And when life's autumn, wint'ry days have come
And you pensive gaze upon the western sun;
God shall the soul sustain,—every want provide—
As you gently drift with the out-going tide.

* * * * * * *

P. S. Kind friends:
Our "void" supplied from the bounteous table,
Had we not better go home, while we are able,
For the doctor may blister and send in a bill
That would greatly appall, if not painfully kill;
So good night—and may health, the heaven sent boon,
As an angel's wing rest on bride and groom;
And if you all meet some fifty years hence
I'll send up my boy to plead my defence!

South Scriba.

SOUTH SCRIBA, May 30. 1885—Mrs. Electa Coe is seriously ill with but little hope for her recovery. Her daughter, Mrs. Angeline Bartlett, who has been at Mexico in the insane asylum for the past year, has so far recovered her mind as to be with her at Mr. Amos Hubbard's.

Mr. Willet G. Hall, an aged and respected resident, is not expected to long survive.

Miss Mamie Hubbard has got the measles. Several, both old and young have been exposed and we expect a lively time.

Our school is prospering finely under the management of Miss Ida Patten of South New Haven.

The Burdick cheese factory is closed for the want of patronage.

Mrs. Alexander, wife of Emory Alexander, died at their residence in the town of Volney, Sunday May 24. The funeral was held at Mount Pleasant, Tuesday, the Rev. C. E. Miller officiating. The remains were interred at South Scriba cemetery. Q.

South Hannibal.

SOUTH HANNIBAL, June 1st, 85.—Quite a number of the Lodge members went over to Oswego Falls last Tuesday night to attend the district meeting held there.

The Ladies Foreign Missionary Society met at Mr. Wells' last Wednesday afternoon.

Murray Warner expects to start for Chicago next Monday.

Mr. Clark Nichols and wife of Volney, spent Saturday with Mr. G. V. Wolven.

Mr. S. D. Wells has been improving his house and store with a fresh coat of paint.

Mr. J. E. Rowlee and wife spent Saturday and Sunday with friends at Bundys Crossing.

The Sunday schools will observe floral day the second Sunday in June. M.

OBITUARY.

A dispatch was received last Sunday morning, announcing the death of Clarance O. Titus, of Traverse City, Mich. Mr. Titus will be remembered by Fulton people, he having resided here several years. He was a son-in-law of Rev. J. P. Simmons of this village. Deceased was born in Hannibal and is a son of Orson Titus who still resides at that place. He was an active member of the Baptist church and was the moving spirit in remodeling the edifice some years since. Mr. Titus was a man of great business ability and was strictly honest in his dealings with his fellowmen. He removed to the West some six years ago. His age was 47 years. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon. The remains were interred in that city for the present but will be brought to Fulton for permanant burial.

Both from Out of Town.

John Frawley, of Oswego Falls, was observed in West Washington street late last night by Officer O'Brien, who noticed that Frawley was intoxicated and that he was dogged by a man who, when arrested said that his name was John Barry, and his home in Oswego Falls. Both men were arrested. Two [illegible]

About the most amusing game of polo we ever witnessed occurred last night at the rink. Two teams composed of men from the knife factories of Taylor Bros. and Foster Bros. played a game, which after being closely contested for half an hour was won by Foster Bros. in a score of three to one.

To-morrow evening there will be three great attractions at the rink. Willie and Minnie Stewart in their great double and single acts and Lizzie, who is said to be the most accomplished lady skater in the state, will appear in new and elegant uniforms.

Last Thursday evening a large audience gathered at the rink to witness the game of polo between two teams composed of ladies. The game was a very tame affair, although some of the ladies made a few good plays.

Next Tuesday evening June 9, a grand fancy dress carnival will be held at the Fulton rink. A large number have signified their intention of attending in fancy costumes.

Several Fultonians attended the Casino rink at Oswego last Monday to witness the game of polo between the Salems and the Casinos.

Ice Cream.

Parlors have been handsomely fitted up in the rear of John Breaker's bakery where the choicest ice cream may be had at reasonable prices. Remember the place. First street, opposite the Bee Hive. tf

Owing to the [illegible] soil and climate in New York, the period of sowing winter grain covers fully two months. Sowing begins in the northern portion of the state in August, and in the southern part it extends into October. In the central portion it is often sown in October, but the bulk is put in from the middle to the last of September. Drilling has become more general since the practice of using commercial fertilizers has so rapidly increased as they are best distributed by the drills. Drilling makes better culture and is preferred because there is a saving of seed and it is better protected during the winter. Covering the seed when sowed broadcast with a two horse cultivator, would produce the same result of making the little ridges which are thought to hold the snow. Parties who own drills go about and put in the crop for the farmers, taking them in turn on their circuit. They get for the work from sixty to seventy-five cents per acre.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

Grow some sunflower seed to feed the chickens.

Plowing under a green crop is always beneficial to the soil.

It is said that rye makes a very good hay and is a sure crop.

If you did not prune your grape vines last fall do it at once.

Oats make excellent cow feed, but corn should never be given separately.

Sheep should have their feet trimmed at least twice a year. If they are not trimmed the hoof turns under at the edges and retains a mass of dirt and filth which is apt to cause foot-rot.

It is said that animal manures generally furnish all the potash plants require, and when thirty cords per acre is applied, as sometimes by market gardeners, the soil cannot be deficient in potash.

It will rarely pay to buy chemicals for mixing as manures, unless a farmer is prepared to do it on a large scale. A little gives more bother than profit. But those purchased fertilizers may often be profitably composited in the manure heap and all drawn out together.

Stir the cream twice a day to mix the sour and sweet. The butter will come sooner and be better. When this is not done the sour cream will make butter first and the sweet cream will remain in the butter-milk unless churned longer. Stirring the cream makes the whole mass of uniform acidity and it all comes together.

If the meadows look as if they would be light, plow the poorest one up, or an old pasture, and sow Hungarian grass. It may be put in any time in June, and if the surface of the ground is moderately manured, from two to four tons of good hay may be cut. Make the surface mellow and smooth, and then sow broadcast twelve quarts of seed per acre, and roll it in or over with a light harrow, or a brush harrow, will do. It should be cut before it gets too ripe. The best time is just as the seed begins to fill. It then makes soft and nutritious hay; but if left till the seed ripens, it will be hard, woody and indigestible, and the seed will be apt to derange the stomach. The seed is not good unless ground and mixed with bran.—[Our Country Home.

A Good Time to Raise the Calves.

The exceedingly cold weather in March and the fore part of April was very destructive to young pigs, and they are scarce and high. Now is a good time to raise the calves. Give them the milk the pigs would have had and make them nice. In some sections the fattening of calves is made a profitable business. It does pay well and requires little capital. They are fed middlings and linseed meal and they grow rapidly. In the autumn they are sold.

A Young Man's Fortune.

Every young man, says Dr. Gates, has [illegible] of his youth. The [illegible] of youth is unblunted by defeat [illegible] hope deferred. With age [illegible] more conservative, and [illegible] what a younger [illegible] to accomplish [illegible] success. The effort, [illegible] is a grand success [illegible] or self-conceit, [illegible] is a great thing [illegible] not to be [illegible]

[illegible] opinion that [illegible] of the Chinese language would be the natural tongue. Twenty different results were predicted.

At last it was decided to test the matter, and a committee was appointed to carry out the experiment.

Two infants were procured and put in the charge of a deaf and dumb woman, who lived in the Alps and made a living by rearing chickens and tending sheep.

The woman was given strict injunctions to allow no one to speak to these children, and as her cottage was some miles distant from any neighbor, the circumstances surrounding the experiment were very favorable.

Years rolled on, and many of the members of the society had lost sight of this interesting experiment.

Some members of the committee died, and there was great danger of the results of this wonderful test being lost to the world.

Fortunately two of the members of the committee kept faithful watch of the case, and when the children were six years old, brought them with their nurse, into a meeting of the "savants." Every member was on the tiptoe of expectation as to the result. Not one word could either of the children utter; their only form of language was a good imitation of the crowing of a cock, the cackling of a hen, or the bleating of a sheep. The predictions of science were totally upset by the practical experiment.

The Self-Possession of the Bride.

A bride—even the plainest—is interesting for the nonce. It is astonishing, too how self-possessed she is. The man looks sheepish, frightened, half ashamed, half sorry; but the very importance of the moment gives the bride firmness; her heart is in the service—she forgets all petty considerations, and she goes through it gracefully. This is an inherent gift in the sex, not only in weddings, but in all solemnities where any display is required. After the ceremony the husband regains his composure and begins to look as if this would be the happiest day in his life. He takes pride in his choice; you see at last that his was a free-will offering—that he was not the victim his doleful, nervous appearance had led you to suspect. His eye beams as it rests on the sweet companion by his side, and for that day, at least, he is sincere in his promise that, as far as in him lies, she shall never have cause to repent her trust.

His Business Compelled It.

"How do you manage to secure the best cards in the pack?" exclaimed a lady to her male opponent in a game of euchre.

"I cannot help it, madame," replied the gentleman; "my business compels me to hold the best winning cards."

"And why, pray?"

"I am a pawnbroker."

"And what has that to do with this game, I would like to know?"

"My business, madame, compels me to hold a loan hand."—[Carl Pretzel's Weekly.

"When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that ever was known.

"I called the doctors again, and after several weeks they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I poohed at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again.

In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since.

It has also cured my wife, who had been sick for years; and has kept her and my children well and healthy with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used.

KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Cures a Terrible Case of Gravel when Other Help Failed.

What is Gravel? what causes it, and who are most liable to it? It is frequently attended with acute pain, and unless relief can be found, produces inflammation and death. Both sexes and all ages are liable to it, although men who have reached or passed middle age are its most common victims. Nothing is more urgently needed than a reliable medicine for Gravel, as the disease seems on the increase, and we are glad to say that such a specific is now before the public in the form of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y. We put in evidence the following letter, selected from many similar communications:

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March, 1884.

Dr. David Kennedy.

DEAR SIR:—You have a right to know, and I desire the public to know my experience with Gravel and my remarkable recovery through the use of your "FAVORITE REMEDY." I am a carpenter living in this place, and there are plenty of witnesses to the truth of what I say. My first comparatively slight attack of Gravel was in the year 1878. It passed away, and I had little more trouble until last July, 1883. One day when at work in my shop I was suddenly seized with a keen and terrible pain in my left side. I consulted two physicians at once. One said: "I can do nothing for you. Your case is incurable!" I was frightened and went to the second, who said little, but gave me a prescription. It did no good.

Then began a series of experiences the agony and horror of which words cannot depict. Think of it! I was sometimes taken in the street, and would fall writhing with agony, upon the sidewalk. It was death in life. Thank Heaven, I then heard of "KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY," through Mr. P. P. Cooley. I had not used half a bottle when I passed three stones in succession, one of which was nearly one-half an inch long. I persevered with the medicine, the symptoms gradually abated, and I have had no more trouble since. I am well, thanks to you and "FAVORITE REMEDY." Yours most gratefully, JAMES D. KENNEDY.

What "FAVORITE REMEDY" did in this case it has done in many others. If you desire to do so Address—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

Out she struck trustfully
Skating galore,
Down she came bustfully
On the hard floor.
Pick her up tenderly,
So good and so true,

Jolting the men,
She is pure womanly,
And tries it again.

THE MYSTERY SOLVED,

OR,

How Harry Rogers Won His Wife.

"Nonsense, I shall not marry at all."

"Why, you certainly mean to marry John Brant?"

"Assuredly I do not. He is passable, that's all."

"Then it will be Harry Rogers."

"Never! Harry Rogers is not endurable with his mild ways and meek courtesy."

"That will do to tell me, Miss May Saunders, but wait till either of the gentlemen proposes to you, and you will accept."

"They have both proposed, and both been refused within the past twenty-four hours. There, now! what do you think of that? Haven't I just a little bit of spirit and independence?"

"Why, May Saunders, you are a silly girl to refuse either of these gentlemen. You have made the first great mistake of your life. Reconsider what you have done, and accept one or the other of them."

"I will do no such thing. I'll live and die an old maid before I marry either of them, or any other man, for the matter of that."

"We will both live long enough to see things come out differently."

"Oh, I hope we will both live to a ripe old age, but in the end you will find that I have kept my word."

This bit of dialogue took place between my intimate friend, May Saunders and myself, on her 24th birthday, and I had been rallying her because she only had one more milestone to pass before she entered the domain of old maiddom—if allowance be made for coining the word—and I had been advising her to marry before she crossed the border-land.

John Brant was bookkeeper and Harry Rogers was cashier in the bank of Iveson & Co., and both were excellent young men. I knew that both were devoted admirers of May, but I was greatly surprised to learn that they both had proposed, and still more dismayed to learn that both had been rejected.

"Tell me, May," I said, "what objection could you have to Harry Rogers? He is an exceptionally splendid young man, and no one stands higher in the public esteem in the whole town of Dayton."

"I presume," she replied, "that I dislike him because everybody praises him. He is unselfish, I grant it, and gentle and courteous, and all that, but to my mind he lacks self-assertion, without which no man's manhood is complete or perfect."

"Well, that charge does not lie against John Brant. He has self-assertion enough for any one man—a little more, in fact, than I admire, but perhaps none too much to suit your taste and fancy."

"John Brant is well enough, so far as that goes," May rejoined, "and I do not mind telling you that I like him infinitely better than I do Harry Rogers, but not well enough to link my fate with his."

"And why not?"

"I can hardly tell. There is something about him that I cannot comprehend—something that is unfathomable, and a secret monitor whispers to me never to marry him, even if I should fall in love with him, which seems not only absurd but impossible."

I was quite overcome with the peculiar situation of affairs, and saw that it would be a waste of time to volunteer any sort of advice or undertake a solution of the knotty problem. So I concluded to leave the solution to the deft fingers of time.

Both the young gentlemen continued [illegible] their usual attentions to May. The gossips of the town were in ignorance of the fact that both had been rejected, and consequently there was nothing to interfere with their speculations as to which would win her in the end.

I watched my friend narrowly, and [illegible] assertion," I said to him, in a way of suggestion.

"That is what she told me herself, but I cannot understand it. I don't know what she means by it. I attend to my business and don't meddle with other people's. There has never yet been an occasion when it was necessary for me to set up my opinion in opposition to my business superiors. I do not know as I would have the proper amount of self-assertion to do so successfully, but I certainly would stand by my convictions of right."

There was a commotion one day in the banking house of Iveson & Co. When the doors were closed in the afternoon and the cash was balanced, Cashier Rogers was found to be just five hundred dollars short.

Every transaction of the day was gone over, the members of the firm taking a part in the work, but there was no way of accounting for the deficit.

The payments made during the day were few in number, and Harry Rogers was able to remember the whole list, and before night he had called on each of them, hoping to discover that he had made an overpayment to the amount of his deficit in one of them. But he had not.

At last it was concluded that a thief had snatched a package of bills when the cashier was not looking.

But Harry mentally refused to assent to any such idea, although he could give no sort of an explanation for the disappearance of the money. He was cautioned to be more circumspect in the future, and all the bank employes were enjoined not to speak of the occurrence.

Harry Rogers was able to settle definately one point—that the missing money consisted of five $100 bills, and the chief of police was informed of the matter and instructed to keep a quiet lookout, through the detectives, for the appearance of such large notes in the hands of suspicious persons.

While Harry Rogers was at home that evening, vainly trying to find some tenable theory about the stolen funds, John Brant was spending the time with May Saunders, and finally told her of the mysterious loss.

"But how did it escape getting into the evening papers?" inquired May.

"Oh, it's a great secret, and isn't to be spoken of outside the bank," was Brant's reply.

"Well, then you are an excellent hand to keep a secret, Mr. Brant, I must say."

John Brant winced under this retort.

"How do you account for the loss of the money, Mr. Brant?"

"I don't account for it. There is only one man who can."

"Who is that?"

"Harry Rogers, the cashier. The money was in his custody, and he ought to know what became of it."

"John Brant, what do you mean?"

"Well, nothing; only Harry ought to know what became of the money in his charge."

"I think I can fathom your meaning, Mr. Brant, and it is ungenerous, if not unjust, and without good grounds."

There was something in May's voice which suggested to Brant that it was the part of discretion to drop the subject, and he quickly invented an excuse for saying good-evening.

After he had gone May noticed that a letter had dropped from his overcoat pocket in the hall. The business envelope was addressed to "John Brant, care Iveson & Co.," and its contents evidently related to business affairs.

If May had any curiosity, she was too well-bred to examine the letter, and threw it into her work basket and covered it from sight, until its rightful owner should call again.

"I believe he is ungenerous enough to charge the theft to Harry Rogers," May said to herself, half aloud, after she had placed the letter out of sight. "But I am sure Harry Rogers is above any such base suspicion."

This was the first time she had ever heard a reflection cast upon Harry Rogers, and she instinctively became his advocate and defender.

Two weeks passed, and there was no clew to the theft, but one day another similar amount was missing from the cashier's funds.

Again there was an anxious investigation with no result. At its conclusion Mr. Iveson said:

"This is inexplicable, Mr. Rogers. You are responsible for the funds placed in your hands, and we shall expect you to make the bank whole for the losses already sustained. When the bank opens to-morrow you will be expected to make good the losses, and then it will be decided whether you will longer continue as cashier."

"And if I fail to make good the loss?" asked Harry.

"Publicity will be given to the affair, and the law will take its course. But until to-morrow not a word is to be said of this matter outside the bank."

Harry Rogers went home agitated and mystified. He knew he was innocent of wrongdoing, but had to confess that all the circumstances were against him.

He was barely able to make good the thousand dollars loss, but to do so would be almost a confession that he had stolen the money.

John Brant found it convenient to call on May Saunders, and it was not long until he had told her of the second loss, of Mr. Iveson's suspicions and the delicate position in which Harry Rogers had been placed.

She concealed her indignation, and dismissing him on the plea of indisposition, quickly despatched a note to Harry Rogers by a servant requesting him to call on her at once and without failing. [illegible]

"That is true; but how came you to know it? It was a bank secret."

"It does not matter how I found it out. And you are suspected of taking the money yourself."

"Hardly so bad as that."

"It may not be put in just my words, but that is the meaning of it. You are required to make good the loss to-morrow morning. What answer are you going to make to that demand of the bank.

Harry Rogers didn't know how he would answer that demand until he looked into the depths of May's earnest blue eyes, and then he said with a firm and even voice:

"I shall tell them that I did not take the money, and, therefore, will not replace it.

"And then?" queried May, with an eager voice.

"Then I will be arrested for theft and embezzlement."

"But you will not be convicted. You are innocent—I know that—and your innocence will be made to appear—how, it is hard to tell, but I am confident as to the result. I respect you because you assume the risk to vindicate your good name. I am interested in this matter. You are not aware of it, but one-half the Iveson interest in the bank belongs to me, and is held in the name of Iveson in accordance with my father's will, until a certain event occurs, which possibly never may occur."

Harry Rogers went home bewildered. He had for years been one of May's employes without knowing it, and now he found in her a champion and a firm believer in his innocence.

When he visited the bank the next morning and, declaring his innocence of the suspicions against him, declined to make good the deficit, except on the judgment of a court and to prevent his bondsmen from paying it, Mr. Iveson was shocked and angry, and finally told Rogers that he would institute criminal proceedings against him unless the loss was made good.

"Then I am ready to be taken into custody," was his reply. "The sooner we begin to sift this matter, the sooner we will get to the bottom of it."

It was one of the greatest of Dayton sensations when the arrest of Harry Rogers was made public and the story told in the papers with half a dozen different versions.

The bank employed a detective to secure corrobrorative evidence of the young cashier's guilt, and, though but little could be found, his prospects were dark indeed, for he found it impossible to throw any reasonable light on the mysterious disappearance of the missing packages of money.

May concluded to employ a detective also, without letting any one know what she was doing. An officer was summoned from a neighboring city, and called at Miss Saunders residence to get his instructions.

In the course of an hour's conversation May gave him a history of the affair, and how she came to learn of the loss of the money and the suspicions against the cashier.

The detective, of course, soon discovered that both the bookkeeper and the cashier were in love with the young lady who had called his services into requisition.

"So it was the bookkeeper that told you of the secret in the first place?" inquired the detective.

"Yes."

"And what was the motive?"

"I haven't the remotest idea."

The detective accidentally struck his foot against the work basket and overturned it. With an apology for his awkwardness, he began to replace the contents.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Officer," explained May, "there is a letter that Mr. Brant dropped on the night he told me of the first robbery, and I had forgotten to return it to him."

"Let me see it," said the detective.

He opened the letter and exclaimed:

"What's this? Why here are the identical five one hundred dollar bills stolen on the first occasion. And Mr. Bookkeeper dropped them. He wanted to drive his rival, the cashier, out of the field, and then marry Miss May Saunders. You needn't blush, nor deny it. Say nothing for the present."

The unknown detective called at the bank the next day and had a conversation with Mr. Iveson, and Bookkeeper Brant was called into the conference.

"Why did you never make inquiry for the five hundred dollars you dropped at the residence of Miss Saunders, the evening after the sum mysteriously disappeared from Cashier Roger's drawer?" inquired the detective.

Brant was thunderstruck.

"Tell us about it," demanded Mr. Iveson.

Brant made a full confession, the substance of which was that he abstracted the money while Rogers' attention was distracted, and did it for the purpose of ruining the cashier and winning Miss Saunders. He had intended to replace the money, and would do so now, if permitted to leave Dayton and never return.

To this Mr. Iveson and the other members of the firm consented, and that night John Brant disappeared, and has never been heard of in Dayton since.

Simultaneous with the detective's revelation and Brant's confession, the proceedings against Harry Rogers were discontinued, and he was not only restored to his place in the bank, but promised a partnership interest.

May Saunders, that used to be, is now Mrs. Harry Rogers, and the banking-house is "Iveson & Rogers." May insists that I am mistaken when I tell her [illegible]

THE PROPER THING.

Silk gloves have lace tops that are lovely.

White satin is still first choice for bridal dresses.

A new tunic lace of coarse mesh is called Komaroff.

Beaded silk mits are the latest thing in hand-covering.

The bride alone wears white kid gloves, the groom wears none.

Picturesque and simple styles are chosen for bridemaid's dresses.

In low shoes for summer wear the Oxford ties have the preference.

Watteau pleats are again in vogue for morning wrappers and tea gowns.

The little chintz pattern of long ago have reappeared in the printed cambrics.

For quiet weddings organdy muslin is suitable for a bride especially if she be young.

White muslin parasols, matching the muslin bonnets, are a novelty promised for summer.

Solid dress fronts of [illegible] silk cord and braid passementerie are among the promised novelties.

A bride's traveling dress should be a tailor suit of wool of light quality and of some quiet shade.

Lace covered parasols and others almost covered with lace ruffles are quite popular for dressy sun-shades.

Scotch ginghams and chamberys are special favorites with ladies for morning wear during the summer.

Corn color is a favorite shade of yellow this season, and has not made its appearence except for the milliner's purposes for many years.

For dress bonnets ladies now use odd bits of material so well combined that the bonnet may be worn appropriately at any season of the year.

Satines are less glossy this year and consequently look better when they are washed; the designs also are in many instances smaller and more suitable.

The height and trimming of hats and bonnets are as exaggerated as ever, and comparatively few of these exaggerated shapes are seen in the streets as yet.

FOUR ACTS PLAYED!

Sad Report About Ex-President Arthur.

Will the Fifth and Final Act be a Tragedy.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

"Dr. Lincoln who was at the funeral" "of ex-Secretary Frelinghuysen, says" "ex-President Arthur looked very un-" "well. He is suffering from Bright's" "disease. During the past year it has" "assumed a very aggravated form."

That telegram is act IV of a drama written by ex-President Arthur's physicians. In act I he was made to appear in "Malaria," of which all the country was told when he went to Florida.

In act II he represented a tired man, worn down, walking the sands of Old Point Comfort, and looking eastward over the Atlantic toward Europe for a longer rest.

The curtain rolls up for act III upon the distinguished actor affected with melancholy from Bright's disease, while act IV discovers him with the disease "in an aggravated form, suffering intensely, (which is unusual) and about to take a sea voyage."

Just such as this is the plot of many dramas by play-wrights of the medical profession. They write the first two or three acts with no conception of what their character will develope in the final one.

They have not the discernment for tracing in the early, what the latter impersonations will be. Not one physician in a hundred has the adequate microscopic and chemical appliances for discovering Bright's disease in its early stages, and when many do finally comprehend that their patients are dying with it, when death occurs, they will, to cover up their ignorance of it, pronounce the fatality to be caused by ordinary ailments, whereas these ailments are really results of Bright's disease of which they are unconscious victims.

Beyond any doubt, 80 per cent. of all deaths except from epidemics, and accidents, result from diseased kidneys or livers. If the dying be distinguished and his friends too intelligent to be deceived, his physician s pronounce the complaint to be pericarditis, pyæmia, septicæmia, bronchitis, pleuritis, valvular lesions of the heart, pneumonia, etc. If the deceased be less noted, "malaria" is now the fashionable assignment of the cause of death.

But all the same, named right or named wrong, this fearful scourge gathers them in! While it prevails among persons of sedentary habits,—lawyers, clergymen, congressmen,—it also plays great havoc among farmers, day laborers and mechanics though they do not suspect it, because their physicians keep it from them, if indeed they are able to detect it.

It sweeps thousands of women and children into untimely graves every year. The health gives away gradually, the strength is variable, the appetite fickle, the vigor gets less and less. This isn't malaria—it is the beginning of kidney disease and will end—who does not know how?

No, nature has not been remiss. Independent research has given an infallable remedy for this common disorder; but of course the bigoted physicians will not use Warner's safe cure, because it is a private affair and cuts up their practice by restoring the health of those who have been invalids for years.

The new saying of "how common Bright's disease is becoming among prominent men!" is getting old, and as the Englishman would say, sounds "stupid"—especially "stupid" since this disease is readily detected by more learned men and specialists of this disease. But the "common run" of physicians, not detecting it, give the patient Epsom salts or other drugs prescribed by the old code of treatment under which their grandfathers and great-grandfathers practiced!

Anon, we hear that the patient is "comfortable." But ere long, maybe, they "tap" him and take some water from him and again the "comfortable" story is told. Torture him rather than allow him to use Warner's safe cure! With such variations the doctors play upon the unfortunate until his shroud is made, when we learn that he died from heart disease pyæmia, septicæmia or some other deceptive though "dignified cause."

Ex-President Arthur's case is not singular—it is typical of every such case. "He is suffering intensely." This is not usual. Generally there is no suffering. He may recover, if he will act independently of his physicians. The agency named has cured thousands of persons even in the extreme stages—is to-day the mainstay of the health of hundreds of thousands. It is an unfortunate fact that physicians will not admit there is any virtue outside their own sphere, but as each school denies virtue to all others, the people act on their own judgment and accept things by the record of merit they make.

The facts are cause for alarm, but there is abundant hope in prompt and independent action.

William Hosea Ballou, who went from Fulton to Chicago and from Chicago to New York, contributed an article to the American Naturalist for June, asking that this state shall save the Adriondack region from timber thieves and game butchers.—[Standard's Fulton Cor.

JOHN A. McKAY - - - EDITOR

SANITARY WORK TO BE DONE.

The cholera has spread from the southeastern Provinces of Spain to Madrid, and it is reported that there have been two fatal cases in Marseilles. The death rate in Valencia is large. Of those who are attacked only one-half survive. It may be that the most vigorous and well directed efforts would not have surpressed the disease in the Mediterranean Provinces of Spain, but it is plain that the Spanish Government and the doctors by making no such efforts, by failing to force even ordinary sanitary measures, and by assiduously striving to conceal from the world the fact that the plague had broken out there, allowed it to spread from village to village and from city to city until it became powerful enough to defy any sanitary organization.

The condition of one of the Mediterranean cities in which the disease found so many victims last year has been improved. Some hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in giving to Naples a supply of good water, and some millions are to be spent in rebuilding the slums. Those who direct the affairs of that city appear to have been enlightened by the events of last year. Official reports from Marseilles, recently forwarded, show that the city is no cleaner than it was when the disease broke out there a year ago. The people have learned nothing. Marseilles is fairly drained and has an abundant supply of water, but it can never be healthful so long as the discharge of all its sewage into its stagnant harbor converts that harbor into a great cesspool. Toulon is as bad as ever. There are no underground sewers, and the city's refuse either pollutes the soil or is deposited upon the filth of centuries in one of the foulest harbors in the world.

The condition of American cities is, on the whole, better than it was when the cholera was raging in Southern France last July. Boards of Health have become more active and vigilant, and many citizens have become deeply interested in sanitary work. But there is a great deal to be done. A rigorous quarantine is doubtless of great value, but the only trustworthy safeguard is cleanliness. Our own Board of Health and the volunteer associations that have already been of great services should redouble their efforts to make New York clean, and the adjoining cities should not fall behind them in the work.—[N. Y. Times.

THE Gladstone ministry in England has resigned, because of the adverse vote on the second reading of the budget. The conservatives show an inclination to form a government, but it is doubtful if they can secure a working majority.

A DISPATCH from St. Petersburg, last Monday says that a train on the railway from Kosloff to Rostoff was derailed and demolished by a bar of iron placed across the track by robbers. Seventy passengers were killed and wounded. The robbers plundered the train. The survivors were completely terrorized and made no resistance.

A WATERSPOUT burst last Sunday, eight leagues east of Lagos, Mexico, in the mountains near the dividing line between the states of Guanajuato and Jalisco. The effects were most deplorable. Immense quantities of water swept down the mountains with irresistible force towards the well populated plains and valleys below, and left desolation and ruin in their wake. There were already 100 lives reported lost and the fearful list may be swelled still larger when all the details are known. Many houses were swept away.

Health Officer Smith, of the port of N. Y. decided Monday that the 12,000 bales of rags recently brought here from Japan by the ships Vigilante and Weisehorn must be disinfected in accordance with the provisions of Secretary Manning's December circular. Dr. Smith sent his report on this subject to Washington. Eight or nine rag importers visited the collector's office and they appeared greatly disappointed when informed of the Health Officer's decision. The cost of disinfecting rags [illegible], and not $5 a bale, as stated. Three bales together weigh about one ton.

Nine conductors on the Wagner sleeping cars, running between New York and Chicago, resigned recently on account of the strictness of the new rules. A total of nineteen have resigned for this cause.

The fastest trip ever made on the canal was performed last week by the boat H. S. Still, Capt. J. H. Noble. The boat was loaded with salt and left Syracuse on Monday, bound for Albany. She cleared there again on Sunday, only seven days being occupied by the entire trip.

A bare knuckle prize fight between J. Donnelly and J. Murphy, local pugilists of Pittsburg, took place recently in a barn. Sixteen rounds were fought, when Murphy was knocked out. Both men were badly punished. The prize was the hand of a young lady, who witnessed the fight.

Charles O'Brien was arrested last Monday in New York, charged with being drunk. Officer Duffy saw O'Brien throw a bundle away and on examining it found its contents consisted of seventeen large fat dead rats. O'Brien said he was taking them to a negress living on Bedford street who could cook them. He was sent to the Penitentiary by Justice Kenna for six months.

An experimental test of the largest electric light in the country was made at Seneca Falls last Saturday night and was witnessed by thousands of people amid music and cheers. It lights the entire village from a tower on the Phoenix block. The test was practically satisfactory, though some changes may be necessary in the reflectors and elevation of the tower. The light was seen at Geneva, Waterloo and Auburn.

A Pinkerton detective left New York Saturday night having in charge a forger whom he was to deliver up to the authorities in Chicago. As the train passed through Toledo it was discovered that the prisoner had succeeded in chloroforming the detective and made good his escape. Efforts to arouse the detective failed for some time and when the train departed for Chicago he was still in a stupor. It is supposed that the prisoner, whose name could not be ascertained, jumped off the train somewhere between Toledo and Cleveland.

A mob of canal men at Corning, N. Y., last Sunday morning found Patrolman and Deputy Sheriff Patterson asleep, and seizing him took him to the lock-up, where he was imprisoned with Officer Maloney, who had attempted to release Patterson. Several other officers were severely handled. The mob aroused the whole village with their yells. The imprisoned officers were released, and the ring-leaders of the mob will be prosecuted. A feud has existed between the officers and roughs for some time.

The State Board of Health requests the publication of the following:—

To Local Boards of Health and Health officers:—

Smallpox is prevalent at several places from whence emigrants are continually arriving and is declared epidemic in Montreal. You are, therefore, urged to take promptly all possible measures to secure the effective vaccination of unprotected persons within your jurisdiction, especially as regards children in public schools and persons employed about railway stations, boat landings or other centres of passenger or freight traffic, and to guard against the introduction of the infection by routes from Canada or westward bound emigrant lines. ALBERT LUDLOW CARROLL, M. D. Secretary and executive officer.

Elmer Santon, an egg merchant of Philadelphia, Jefferson county, awoke last Monday morning and found that his vest, which he had placed under his pillow, and which contained $160 in money and a $50 check, had been rifled and the money and check gone. It was found that burglars had entered the house by way of the cellar and gone out by the front door, which was left unlocked. The house was probably entered during the severe thunder storm.

At Williamsburg, Va., at 12:30 Sunday a fire broke out in the right wing of the center buildings of the lunatic asylum, and before it could be gotten under control, everything was destroyed. The burned buildings comprise the original buildings of the institution, and were built a hundred years ago. There were two hundred female patients in the burned building, all of whom were rescued safely, except one, Miss Smith of Spottsylvania county, who was burned to death. Another patient, Mrs Jefferies after being brought out of the building, wandered off and this morning was found drowned in the creek. All the females were taken to William and Mary college, where they were cared for. Other wards, containing nearly 300 male patients, were also emptied and the unfortunates turned loose, but they were generally tractable and did not wander off. Loss $140,000. The fire is believed to have originated from electric light, as it was first discovered where the electric wires entered the building.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

The most important Discovery is that which brings the most good to the greatest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, will preserve the health and save life, and is a priceless boon to the afflicted. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, and all affections of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs, yield at once to its wonderful curative powers. [illegible] young girls [illegible] the hall of an evil life. And there is no sadder a spectacle in this universe. Whom do we mean? You know whether we mean you or not. That is one sin no woman can hide. For her the day of judgment rises on the morrow of her sin. It is not hid from men or angels. Foolish woman, do you think the darkness would keep your sin from the day? Why, your sin sits in your eyes and men see and know the unclean spirit within you when they lift their hats to you on the street. No woman can sin and keep the look of one who has not. No woman sins but the men on the street know it. We and every one can catch here and there rumors of some young wives in this city who are going to break up their homes sooner or later, and put a blight worse than death upon their own future and that of the husband they have promised to love and honor. "The pity of it, Iago, the pity of it." The world so reverences purity in woman, it is so her birth-right and her glory, that she seems like an archangel ruined when she falls. Twice in a city, with a company of gentlemen, we have gone the rounds of those houses where outcast women of the better sort lived. Their mirth was counterfeit, and through it ran the temper of quick frenzy or slow despair. Those women have a passion for going to the theater. We remember two that sat apart from the rest and cried as though their hearts would break. They had just been to see "East Lynn," and the spectacle had brought them one of their hours of despair. Dickens has made the end of this sin a graphic remembrance for many readers. "As if she were a part of the refuse it had cast out and left to corruption and decay, the girl we had followed strayed down to the river's brink, and stood in the midst of this night-picture lonely and still, looking at the water." "We carried her away from the water to where there were some dry stones and there laid her down crying and moaning. In a little while she sat among the stones, holding her wretched head with both her hands. "Oh, the river, she cried" passionately. "Oh, the river! I know it's like me! I know that I belong to it. I know that its the natural company of such as I am. It comes from country places where there was once no harm in it—and it creeps through the dismal streets defiled and miserable—and it goes away like my life to a great sea that is always troubled and I feel that I must go with it!" "I have never known what despair was except in the tone of those words." Or this picture of Emily: "Do you know what you have done? Do you ever think of the home you have laid waste?" "Oh, is there ever night or day when I don't think of it," cried Emily. "Has there ever been a single minute waking or sleeping when it hasn't been before me just as it used to be in the lost days when I turned my back on it forever and forever." That will do for that side. On the other are the lives of all the noble women that ever lived and the reverence mankind gladly pays them. "No man can write worthily of woman" Bishop Spalding has lately said, "who does not approach his subject with a kind of religious reverence; and a true man will ever treat woman both in life and literature, not with justice merely, but with generous sympathy. Into her arms we are born, on her breast our helpless cries are hushed, and her hands close our eyes when the light is gone. Watching her lips our own become vocal; in her eyes we read the mystery of faith, hope and love, led by her hand we learn to look up and to walk in the way of obedience to law. We owe to her as mother, as sister, as wife, as friend, the tenderest emotions of life, the purest aspirations of the soul, the noblest elements of character, and the completest sympathy in all our joy and sorrow. She weaves flowers of heaven into the vesture of early life. In poetry, painting, sculpture and religion she gives us ideals of the fair and the beautiful. Innocence is a woman, chastity is a woman, charity is a woman." That is not rhapsody; it is the world's judgment upon and tribute to pure womanhood. No one, nothing can forfeit it save she alone. We do not want to say too much or too directly. We do not wish to stimulate curiosity or guide inquiry or purvey to gossip. We only want to make some young women bethink themselves in time to save themselves. Sometimes we almost conclude that a paper owes it to the moral force it might exert to give pitiless publicity to these things. We could keep Mrs.—— and Mrs.—— from church the morning if we would have the GATE CITY'S Town Talk say what town talk is as to those ladies. We could startle more than one careless or maybe already anxious mother if we were to have Town Talk say what town talk knows the young daughters go down street for. We wonder if publicity would stop this thing, would help save these or others at least from ruined lives or if it would only make matters worse. But this is sure that the nobility of the civilization of the great tribes and families of mankind to which the Americans belong has been due to the constancy with which they have maintained the home and the family, and the faithfulness and purity of domestic life. And the mass cannot afford to have that civilization tainted, that strength weakened by the fault of the individual. They must scourge the individual offender in order to save the communal life from decay. The community owes no favor to those who violate its laws of purity, and lay waste the foundations of social security.

[illegible] At Montreal, the Corpus Christi procession Sunday afternoon was the largest ever seen in that city. Fifty societies took part. There were 10,000 people in the procession. A crowd attacked the Salvation Army as it passed the barracks. Several members were knocked down and trampled under foot.

During the thunder storm Friday lightning struck the summit of the Washington monument and an unusually heavy report followed. The aluminum had been struck four times previously, but the fluid was noisily carried off by the arresters. A telescopic examination yesterday disclosed the fact that Friday's disruptive discharge had shattered the capstone and that the underlying stone had been badly cracked. A more critical examination will be made tomorrow for the purpose of deciding whether repairs are necessary. The aluminum apex and interior ornaments are uninjured.

A heavy thunder shower occurred in Montgomery county Sunday afternoon. About 5 p. m. the residence of Theodore Farley, situated about one and one half miles southeast of Fort Plain, was struck by lightning. The four corners of the house were more or less slivered by the stroke, notwithstanding that the lightning struck on the south side of the house. On that side the clapboards are slivered and torn and look as if a carpenter had been tearing them off with a gouge ax. Mrs. Farley was descending the stairs at the time, not four feet away and felt the shock on the back of her head. Several children were on the piazza, not two feet away, and did not feel the effects, while a little boy was knocked down in the barn, over 100 feet away. The bolt must have been nearly cold when it reached the house, as only a small place about six inches square caught fire, and was quickly put out by William Myres of Fort Plain, who was there at the time. Plastering was knocked from the walls and window lights broken, and nearly all of the beams were slightly loosened. No one was injured. This is the first time lightning ever struck on the farm to the knowledge of those living there. On Ried street a flash of lightning struck a telephone wire, and after running several feet, bounded off into the air again. When it left the wire it is said the noise sounded like the firing of a pistol.

Cheese Market.

(FROM THE UTICA HERALD.)

AT UTICA June 8.

The cheese market here to-day was stronger than even our factorymen expected. On the special grade of cheese sold, it was not thought that the advance would be much over ¼c., but the fact that prices exceeded last week by ⅝ to ¾c. seems to be pretty good evidence that there is a solid foundation for the rise. It will be noticed that the transactions are not as large this week as last, which is accounted for by very full shipments heretofore, and by a number of factories not shipping at all this week, in order to cure their cheese more satisfactory. It is thought by some that the advance is greater than it ought to have been, but we believe it has come to stay. It must be remembered that the decline was very rapid, running down ¾ cent, 1¼c., and a week ago 1½c. at a time. It is not likely that it will go up so rapidly, nor would it be a healthy advance if it were to do so. But a steady market, with probably some advance may reasonably be looked for now. Transactions of the day were as follows: 40 boxes at 6c.; 7 lots, 685 boxes, at 6¼c.; 55 lots, 5,217 boxes, at 6⅜c.; 15 lots, 1,371 boxes, at 6½c.; 8 lots, 950 boxes, at 6⅝c.; 8 lots, 950 boxes, at 6¾c. Sales 9,213 boxes; commissons 1,171 boxes; total 10,384 boxes. Ruling price 6⅜c. Transactions one year ago were 13,535 boxes, at 9¼c.; two years ago they were 12,749 at 10½c. Pastures are now in elegant condition, but milk is nowhere near the flush as it was last year at this time.

LITTLE FALLS, June 8.

CHEESE.—For the first time in several weeks, buyers showed some desire to buy cheese. The market has been quite animated to-day with a hot strife over some of the favorite factories. Prices are strong at ¼c. advance above those of last week. The commission men did not fare as well to-day, altho' there is yet a considerable amount sent forward in this way. Salesmen were quite encouraged over the new turn in the appearance of the cheese trade, for no improvement was expected till grass stock came to be offered in considerable quantities. There was a little grass cheese sold to-day, and considerable that showed evidence of better goods. By another week the bulk of the offerings will probably be grass cheese. Pasturage is now very fine, but the production of cheese is represented somewhat less than for the corresponding time last year. All hope and believe that rates paid here to-day, will be upheld in New York and that another week will see as good a market as we have had to-day. Transactions are:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
4	130	5¾ cts
62	2,980	6 cts
24	1,449	6¼ cts
6	381	6½ cts
2	107	p. t.
20	1,114	Com.
118	6,161
Farm Dairy	964
Total	7,125

FARM DAIRIES.—Sales of farm cheese reached 964 boxes and prices ranged at 4 to 6¼c., but one lot at the latter price; the bulk sold at 6 cents.

BUTTER.—Twenty-nine packages of creamery butter sold at 19 to 20c. and 16 packages of farm dairy at 17 to 19 cents.

AT FULTON.

Twenty-five factories were represented at this market with 1,500 boxes offered and about 800 were sold at 6¼ to 6¾c. The balance either being held over or sold on conditions.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 10 Dexter St.

DR. J. A. SHERMAN—Dear Friend: I am sorry, Doctor, you have left Boston. Persons continue to come to my house to inquire respecting you, while many others write me. Many who left me said they would surely seek your aid. Your success has been wonderful, and I am quite sure without a parallel. To my surprise my large Hernia appears to be perfectly healed. I did not expect it at the age of 79. After receiving your treatment I was relieved from suffering which was fast taking my life. I have no idea I should be living had you not taken my case in hand. I weigh now 170 pounds, over thirty pounds more than then. I think you must receive a great amount of happiness from the relief given and gratitude rendered.

You owe it to my son in Boston, who has known many of your patients before and after healing, that I applied to you. "Go," said he, "to Dr. Sherman; he is doing wonders." I had failed of help from a dozen others and doubted, but he would not let me rest till I went. I bless the day I did so. It is to me a mystery, Doctor, that you have so wonderfully out-distanced all in your profession.

I hope your life will long be spared to relieve sufferers, and thus bless the world. Most affectionately and gratefully yours. REV. JOHN ALDEN.

The Rev. John Alden's case was quite as bad as Mr. James Corlew's, in Dr. Sherman's illustrated book. Those who value immunity from strangulated rupture, the injury trusses inflict, and the comforts of physical soundness should lose no time in securing the benefits of Dr. Sherman's treatment and remedies. His book, containing likenesses of bad cases before and after cure, with evidence of his success and endorsements from distinguished physicians, clergymen, merchants, farmers, engineers and others, is expressed to those who send 10 cents. Dr. Sherman can be consulted daily at his office, 251 Broadway, New York, except Thursdays and Fridays, when he will be in Philadelphia office 302 Walnut Street. NOTE.—No operation or detention from business. Patients from a distance can receive treatment and leave for home same day. 3w4

[illegible] complainant was [illegible] Ingersoll, of the canal boat Thomas F. Craig. Upon his arraignment, Maxon told the following story: "I belong in Fulton, Oswego county, where my father and mother live; I am 18 years old; I was married to Annie Townsend in Fulton four months ago: three weeks ago myself and wife came from Oswego on my uncle's boat; I call him uncle but he is only a second cousin of my father's; we have been in Albany about two weeks; this morning we had some trouble, and my uncle put me off the boat on the dock; I wanted my wife to come, but she wouldn't; my uncle wouldn't let her come either; he wanted her to stay on board and me to clear out: I didn't know what I was doing I felt so; I took a suspender and twisted it about my neck; I did not intend to kill myself; I love Annie too well to do that; I wanted to see if it would make her come with me; then I was arrested; my uncle told the judge he would pay both my wife's and my fare home; can I get something to eat; I would like to have some oysters."

From this statement it appears the uncle, or second cousin, is one Thomas Ingersoll, who is also an uncle of Annie, and both engaged on the boat at a salary of twenty-five dollars per month each. Maxon did not drive the mules well nor properly care for them, and he was discharged. When brought before the magistrate, and after hearing the testimony, there was doubt about the suicide part of it, and they went out of court together, Ingersoll taking charge of Annie. Soon Dean came back and said he could not leave Annie; he loved her too much. He said the uncle was taking her away, and would not let him speak to her. The court not having jurisdiction, told him to go to the boat and thither took his troubles.

The Case of Father O'Connell.

A dispatch from Oswego says that it is likely that the whole matter of the charges against Father O'Connell will be made the subject of a church trial. It is said that Bishop McNeirny asked for his resignation, but he declined to resign and was told by the Bishop that he would have to stand trial. He said at church on Sunday that a band of assassins had been organized to drive him out of the city between two days, but he would see who would go first. He declared that he was neither a vagabond, a thief, nor a coward, and he felt confident of his ability to prove his innocence. He said it would have been a merciful blessing to him for his prosecutors to have shot him like a dog eight weeks ago, but the vagabonds did not have the courage of men. It is asserted that William Crawford, a brother of Mary Crawford, whom Father O'Connell is charged with having seduced, and of Thomas Crawford went last week to Bishop McNeirny at Albany and demanded the removal of Father O'Connell saying: "If you permit that man to remain over St. John's church, you will take a serious responsibility." "What do you mean?" the Bishop asked. "I mean," said Crawford, "that I will do him bodily harm. He has dishonored my sister and disgraced my brother, and I will not endure it to see him there."

On motion of Mr. Bradford the Clerk was instructed to invite proposals for building a wrought iron truss bridge over the Hydraulic canal on Oneida street such proposals to be handed in on or before 1 p. m., June 17th inst.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the Assessors of the village of Fulton be and are hereby directed to assess upon the taxable inhabitants and property liable to taxation in this village, the sum of $1,000, being part of the amount voted to be raised at the special meeting held May 28, 1885, for building bridge over Hydraulic Canal on Oneida street.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, the President appointed a committee to see about cutting grass in the Park.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, Mr. O. H. Scholz, late collector, was instructed to make a final report at the next meeting of this Board, and that all taxes returned by him be put into the Village Attorney's hands for collection.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick the board adjourned to Wednesday evening, June 17th inst, at 8 o'clock.

ARVIN RICE, Clerk

According to law Sisco's father had a right to be present at the hanging of his son at Hackensack, N. J., last Friday, but he did not apply for permission. While the hanging was going on he stood in front of the jail with the wagon in which he was to carry the body. "I'll bet $20," he said, displaying a $20 note, "that my son steps upon the gallows and dies like a man. It is nothing. I would just as lief take his place were it not for my family, who want me to look after them. It is just like being awake and going to sleep. Who wants to bet $20 that Sanford won't die game?" The old man looked for bets in vain.

David H. Pratt, a former resident near Minetto, while at work recently building a bridge at Peoria, Ill., fell and was instantly killed. The body was brought to Minetto, and buried. He was unmarried.

Married—In Fulton, at the home of the bride, June, 8, 1885, by Rev. J. Howd, of the Central New York Conference, Mr. W. J. Grigson and Miss Anna B. Decker, second daughter of Rev. J. R. Decker, all of Fulton.

Considerable excitement was occasioned on Second street last Monday by a runaway. Milkman Post's team became frightened and tore down the street, colliding with a freight car on their way. They ran down the track nearly a mile where they were captured, somewhat though not seriously bruised.

Two well-known young men of this village had a narrow escape from a serious accident last Sunday. While rowing on the river their boat from some cause tipped over and spilled the occupants, who swam to the shore greatly refreshed by their compulsory bath. Evidently the "Hat" is not a very seaworthy craft.

District Attorney Mead and W. E. Carpenter's attorney have agreed upon the 14th of July as the day for commencing the trial of Carpenter, who is indicted for murdering his wife at Sandy Creek in December last, providing the governor can be prevailed upon to order another extraordinary term. The case will be tried in Oswego.

Mrs. Sarah Van Patten, of Cato, attempted suicide by taking opium, Thursday night. She was unable to obtain the drug at the village drug store without a prescription from the doctor, but determined to end her earthly career, she walked two miles to Meridan and purchased fifteen cents worth of opium. On her return home she took about half that amount. She said she was tired of living.

The Oswego county Homœpathic medical society met in Oswego yesterday and elected for the ensuing year the following officers: President, Dr. T. D. Stowe, Mexico; vice-president, Dr. G. D. McManus, Oswego; secretary and treasurer, N. L. Hopkins, Oswego; censors, Dr. Radway, Mexico, Dr. Keeney of Oswego and Dr. W. L. Woodbury, of Fulton.

The seventeenth annual convention of the diocese of Central New York will be held in Oswego, commencing Tuesday evening, June 9. The diocese includes the counties of Broome, Cayuga, Chemung, Cortland, Jefferson, Lewis, Madison, Oneida, Onondaga, Oswego, Seneca and Tompkins. Each church is entitled to send three delegates. Bishop Huntington will preside.

Officer Poole, who last Wednesday went to Syracuse for the purpose of arresting McGuiness, the Binghamton ball player, who is said to have insulted Fred Taylor of this village, found upon arriving that his man had been taken sick and gone home. Last Friday Officer Poole went to Binghamton and arrested McGuiness, who was taken before the Recorder and gave bail in the sum of $200 to appear here Tuesday, June 16. Manager Baldwin, president of the State League becoming his bondsman. The officer speaks very highly of his treatment in Binghamton by Mr. Baldwin and the authorities of that city.

Dr. C. M. Lee of this village is in New York in company with Dr. Clark of Oswego, and N. M. Rowe of New Haven. A short time ago it was found that a tumor was rapidly growing under Mr. Rowe's right shoulder blade, and it was decided that it would be best to have an operation performed at once, and owing to the close proximity of the tumor to a number of large veins, the operation was very dangerous. Dr. Sands, of Rosevelt hospital did the surgical work in a satisfactory and successful manner, and Mr. Rowe is rapidly recovering. Dr. Lee returned home yesterday and reported Mr. Rowe to be gaining rapidly, and in a few days would be able to make the journey home.

A disastrous fire broke out in the store of John Q. Smith in Syracuse on Clinton street, last night. The building was totally destroyed. The loss is $20,000; insured for $9,000. J. & F. B. Garrett's paper store was badly damaged by water. The stock is nearly a total loss. C. W. Ostrander's cigar store and L. J. Ormsbee's paper store were damaged $5,000 worth. The bursting of a water main prevented the firemen from getting an early stream on the fire. Fifteen families living in the block lost nearly all their furniture.

Public Notice.

The Board of Health of this village, would respectfully call the attention of doctors ministers and undertakers to the importance of attending to their duty as per act passed May 12 1885, as follows: Any person neglecting, or refusing, to make out, or file registering any record of births, marriages, deaths, (see large posters) and any person causing, permitting or assisting in the burial or removal of any body, unaccompanied by a permit for such burial or removal, duly issued by the local board of health (or any person they may designate,) having jurisdiction where the death occured, and any officer or board that shall neglect or refuse to register and preserve the said records and forward the certificate to the state bureau of vital statistics, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and may be prosecuted in any court of competent jurisdiction, and on conviction thereof shall be subject to fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, such fine not to exceed $1000,00, nor such imprisonment six months.

The town clerk of this village has been apointed by the board of health to keep the record and registry of vital statistic, and to isue burial permits.

Rink and Polo Items.

A game of polo was played last Friday evening between the Alerts of Baldwinsville and the Fultons. It was won by the latter team in a score of 3 to 1.

The silk umbrella given away last Saturday evening at the rink to the holder of the lucky number, was drawn by Ransom Rudd of this village.

Last evening occurred the grand fancy dress carnival at the rink. A large number of very handsome costumes were worn. The prize, a silk parasol, for the most elegant costume for ladies was awarded to Miss H. Sabin, and the prize for the handsomest suit worn by a gentleman was given to Mr. Carl Pilch. It was a silk hat. Among the most noticeable suits was one worn by a well known young lady of this village. It was a black silk dress and was completely covered with the words, "THE FULTON TIMES", in large letters. THE TIMES feels grateful to the young lady for the excellent taste displayed, and although we undoubtedly may be prejudiced, will be pardoned for thinking she was deserving of a prize, and as we like to see gratitude assume a practical form, we take great pleasure in placing the young lady's name on our subscription list.

The Ontario & Western.

Gov. Hill has signed a bill in reference to the New York, Ontario & Western road. Hon. W. A. Poucher explains the bill as follows: The bill is to authorize the exchange of $2,000,000 preferred stock for bonds of the same amount at par. The $2,000,000 preferred stock has heretofore elected eight directors while the $58,000,000 of common stock elected only five, thus giving the $2,000,000 stock the control of the road. The Dutch capitalists who had furnished money for the road insisted upon a reorganization making it all common stock in order that the road might be controlled in the interest of all holders. The scheme contemplates the issuing of $4,000,000 stock, $2,000,000 to retire the preferred stock, $1,400,000, to pay the floating debt and $600,000 to buy new steel rails for the equipment of the road.

Violin strings 5 cents at Jones'.

Mrs. Grundy's Suggestions.

Think the matter over.

The weather is unseasonable.

Clothing dealers prepare for the season in advance.

Hence it happens sometimes that the season's full stock is uncalled for.

It cannot remain in stock, for another season's supply is pressing forward to meet the demand.

Consequently the former must be sold at a sacrifice. This is the reason that prices are sometimes so much lower than others.

Kent & Miller, 18 and 20 South Salina street, in this way create a demand where none naturally exists. They press to the front while others in their line vegetate. Call and see what can be done in this line and in making selections of ready-made clothing, be guided by the quality and style. You will find that the price will take care of itself.

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Shepard, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctor told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by R. E. Phillips.

Luther Wright, one of Oswego's most prominent citizens, died yesterday, aged 86. He had been ill but a short time. Mr. Wright had been a resident of Oswego for 50 years and was closely identified with its business interests. He founded Luther Wright's bank and was president of the Lake Ontario bank.

One day last week seven ladies met at the residence of Mrs. Knibloe, in this village, whose combined ages amounted to 550 years. They were Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Knowlton, of Trenton, N. J., Mrs. Caroline Osgood, Mrs. John Wolcott, Mrs. John C. Wells, and Mrs. Knibloe. It is a singular thing that all these ladies came from the same locality, Trenton, and knew each other when young.

We understand that Mr. Levi Moyer is about to resume the distillation of wintergreen oil at Pennellville. It will be remembered that he established himself in this industry there some years ago and pursued it until the price of the same fell so low as to render its production unprofitable, when it was discontinued. The quality of the oil manufactured by him was excellent, and we are pleased to learn that he has concluded to resume the business.—[Phœnix Register.

Frank Keenan of this village, is about to take the road with a stereoptican and as handsome an assortment of views as we have ever seen. Last Friday evening an impromptu entertainment was given in Whitaker's hall to a few invited spectators. Some of the dissolving views were elegant, and one in particular, called "No Cross, no Crown," was truly magnificent. It is to be hoped that Professor Keenan can be induced to give a public entertainment before his departure, and should he do so, we can assure the public of a rare treat.

Satisfactory progress has been made during the past week on the Phœnix railroad, the track having reached to within a short distance of the village. From Fulton the road is ballasted for some miles south. Work has also commenced at Woodward's Station and will be continued without interruption to Three River Point. The president, Judge Lowe, came here on Monday with Contractor Potts and went over the road. He was much pleased with the outlook. A careful examination of the old bridge across the Oneida river convinced them that it was unfit for use and it was decided to build a new one of either iron or wood, doubtless the latter as much time can be saved. It will be of the best Michigan pine and oak, and the contractor will endeavor to have it in readiness by the close of the present month, and the entire road completed and trains running over it during July.—[Fulton Cor. Standard.

An exchange says it has been very truly said that when an editor makes a mistake in his paper, all the world sees and calls him a fool. When a private citizen makes a mistake, nobody knows it except a few friends, and they come around and ask the editor to keep it out of the paper. When a private citizen dies the editor is asked to write of his good qualities and leave the bad out. When the editor dies the private citizen says; "Now that darn liar will get his desserts."

A correspondent offers a few timely suggestions about the care of rose bushes. Here they are: Now is the time to look after your rose bushes. Get a few pounds of tobacco stems, which you can buy for a trifle. Pour boiling water over them so as to make a strong infusion, then with a brush broom bathe the bushes. Otherwise your favorite roses will in a few days look as though they had been through a fire.

[illegible]

For a number of years every one in want of handsome jewelry or anything which can be found in a first class jewelry establishment, have been in the habit of looking first for Wendell & Son on the corner of First and Bridge streets Oswego, N. Y., and, indeed, their store, both from its location and beautiful display of goods which they made was really one of the objects in the city. Some months ago they determined to beautify it and make it still more attractive and for this purpose moved into a store on West Bridge street where they remained until driven out by a fire which ruined a large portion of their stock and they took another store and remained in it until the changes in the old store had been completed. They are now able to announce that the repairs and renovations are completed and they opened last Saturday morning with an entirely new and handsome line of goods, a stock which has never been equaled in this city even by Wendell & Son and that is saying a great deal. In the first place the store is a beautiful one. The unsightly front on First street has been changed and several large and beautiful plate glass windows put in which not only serve to display the goods to more advantage but are really ornaments. The store has been extended in the rear for several feet, taking in the old work-room of the establishment which has been removed to the basement. The woodwork has been done by Mr. George Harslin with the advice of Mr. Charles Wendell, who has visited several cities and inspected the inside architecture of different stores and decided on the best plan for making this store what they desired it to be. After some discussion it was decided that the hard woods alone should be used in the internal work. The ceiling is an especially beautiful piece of work laid out in fanciful designs in cherry and other woods with heavy mouldings of the same material, giving an effect rarely to be seen. Cherry, now so largely used in inside ornamentations, predominates in the work and the colors throughout so harmonize as to give a pleasing effect. The upper half of each window is of stained glass while the lower is a perfectly clear plate, showing from the street the fine wares in the wall case on the west side, these cases also having a plate glass back. The windows in front are finished in the same way and in the highest style of art. It was originally intended to have a corner entrance but this was decided not to be feasable and a wide entrance on West Bridge street was substituted. The floor is laid in tile and is a fine piece of work. Long wall cases extend on either side and across to the back of the store. These cases have several shelves and below are fitted with drawers for the reception of goods. The material of which these cases are composed of cherry and darker woods with the finest plate glass fronts, beautifully finished and admirably adopted to show goods. The one on the east side of the store is fitted for the general line of silverware for which this firm is so noted, water sets, ice cream sets, tea sets, butter dishes, cake dishes, pickle castors and the thousand and one article in fine glass and silver which are sold here. Mr. Wendell says with justice, that he has never put on sale so fine a line of goods as those which he now has on sale. The counter is on the west side and is an elegant piece of work. Behind this is another beautiful wall case which is the receptacle for the finer articles in silver brass work and fine French clocks. The counter show case is also an elegant affair and is filled with a bewildering assortment of jewelry in plain gold and all the variety of gold work, bracelets, rings, chains, watches and precious stones, such a list of articles as it is a delight to Jules Wendell & Son to place before the Oswego public, because they know that each and every article which they have in stock will sustain the reputation which this firm have established for selling nothing which will not bear the test of time or increase the reputation of Jules Wendell & Son for honorable dealing. Especial attention is called to the silver jewelry which is now the rage and which Wendell & Son display in the greatest profusion and in every style of art. This jewelry is very popular this year. Of course it is well known that the firm take the lead in the sale of fine jewelry, diamonds and other precious stones and anything they offer will be just as they advertise it and they only keep the best. After years of experience in business they have found that the people of Oswego want first-class goods and that these goods in the long run are cheaper than shoddy goods and hence it is that this firm is so popular. Of course it is impossible, in the limit of this article to attempt an enumeration of the different articles or even lines of goods which this firm has on sale. We can point out a few and ask the public to go to Wendell's and by an inspection of the goods satisfy themselves that what we have said is strictly true. The electric light will shed its rays to-night on such an array of beautiful goods as was never yet displayed in an Oswego store and the difficulty will be in making a selection. Let it be remembered that although the stock is all new and fresh, prices will not be as high even as last season when goods were selling very low. Buying an immense stock at once and of only a few houses, Wendell & Son were able to get importers and manufacturers prices down so low that they can offer special bargains in every department. The line of watches of all styles is very large and of varied grades and the taste of anyone can be suited. And if you want to see the handsomest store in Central New York, the biggest stock of fine goods and a big crowd, the best thing you can do is to pay a visit to Wendell's store.

In order to give more room for their stock, the repair and manufacturing establishment has been removed to the basement, where such work will be done.

THE LARGE JACK

REVEILLE,

Will stand the season of 1885 at the farm of S. Pendergast, one-fourth mile south of Phœnix, on the Oswego river.

[illegible] in the stables. [illegible] have horses [illegible] their carriages [illegible] from the strong [illegible] in the stables lest the [illegible] or the varnish [illegible] at the same time [illegible] their horses cough, or have weak eyes or moon-blindness, or suffer from other diseases, which, if they would readily perceive are due to the foul air the animals are compelled to breathe every night in the year while confined in close, badly ventilated stables. The remedy is very easy. The stables should be kept clean; and it should be well ventilated. The floor should be properly drained, so that the liquid will not remain on it, to be absorbed, and decompose, and produce the pugent vapors of ammonia, which are so injurious to the eyes, nostrils, throat, and lungs, and this liquid waste should be carried away to some place where it can be absorbed and utilized. The floor should be washed off at least twice a week with plenty of water and then liberally sprinkled with finely-ground gypsum (plaster) which will combine with the ammonia and fix it. A solution of copperas (sulphate of iron) will have the same result. Lastly, the floor should be supplied with absorbent litter, which should be removed when it is soiled. Ventilation should be provided in such a way as to avoid cold drafts. Small openings, which may be easily closed with a slide, may be made in the outer wall near the floor, and similar ones near the ceiling, or in the roof, through which the foul air can escape. Pure air is of the utmost importance to the well-being of horses. As an instance of it may be mentioned the fact that in the English cavalry stables a complete system of ventilation reduced the average loss of horses from the deadly disease, glanders, from one hundred and thirty-two per thousand yearly, to nine in the thousand; and when a similar improvement was made in the French army stables, the percentage of death was reduced in a similar ratio, with a still larger decrease of milder ailments.—[American Agriculturist.

SHEEP.

Have you sheep? If not, get some. They were never cheaper, and never better. Don't fret about the "Tariff on wool." It does not concern you in the least. What you most need now is a liberal supply of good, sweet, fresh mutton for your table; let the wool come in as an "incidental." If you cannot raise the needed money, trade some of the side meat hanging in the smoke house, or two or three of the shotes intended for next fall's killing—anything, so you get the sheep. We know just what we are writing about, and we mean it. You ought to raise every calf, and we are not going to advise you to "veal" a single one, but if you feel that youmust, don't sell it to the butcher. Keep it until at least 5 weeks old, make it thoroughly fat, kill it yourself, and keep at least one "quarter" for your own table. Sell the other "quarters" to some parties who know what good veal is, and are willing to pay for it. You will get more from them than from the butcher for a whole calf, have a week's good living for your, self out of the head, liver and the other quarter and have the hide for the trouble of killing. And so with eggs and poultry; supply your own table first, and sell the surplus. Of course sell the "early broilers." Townspeople are willing to pay high prices for them, and don't know that the old hen, which they so much despise, is infinitely better, if properly cooked, as well as greatly cheaper. And so on through the season. Live better than you have been doing. Make a point of living as well as you can. It is your privilege, it is your duty to yourself and your family, and you will be a better man, a better citizen and a better farmer for it.—[Our Country Home.

Harvesting Currant Worms.

I have used many remedies to get rid of currant worms, but have found none so successful as gathering the worms and eggs and destroying them. When the leaves are nearly grown I begin to look for the first worms. Protecting the hands by a pair of old gloves, kids are the best, I pick them off, one at a time being careful not to drop or miss any, and put them in an old dish. I pick them every day for a while, and all the leaves on which their eggs have been laid. The eggs are found on the under side of the leaves. They are very small, and many are missed to reappear in the form of small worms. These I get by picking off the leaves on which they are hatched. One or two gatherings in a week will do after they have been thinned out. I burn all the gatherings to avoid further trouble. I have practiced this mode for two seasons and had [illegible]. [illegible] a locomotive on a passenger train out in Nebraska. One day, as I was coming this way, we run into a swarm of 'hoppers. There wasn't a breath of air stirrin', and so they were all on the ground. There wasn't nothin' left standin' around there but the telegraph poles an' wires, an' the poles were beginnin' to wobble. The hoppers were so mad when they tackled the wires an' found they couldn't eat 'em that they gnashed their teeth and the wires was a continual streak of fire. O course the track was covered with 'hoppers a foot thick, an' there wan't no use trying to go ahead. We shoved into 'em several times with throttle wide open, but we couldn't get more than a train length. Pretty soon I run out of water, an' we had to pull the fire from the box. There we was, stuck, fifteen miles from the nearest station, with a foot o' grasshoppers on the track an' a cold engine. Encouragin' wasn't it? Why, we were afeard of our lives. If the 'hoppers had had to stay there 24 hours there wouldn't a-been anything left o' that train but the iron work. Woodwork, upholsterin', passengers—everything would have disappeared. But in about an hour a gentle breeze struck up, and we saw a dark cloud comin' from the rear. It was the 'hoppers sailin' with the wind. Then those round us began to rise an' we couldn't see the sun. Pretty soon it was so dark we couldn't see nothin', and we lit the head-light. All of a sudden I discovered something. What d'ye suppose it was? Well, sir, we was a movin' Yes, we was a goin' right along with the 'hoppers. They was pushin' the train. As far back as we could see there was a solid mass of 'hoppers, all pushin' as if they were paid for it. In 10 minute we was makin' 80 miles an hour, and as our time card only called for 20 mile we finished our run on time without a bit of fire in the box or a drop o' water in the biler. This sounds kind o' strange, I know, but you must remember that them grasshoppers are mighty enterprisin' fellows when they they git a-goin'."—[Chicago Herald.

Andrew Jackson's Home.

The Tennessee Legislature is discussing the advisability of selling the Hermitage, Andrew Jackson's estate, to the United States to be used as a soldier's home. The estate is now neglected, and has few of the beauties it possessed when Old Hickory lived, and when he and his wife, Rachel, rode too and from it in his $2,500 coach. Gen. Brinkerhoff, now one of the leading Democrats of Central Ohio, was a tutor of the Hermitage immediately after the death of Andrew Jackson. "The Hermitage," said he, "was a very different place at the time of Jackson's death, from what it is now. It lies twelve miles from Nashville. It was a magnificent estate, comprising 1,000 acres of rich land, the most of which was under the highest cultivation. It resembled one of the finest English homesteads of the present day. It was finely laid out, and the mansion had in front of it a park of several acres, so arranged in drives and foot paths that the visitors entering it came to the house thro' avenues of ceder. Andrew Jackson's home was a large brick building, with a number of pillars at each end of it. It had long verandas, and a hall ran thro' the centre. As you entered this hall at the left were the parlors, and back of them in a one-story wing was the dining room. On the right were two rooms, the first of which had been the especial propetry of the General, and the other, across a narrow hall, that of Andrew Jackson, Jr. and his wife. At the end of this little hall was the library, which looked out upon the garden and the tomb of Mrs. Jackson.

Prof. Tracy of Detroit says the best conditions for the growth of sweet corn are exactly the same as those required for the production of the sugar beet, and are the opposite of those required for field corn. It requires a colder climate, and a soil less rich in vegetable matter. Potash fertilizers should not be used, but phosphates instead. Barnyard manure, if used at all, should be well rotted.—[Rural New Yorker.

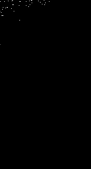
WATCH THE KIDNEYS.

They are the most important secretory organs. Into and through the Kidneys flow the waste fluids of the body, containing poisonous matter taken out of the system. If the Kidneys do not act properly this matter is retained, the whole system becomes disordered and the following symptoms will follow: Headache, weakness, pain in the small of back and loins, flushes of heat, chills, with disordered stomach and bowels. You can thoroughly protect the Kidneys by BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS, and when any of these symptoms manifest themselves you can quickly rid yourself of them by this best of all medicines for the Kidneys. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS are sold everywhere at $1 per bottle, and one bottle will prove their efficacy.

The World Challenged.



The liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years, and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalleled success. "When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that ever was known.

"I called the doctors again, and after several weeks they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I poohed at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again.

In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since.

It has also cured my wife, who had been sick for years; and has kept her and my children well and healthy with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used.

CURE FOR PILES.

Piles are frequently proceeded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. As he prepared to retire he was desired to hand over his revolver to the porter, which he declined to do in a spirited manner.

"Old Dad' (his revolver) and me always sleeps together, and we don't want no divorce," he explained.

The conductor remonstrated, but was advised not to try to "braid this mule's tail."

"This here's a sleepin' car, ain't it?" he at length inquired.

"Yes."

"Well, why don't you let people sleep then when they've paid and gone into your game? If you're aiming to keep people awake and want company, just dance into the next car; there's lots of folks there don't want to sleep, nohow, and they'll be glad to see you."

The conductor withdraw and my friend pulled off his boots and stretched himself, with many comments in an undertone on the poverty of the surroundings.

In about ten minutes this erratic person had his head out in the aisle.

"Say, you boy!" to the porter.

"Well, sah?"

"Come a-running'."

The porter drew near and was handed a pillow about as big as a pin-cushion.

"Take that gooseha'r thing away," commanded the cowboy.

"Don't you want a pillow, sah?" asked the porter.

"That ain't no pillow and I don't want it nohow; I'm afraid it'll get in my ear."

After this, silence, and for a short time I slept. I roused up however, at an exclamation on the part of my neighbor.

"Hold on there, my son, jist drap them boots."

"I was only jest gwine to black' em, boss."

"Drap' em."

They drapped.

"Jest gwine to pull them spurs, I reckon. Now, don't monkey around my camp, taking things no more. If you want anything, speak for it. If you can't speak make signs, and if you can't make signs shake a bush. You h'ar me?"

"Yes, sah."

After this, silence. The wheels and rails again sang together and the car again kept approving time, and presently I slept without interruption.—[Denver News.

Obscure Men Happiest in Wedlock

No woman will love a man better for being renowned or prominent. Though he be the first among men, she will be prouder, not fonder; as is often the case, she will not even be proud. But give her love, appreciation, kindness, and there is no sacrifice she would not make for his content and comfort. The man who loves her well is her hero and king. No less a hero to her, though he is not to any other; no less a king, though his only kingdom is her heart and home. It is a man's own fault if he is unhappy with his wife, in nine cases out of ten. It is a very exceptionable woman who will not be all she can to an attentive husband, and a very exceptionable one who will not be very disagreeable if she finds herself willfully neglected.—[Alabama Baptist.

THE RAREST OF COMBINATION

[illegible] with Success.

[illegible], N. Y., March 3, 1885.

Dr. M. M. Fenner—Dear Sir:—For years I had been suffering from a combination of Kidney Disease, Heart Disease and Female Weakness. I had a heavy, aching pain over my kidneys with Backache and a Turbid Flow of Urine, Bloating of Limbs and a General Dropsical Condition; also Pain, Palpitation and Dropsy of the Heart.

My condition was a distressing one, and all treatment and Kidney Remedies gave little relief.

I have been taking your "Kidney and Backache Cure" with the most happy result. It has relieved all the unpleasant symptoms that have followed me so persistently and so long. I never had a medicine help me so quickly and cure so completely. I am doing my own work.

Yours truly, MRS. JAMES FULLER.

Cures all diseases of the kidneys, bladder, urinary passages, backache, dropsy, female weaknesses, nervous debility, heart disease, rheumatism, etc. The most effective remedy that has ever been administered in the diseases named.

DR. FENNER'S BLOOD AND LIVER REMEDY and NERVE TONIC.—Cleanses and purifies the blood, relieves biliousness, cleans out and heals the entire stomach and bowels, strengthens the nerves, cures skin eruptions and diseases, etc.

KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Cures a Terrible Case of Gravel when Other Help Failed.

What is Gravel? what causes it, and who are most liable to it? It is frequently attended with acute pain, and unless relief can be found, produces inflammation and death. Both sexes and all ages are liable to it, although men who have reached or passed middle age are its most common victims. Nothing is more urgently needed than a reliable medicine for Gravel, as the disease seems on the increase, and we are glad to say that such a specific is now before the public in the form of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y. We put in evidence the following letter, selected from many similar communications:

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March, 1884.

Dr. David Kennedy.

DEAR SIR:—You have a right to know, and I desire the public to know my experience with Gravel and my remarkable recovery through the use of your "FAVORITE REMEDY." I am a carpenter living in this place, and there are plenty of witnesses to the truth of what I say. My first comparatively slight attack of Gravel was in the year 1878. It passed away, and I had little more trouble until last July, 1883. One day when at work in my shop I was suddenly seized with a keen and terrible pain in my left side. I consulted two physicians at once. One said: "I can do nothing for you. Your case is incurable!" I was frightened and went to the second, who said little, but gave me a prescription. It did no good. Then began a series of experiences the agony and horror of which words cannot depict. Think of it! I was sometimes taken in the street, and would fall writhing with agony, upon the side-walk. It was death in life. Thank Heaven, I then heard of "KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY," through Mr. P. P. Cooley. I had not used half a bottle when I passed three stones in succession, one of which was nearly one-half an inch long. I persevered with the medicine, the symptoms gradually abated, and I have had no more trouble since. I am well, thanks to you and "FAVORITE REMEDY." Yours most gratefully, JAMES D. KENNEDY.

What "FAVORITE REMEDY" did in this case it has done in many others. If you desire to do so Address—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

MALARIA!

has won golden opinions. No traveler should consider his outfit complete unless it includes a bottle of this medicine. If you are exposed to frequent changes of climate, food and water, Favorite Remedy should always be within your reach. It expels malarial poisons, and is the best preventative of chills and malarial fever in the world. It is especially offered as a trustworthy specific for the cure of Kidney and Liver complaints, Constipation and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex Favorite Remedy is constantly proving itself an unfailing friend—a real blessing. Address the proprietor, Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. [illegible] village by the sea,
[illegible] touched the people tenderly;
[illegible] to face the sunlight in the glowing, [illegible]
[illegible] to their dwellings for God's hours of rest.
[illegible] looked across the waters, and a storm was raging there,
[illegible] moved above them—the wild spirit of the air;
[illegible] and shook and tore them, till they [illegible], groaned and boomed,
[illegible] for any vessel in their yawning gulfs entombed.
[illegible] anxious were the people on that rocky coast of Wales,
Lest the dawns of coming morrows should be telling awful tales,
When the sea had spent its passion, and should cast upon the shore
Bits of wreck and swollen victims, as it had done heretofore.
With the rough winds blowing round her, a brave woman strained her eyes,
And she saw along the billows the large vessel fall and rise,
Oh, it did not need a prophet to tell what the end must be,
For no ship could ride in safety, near that shore on such a sea.
Then the pitying people hurried from their homes and thronged the beach.
Oh! for power to cross the waters and the perishing to reach;
Helpless hands were wrung for sorrow, tender hearts grew cold with dread,
And the ship, urged by the tempest, to the fatal rockshore sped.
"She has parted in the middle! Oh! the half of her goes down!
God have mercy! Is Heaven far to seek to those who drown?"
Lo! when next the white, shocked faces looked with terror on the sea,
Only one last clinging figure on the spar was seen to be.
Nearer the trembling watchers came the wreck, tossed by the wave,
And the man still clung and floated, though no power on earth could save.
"Could we send him a short message? Here's a trumpet—shout away!"
'Twas the preacher's hand that took it, and he wondered what to say.
Any memory of his sermon? firstly? secondly? Ah, no!
There was but one thing to utter in the awful hour of woe;
So he shouted through the trumpet, "Look to Jesus! Can you hear?"
And, "Ay, ay, sir," rang the answer o'er the waters loud and clear.
Then they listened. "He is singing, 'Jesus, lover of my soul!'"
And the winds brought back the echo, "While the nearer waters roll."
Strange, indeed it was to hear him—"Till the storm of life is past," Singing bravely [illegible] waters, "Oh, receive my soul at last."
He could have no other refuge, "Hangs my helpless soul on Thee,"
"Leave, oh, leave me not—" the singer dropped at last into the sea.
And the watchers, looking homeward, through their eyes with tears made dim,
Said, "He passed to be with Jesus, in the singing of that hymn."

A SHORT-LIVED ROMANCE.

My name is John Jackson. Soon after leaving college I secured a position on a great city daily; and without possessing any brilliant qualities as a writer, but by a quiet devotion to the systematic business of news gathering, was soon able to make my services valuable.

Several years passed by, and I still retained my position on the Daily Enlightener, and was as much wrapped up as ever in my profession. This close devotion to business began to tell on my health, and I grew quite pale and haggard. So it happened that Mr. Brown, the managing editor, said to me one day toward the latter part of June:

"Don't you think you ought to have a little rest, Jackson? Suppose you take a run into the country for a few weeks."

The place I selected at which to spend my vacation was a charming mountain lake, much famed for the remarkable beauty of its scenery, and which had the advantage of being easy of access, as well as much more quiet than the ultra-fashionable resorts.

It was with something of the happiness of a boy let out from school that I found myself on the train bearing me away from the stifling heat of the city with its glare, its dust and its clatter, into the cool, green country, whose calm beauty, as I saw it even from the car window, seemed almost like a new revelation to me after the years I had spent in the great Babel of humanity, with no landscape save glaring streets and towering piles of brick and stone, except for an occasional glimpse of the trim-kept parks, which are but poor substitutes for the real country.

But this vacation of mine is chiefly memorable from the fact that it resulted in the first and only romance of my life. It is by no means a thrilling story I have to tell. I do not pose as a tragic hero, nor indeed a hero of any kind. My romance, such as it is, is only a very common-place sort of romance, as suits such a very common-place individual.

The journey was not a long one. The [illegible] morning after leaving the city, I found myself at the little way station, [illegible] the stage ride of a few miles [illegible] destination.

[illegible] a number of passengers, [illegible] several in number, were [illegible] to start. These were huge [illegible] the fashion of the English [illegible] on top. As usual [illegible] passengers [illegible] [illegible] pale complexion. She was evidently alone, and perplexed; so I inquired if I could be of any service.

She blushed, and said, "If you would be so kind as to assist me to an outside seat. I cannot bear to be shut up in that stuffy stage."

"Nothing would give me greater pleasure," I said, and so soon had her fixed in a desirable place, finding myself a seat by her side. Of course that was the end of all conventionality, and we were soon chatting with the freedom of old acquaintances, as the stage bowled along the mountain road.

I learned in the course of our talk that she had just finished her term at a well-known female college, and was on her way to the Mountain House (the same hotel I had selected for myself) to join her parents. This last piece of intelligence was quite gratifying to me.

We bowled along under the shade of many a towering height, interspersed with picturesque gorges and dingles, while blossoming wild flowers added the charm of their delicate coloring to the bright green of the verdure.

As we rumbled up to the hotel piazza I saw my new friend welcomed by her parents and several younger brothers and sisters. When I finally stepped up to the office counter, I noticed the name, "Miss Laura May, New York," in a delicate feminine hand, which I correctly surmised to be the name of my charmer, she having in the meantime been been borne off in triumph by her joyous convoy.

I was delighted to find myself seated opposite Miss May at dinner, and to receive a graceful bow and a bright smile as marks of recognition when she took her place. I had thought her charming in her traveling dress, but she was exquisitely beautiful in her robe of snowy muslin, with a simple bunch of rosebuds fastened at her throat.

No society can be more free from conventionality than that of a popular resort, provided it be not too fashionable; so it was not many days before I was on terms of the most delightful intimacy with Miss May, finding her a highly accomplished and altogether charming young woman. She sang divinely, played with the touch of a master, and both sketched and painted. Of these last diversions she was particularly fond; and I made myself useful in hunting up picturesque spots for her, fixing her easel, and lying on the grass would read her some beautiful little poem or story, while she wielded brush or pencil. Besides this we danced together at the hotel hops, took long drives, rambled along the mountain paths and enjoyed many a moonlight row on the lake.

I did not ask myself how all this would end. I did not even acknowledge to myself that I was in love, though very deeply in love I certainly was. A number of weeks went by in a blissful dream, and I had begun to look forward with dread to the necessity of leaving the spot which had come to be a perfect Eden to me, when my fool's paradise was suddenly destroyed; and this is the way it came about:

One evening Miss May and myself had gone out for a row on the lake. I had dropped the oars and let the boat drift while she sang a tender ballad, and I recited some lines from one of the most exquisite of Tennyson's early lyrics.

I do not know but she feared that I was getting sentimental, for she said to me quite suddenly after a pause:

"I expect Harry to-morrow."

"Indeed," I replied; "Who is he, may I ask?"

"Oh, I thought I had mentioned him to you. He is my betrothed. Of course you knew I was engaged," she said, holding up her hand, where a diamond sparkled in the moonlight.

The blow was so sudden that I was literally stunned for an instant; but I finally found breath to say, "I suppose you will be very glad."

I felt sure that she had a suspicion of my feelings, though she pretended otherwise and chatted gayly, while I rowed slowly back to the hotel. I excused myself as we reached the house, lighted a cigar—the one solace for earthly ill—and went out on the hills to have "my dark hour alone."

I slept little that night, and was up almost with the dawn. So it happened that when the early boat touched at the hotel dock I saw a burly young Titan with shaggy hair and beard leap ashore and give orders to the porters in a loud and rather coarse voice. This I surmised was Harry, and I afterward discovered that my conjectures were correct. He is a very clever fellow, I am told, but can say nothing of this from personal knowledge, as I had no opportunity to cultivate his acquaintance. It was rather trying to see another take my place by the side of one for whom I had conceived a real attachment, and I was thankful that the limit of my vacation was near, so that I had an excuse of returning at once to the city.—[San Franciscan.

The Cost of Matrimony.

My friend Jones, one of the jolliest fellows alive, had noted the frequent "drop off" of a bachelor, and wondered often how under the sun a man with a single man's salary could support a wife and four, or five or more children. Jones, by the way, has been courting a pretty girl for five years. He had upon two or three occasions strongly hinted about the pleasures of married life, and deprecated the woes and discomforts of the single state.

His girl would only glance up at him with curiosity-laden eyes, blush vividly and say nothing. Jones often wondered if the girl knew what his salary was, and if she did, would she be willing to stake chances with him on the cast of a single die? Jones was wise in some things and very unsophisticated in others. What he knew about women could easily go into a nutshell, and what he didn't know about them could comfortably be spread over a four acre pasture.

One warm, lazy Sunday afternoon Jones found himself standing before the altar with a dainty figure in pure white by his side. He was astonished. He couldn't remember of ever asking the girl to become his bride, though he had often though seriously of doing so. However the facts are evident. The bride by his side and he himself has just responded "yes" to the minister's questions. While the ceremony was being performed, he couldn't get rid of the disagreeable idea, "Will my fifteen dollar a week salary carry us both through?" After the ceremony a pretty reception was held at the bride's home, and Jones found himself surrounded by his many friends, who congratulated him and wished him many happy returns. He knew that it was customary for the newly wedded pair to go on a bridal tour. He had just $50 in his pocket, and he knew that wouldn't go far. He was in hot water until his bride called him aside and whispered: "I know what you are thinking of. But we will not take a bridal tour. I know I should be utterly wretched to have every one point me out as the bride. Again, bridegrooms most always wear stovepipe hats. You don't like stovepipe hats. So I have arranged it in this way; Instead of taking a tour we will spend the time in settling our rooms."

Jones looked at her in dismay. Rooms? All the rooms he knew of were his sitting and bedroom, four stories from the walk in a second class boarding house. Time sped on wings, and ere he knew it he and his charming wife were nicely settled in some plain but comfortable rooms in the second story of a widow lady's house. His little account in the bank was called upon to purchase a carpet for the parlor. His wife said she had thought of the sitting room before the wedding, and a rag carpet which her deft fingers had completed was put down in that room. As for the bed-room, it was too warm for a carpet yet, and a rug in front of the bed was all that was necessary. All the furnishings of the rooms were completed before cold weather set in. Then Jones had to buy a stove for the sitting-room. The cook stove was a present from his wife's father. Strange as it may seem, Jones didn't miss the price of his sitting room stove half as much as he used to the price of a coat. And beside that, there were a dainty little pair of feet perched upon the fenders, and a rosy pair of lips ready to kiss him when he came home.

A year passed, and Jones thought he would reckon up and see how he stood. Last year it cost him $416 for board at $8 per week. Clothes and incidentals, $150. Total, $566. His salary was $780, from which, deducting his expenses, leaves him with just $214. So much for single blessedness. Now for the married state—just one year old. Strange as it may seem, he found it cost him and his wife just $312 for table necessaries, exactly $6 per week for both. He figured this over twice. He didn't think it possible; however, his wife was a thrifty woman, and Jones couldn't see anything wanting from his table, besides he enjoyed the nice meals much more than he did the routine of boarding-house fare. His rent cost him just $120. Coal, $25. Clothing for himself and wife—is it possible?—$100. There were no incidentals this time. His wife had always appeared nicely dressed, and he—well, a married man can make clothes go further than a bachelor. The total of the past year was just $557. Deducting this from his salary of $780, leaves just $223, or $9 more than the other year. And added to this was $125 which his dear little wife had laid up from placque painting and fancy decorative work. Jones was astonished, dumbfounded. He could scarcely believe his own eyes. Here he has been living at a rate that would nicely support two, and have money left. Is it a dream? To make sure, he asked his wife to pinch him. She did, and he awoke. He was yet in his bachelor chamber. The flies which he had been watching when he fell asleep were still sliding up and down the window panes, and the blue-bottle was buzzing dangerously near his nose.

Jones' dream opened his eyes, I assure you. And that quiet Sunday evening, when the sun was tracing pictures on the lawn, he popped the question, and was accepted. I presume he is satisfied, for he found satisfaction, I'm sure.—H. S. Keller, in N. Y. Mercury.

Fans are attached to the side with ribbon and a few flowers.

Black shoes and stockings are worn with the white dress of the graduates.

For plain gingham and satteen dresses basques are made without lining.

Batistes and cambrics rival the ginghams and percales in popularity.

Summer silks are trimmed with bands of velvet ribbon laid in straight rows.

A large bow of satin ribbon now adorns the handle of every stylish sunshade.

Old-fashioned cambrics in half inch strips of three gay-colors are shown for over dresses.

Sleeves of cotton dresses are in ordinary coat shape, but are not as tightly fitted as last year.

Wrappers of linen lawn made in Mother Hubbard fashion, will be among the comforts of summer.

For the simplest morning gowns the house-maid skirt without drapery is used, with plain belted waist.

The surplice waist, lapped to one side, is the most dressy of the belted waists, and is much used for thin lawns and batistes.

Belted waists are in great favor for summer dresses; especially for those of cambric, gingham, satteen and the inexpensive prints.

There are many ways now of brightening black dresses, the easiest being a vest front of colors under lace, gathered or beaded.

Children's parasols are of check or changeable silk, with handles to match. Lace covered parasols are still used for baby carriages.

The yoke waist is still worn. It is in nicer taste to have the yoke of the dress material than to have a colored dress with a white yoke.

Pique dresses may be made with plaited skirt extending back to meet the long drapery of the back which falls in two large box plaits from the belt.

Children wear striped and plaid flannel coats made with a yoke, and the body put on in box plaits. Red and blue is a favorite combination for these stylish little garments.

The Beauty of Youth.

No matter how handsome or stalwart a young man may be otherwise, nothing can make up for a partially bald head. Shining talents are attractive, but a shining poll is not. The cause may be sickness or anything else, yet Parker's Hair Balsam will stop the loss of the hair and start a new growth of glossy and soft hair so quickly as to surprise you—restoring the original color at the same time. Not a dye, not oily, delicately perfumed. Only standard 50c. dressing. 1m1

Scintillating with Sarcasm and Brilliant with Truth.

New York Correspondence American Rural Home.

Chap. I. "Has Malaria;" goes to Florida.
Chap. II. "Overworked;" goes to Europe
Chap III "Has Rheumatism;" goes to Ems
Chap. IV Has a row with his Doctor!

The above chapters, Mr. Editor I find in a book recently published by an anonymous author. I have read a deal of sarcasm in my day but I never read anything equal to the sarcasm herein contained. I suspect the experience portrayed is a personal one; in short the author intimates as much on page 31. Let me give you a synopsis:

"Malaria" as it states is the cloak with which superficial physicians cover up a multitude of ill feelings which they do not understand, and do not much care to investigate. It is also a cover for such diseases as they cannot cure. When they advise their patient to travel or that he is over worked and needs rest and is probably suffering from malaria, it is a confession of ignorance or of inability. The patient goes abroad. The change is a tonic and for a time he feels better. Comes home. Fikle appetite frequent headaches, severe colds, cramps, sleeplessness, irritability, tired feelings, and general unfitness for business are succeeded in due time by alarming attacks of rheumatism which flits about his body regardless of all human feelings.

It is muscular,—in his back. Articular,—in his joints. Inflammatory, my! how he fears it will fly to his heart! Now off he goes to the springs. The doctor sends him there, of course to get well; at the same time he does not really want him to die on his hands!

That would hurt his business!

Better for a few days. Returns. After a while neuralgia transfixes him. He bloats; cannot breathe; has pneumonia; cannot walk; cannot sleep on his left side; is fretful; very nervous and irritable; is pale and flabby; has frequent chills and fevers; everything about him seems to go wrong; becomes suspicious; musters up strength and demands to know what is killing him!

"Great heaven?" he cries, "why have you kept me so long in ignorance?"

"Because," said the doctor, "I read your fate five years ago. I thought best to keep you comfortable and ignorant of the facts."

He dismisses the doctor, but to late! his fortune has all gone for fees.

But him, what becomes of him?

The other day a well known Wall street banker said to me "it is really astonishing how general bright's disease is becoming. Two of my personal friends are now dying of it. But it is not incurable I am certain, for my nephew was recently cured when his physicians said recovery was impossible. The case seems to me a wonderful one." This gentleman formerly represented his government in a foreign country. He knows and appreciates the value of that preparation, because his nephew, who is a son of Danish Vice-Consul Schmidt, was pronounced incurable when the remedy, Warner's safe cure, was begun. "Yes," said his father, "I was very skeptical but since taking that remedy the boy is well."

I regret to note that ex-President Arthur is said to be a victim of this terrible disease. He ought to live but the probilities are that since authorized remedies can not cure him, his physicians will not advise him to save his life as so many thousands have done, by the use of Warner's safe cure which Gen. Christiansen, at Drexel Morgan & Co's., told me he regarded "as a wonderful remedy."

Well, I suspect the hero of the book cured himself by the same means. The internal evidence points very strongly to this conclusion.

I cannot close my notice of this book better than by quoting his advice to his readers.

"If my friend, you have such an experience as I have portrayed, do not put your trust in physicians to the exclusion of other remedial agencies. They have no monopoly over disease and I personally know that many of them are so very 'conscientious' that they would far prefer that their patients should go to Heaven direct from their powerless hands, than that they should be saved to earth by the use of any 'unauthorized' means."

And that the author's condemnation is too true how many thousands duped, and yet rescued, as he was can personally testify?

Barbed wire for fencing is extensively used in Central America and Brazil.

Cleaning Cellars.

A lot of rubbish from unused or spoiled fruit and vegetables will inevitably accumulate in farm cellars during the winter season. This should be cleared out and the walls of cellars whitened with the first approach of warm weather. At the ordinary farmhouse cleanliness of the cellar is essential to the making of first-class butter. Besides, nothing is more injurious to health than the odors from decaying fruits and vegetables. Good Health says that a house with a "pit of corruption" under it always has some one sick in it. Vegetable cellars under living rooms are apt to be such pits. They really should not be built under dwellings at all. Beneath outbuildings would be better. A cave or vault in the ground, drained and ventilated would be best of all.

THE LARGE JACK

REVEILLE,

Will stand the season of 1885 at the farm of S. Pendergast, one-fourth mile south of Phoenix, on the Oswego river.

REVEILLE was imported from Kentucky, where he was carefully selected to meet the wants of this locality. He will be nine years old next August, is fifteen and a fourth hands high and weighs over nine hundred pounds.

TERMS—Ten dollars to insure. Bills payable March 1st, 1886. Pasturage $1 per week. All accidents and escapes at the owner's risk. No deviation from these terms.

I desire to hire the service of about twenty mares for the year and will pay good prices for the colts when old enough to take away.

It is rumored that Mr. Foster aspires to lead the Prohibition party in the next campaign as its candidate for Governor, hoping to combine all elements of the opposition to the Democracy in his favor. Democrats are surprised and have held a meeting to remodel the State ticket slate.

The largest electric light in the United States—55,000 candle power—and the largest automatic light ever built any where, was lighted up for the first time from the Phœnix block, Seneca Falls Saturday evening June 6. This light was introduced by Mr. D. C. Hadcock of Syracuse. Mr. Hadcock writes us that the light was viewed by 15,000 people the first night. He also says that it can be seen 21 miles and that print can be read at a distance of 3 miles. It is believed that the people of Seneca Falls will make it a permanent institution.

There seems to be but very little encouragement for a change from the present condition of business during the summer. Bradstreet's says: The generally unfavorable conditions affecting trade continue unpleasantly prominent. The volume of merchandise moving is light. The dry goods market presents no encouraging features. The enforced idleness among iron mills at the west has resulted in a somewhat better feeling in merchant iron at various points, though no large sales are reported. The movement of grocery staples has been restricted. Dairy products are active and higher.

The very low ruling price of butter has helped bring oleomargarine into disuse more effectively than any legislation thus far brought to bear upon its manufacture. The Commercial Manufacturing Company, which was incorporated in New York city in 1876 for the manufacture of oleomargarine, has been placed in the hands of a receiver. It was at one time the largest manufactory of the kind in the United States, its consolidated capital being $10,000,000. The company has not been doing business for some time past, and its machinery and fixtures are covered with chattle mortgages. Its indebtedness is about $150,000.

Owing to the sudden outbreak of warm weather it was decided by Gen. Grant's physicians that he be taken to Mt. McGregor at once instead of waiting another week as was intended. The General left New York yesterday morning, reaching his destination at 2:45 in the afternoon. Wm. H. Vanderbilt placed his private car at the General's disposal. He was accompanied by Dr. Douglas and all his family with the exception of Ulysses. General Grant was greeted with public demonstrations at many places along the line. Early Saturday morning the upper mill of F. C., H. C. & H. L. Beard & Sons, at Fayetteville, was destroyed by fire. The mill had for some months been leased by the Cataract Paper Company, and had been used in manufacturing heavy wrapping paper. The paper company's loss is about $4,000 or $5,000; insurance $2,000. The mill was insured for [illegible], but was worth considerable more.

Edward Hall, alias George Wilson, the noted counterfeiter, was arrested Saturday in an engraving establishment in New York, on a charge of attempting to print forged notes for a foreign country. He was committed to Ludlow street jail in default of $5,000 bail. This is the first arrest made under the new act "To prevent and punish counterfeiting within the United States of notes, bonds or other securities of foreign governments." The punishment prescribed is a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for five years or both.

English Affairs.

London, June 13.—The queen, it is said, is delighted over Gladstone's downfall. The Marquis of Salisbury, everybody begins to see, lacks self-confidence. It is understood he will refrain from forming a cabinet until after he has held conferences with all the conservative leaders. He is now on the way to London from Balmoral. The impression prevails that the Parnellites will not have as much influence with the new government as they expected. It is not believed that Salisbury will seek the assistance of any Gladstone minister in forming his policy toward Ireland. His plan will be to split the liberal party completely by proposing a measure of coercion based on Spencer's reports, a measure the same as Hartington and a majority of Gladstone's cabinet insisted on continuing.

In well informed circles it is thought the Queen's entourage strongly favors the renewal of the Soudan campaign, the retention of Egypt, the settlement of the Anglo-Russian dispute on the basis of the Granville-Giers agreement, a renewal of the alliance with Germany, and a entente with Turkey and no special cultivation of entente with France. A policy embracing these principals has all along been approved by all the permanent officials of the war office, amongst whom Gladstone's regime had become intensely disliked.

Telegrams from Balmoral indicate that in the conferences which have taken place between the queen and Salisbury, her majesty has shown that she is concerned most about the foreign policy of the government. In court circles there is no longer any concealment of rejoicing over the fall of the liberal government. Gladstone, the court officials admit, was never in harmony with the queen on any subject and her majesty and the premier disagreed bitterly in all their discussions about England's foreign affairs. Gladstone, it is said, rarely consulted the queen or informed her of the designs of his government.

London June 14.—The Marquis of Salisbury has decided to form a conservative ministry, and is in active negotiations with Sir Stafford Northcote, Duke of Richmond, Lord Rowton and others. Salisbury will come to London to-morrow, when a consultation of the leading members of the conservative party will be held. The court circular confirms the statement that Salisbury is to form a ministry.

London, June 15.—Gladstone was in his usual place in the House of Commons this afternoon, and was greeted with cheers when he rose to make an announcement. This was that the Marquis of Salisbury has consented to form a government. Labouchere, Radical, asked Gladstone if there was any truth in the report that Salisbury had only consented to form a Conservative Ministry when assured of assistance by the present Liberal government. Gladstone assured Labouchere that he was ignorant of the existance of any arrangement whereby the present government was bound by any promise to assist the Conservative government.

The Cholera.

Madrid, June 15.—The best obtainable statistics show one or more cases of cholera in each of the fifty-one towns scattered among the eight provinces along the Mediterranean. Senor Moret, ex-Minister of the interior, who has seen three great epidemics in Spain, thinks that the slowness of the cholera in spreading proves that it will be a small affair this year. All previous great epidemics appeared suddenly and spread like lightning. From a sanitary point of view, the Spanish cities are better than formerly. Senor Moret expects that the cholera will reach Madrid or other large cities, but anticipates a small death rate in Madrid. He thinks the disease easily cured with proper care, and calls it tenement house cholera. He thinks America need not fear it, if the authorities attack the cholera instead of allowing the cholera to attack the people. The sanitary authorities in Madrid are showing great activity, and have ordered all cows and donkeys out of the limits. Fires are burning in the worst streets nightly. Sewers are sprinkled with lime.

Poucher and Charles Rhodes, $2,323,42 each; for two years, W. B. Phelps, $655,51; for one year, 1882, Delos DeWolf and John A. Barry, $374,40 each; William Crawford, $281,10; M. J. Cummings, 1884, $1,168,05.

George Stones, a cutter in the knife factory at Phœnix, while out on the river in a boat last Thursday, was carried over the dam and drowned. Quite a number of people ran below the dam and one young man, Floyd Spaulding, jumped in and swam out to the drowning man. Stones was alive when Spaulding reached him, but owing to the exhausted condition of both, Spaulding was unable to render much assistance, and before a boat could reach them Stones sank and was seen no more. When Spaulding was dragged into the boat he was so exhausted that he fell flat in the bottom and it was some time before he could get up. It is uncertain whether it is a case of accident or suicide.

A Fall River dispatch says: A majority of the mills have stopped the required month, yet there is more print cloth on the market to-day than when the stoppage began. The stoppage has curtailed the production of 680,000 pieces, and been a loss to the operatives of $250,000. It is now certain that the mills will shut down two weeks in July and two weeks in August.

Great distress threatens the people of the border counties of southwest Virginia. The corn supply, which is the main support, is almost exhausted and selling at $2 a bushel. The wheat crop, now ready for harvesting, is so meager that it will afford little relief. The same counties suffered heavily from drought and the scourge last year.

The Chicago health officers are endeavoring to secure a large appropriation to put the city in good sanitary condition in anticipation of the early appearance of the cholera. Of 95,000 buildings 25,000 need watching. It has just leaked out that four years ago there were 6,000 cases of small-pox in the city and 2,500 deaths from the disease. The health department suppressed the facts to prevent a panic and serious injury to trade.

Ingersoll on Grant.

I have always regarded General Grant as the greatest soldier this continent has produced. He is to-day the most distinguished son of the Republic. The people have the greatest confidence in his ability, his patriotism and his integrity. The financial disaster impoverished Gen. Grant, but did not stain the reputation of the grand soldier who led to many victories the greatest army that ever fought for the liberties of man.

Cheese Market.

(From the Utica Herald.)

AT UTICA June 15.

The market to-day may be called decidedly active. Buyers wanted cheese, but were little afraid it might run too high. There was, however, a tacit agreement that it should not go above a certain price. Dairymen can not complain since an advance of one cent was all that could have been anticipated. There are full as many factories represented on the board as there was last year, but it will be seen that the sales by no means come up to those of similar date last year. Several factorymen told us they are not getting as much milk as at this time last season. Everybody feels hopeful of the future, altho' the slow advance of the cable is not yet understood. It is suggested that it represents only the price on such hay cheese as is now in stock across the water.

Transactions to day are as follows: 4 lots, 500 boxes, at 7⅛c.; 9 lots, 837 boxes, at 7¼c.; 64 lots, 6,864 boxes, at 7⅜c.; 8 lots, 769 boxes, at 7½c.; 15 lots, 2,147 boxes, at 7⅝c.; 2 lots, 177 boxes, at 7¾c.; 80 boxes at 7⅞c. Sales, 11,374 boxes; commission, 1,452 boxes; total, 12,826 boxes. Ruling price 7⅜c. Transactions last year, 14,880 boxes at 9⅛c.; year before, 13.663 at 10⅛c.

Little Falls, June 15.

We have had a booming market to-day and prices have advanced 1⅛c., above those paid here a week ago. Under so excited condition of trade, our salesmen were not disposed to crowd prices, most being conservative and fearing that too strong an advance might cause a set back another week. Buyers did most of the crowding, and on certain lots were willing to pay almost any price to secure them. All hope that prices have not been forced too high, and it would certainly seem that 7½c. was low enough for fine full cream grass cheese, such as is now going forward. There is a strong belief here that June cheese will not sell below to-day's prices, but of course this is mere opinion and the most hopeful are often doomed to disappointment who guess upon the cheese trade. Transactions to-day are:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
1	69	6½ cts
5	245	7 cts
30	1,708	7¼ cts
58	4,001	7⅜ cts
16	1,201	7¾ cts
2	106	8 cts
21	1,450	Com.
133	8,780
Farm Dairy	915
Total	9,695

Farm Dairies.—Sales of farm cheese reached 915 boxes. The range in price was 6⅛@7½c. But one lot brought the latter price, and the bulk sold at 7¼c.

Butter.—There were upwards of fifty packages farm dairy butter sold mostly to the local grocery trade, at 18@20c. There were 59 packages of creamery sold at 18@22c., nearly all at 20c.

AT FULTON.

The market at this place assumed a lively appearance last Monday night. Salesmen seemed elated with the outlook for a steady advance in price. There was the largest attendance of the season about 25 factories being represented, with 2,000 boxes and about 1,500 being sold for 7¼ to 7⅜. the balance either being held over or sold on commission. The price one year ago was 9⅛c. two years ago, 10⅛c., three years ago 10⅛c. Mr. Meyer of the firm of Meyer & Niemaim of New York, was on the market as a buyer.

Rupture

Providence, R. I., 10 Dexter St.

Dr. J. A. Sherman—Dear Friend: I am sorry, Doctor, you have left Boston. Persons continue to come to my house to inquire respecting you, while many others write me. Many who left me said they would surely seek your aid. Your success has been wonderful, and I am quite sure without a parallel. To my surpise my large Hernia appears to be perfectly healed. I did not expect it at the age of 79. After receiving your treatment I was relieved from suffering which was fast taking my life. I have no idea I should be living had you not taken my case in hand. I weigh now 170 pounds, over thirty pounds more than then. I think you must receive a great amount of happiness from the relief given and gratitude rendered.

You owe it to my son in Boston, who has known many of your patients before and after healing, that I applied to you. "Go," said he, "to Dr. Sherman; be is doing wonders." I had failed of help from a dozen others and doubted, but he would not let me rest till I went. I bless the day I did so. It is to me a mystery, Doctor, that you have so wonderfully out-distanced all in your profession.

I hope your life will long be spared to relieve sufferers, and thus bless the world. Most affectionately and gratefully yours,
REV. JOHN ALDEN.

The Rev. John Alden's case was quite as bad as Mr. James Corlew's, in Dr. Sherman's illustrated book. Those who value immunity from strangulated rupture, the injury trusses inflict, and the comforts of physical soundness should lose no time in securing the benefits of Dr. Sherman's treatment and remedies. His book, containing likenesses of bad cases before and after cure, with evidence of his success and endorsements from distinguished physicians, clergymen, merchants, farmers, engineers and others, is expressed to those who send 10 cents. Dr. Sherman can be consulted daily at his office, 251 Broadway, New York, except Thursdays and Fridays, when he will be in Philadelphia office 302 Walnut Street. Note.—No operation or detention from business. Patients from a distance can receive treatment and leave for home same day. 3w4

Oswego County Medical Society.

This society held its annual meeting last week at Pulaski. Addresses were read and difficult and complicated cases that had come under the observation of the members were discussed. Dr. Hall of this village, was elected President. At the close of the meeting the following resolution was offered and passed by a rising vote:

Whereas, We have with us again today at this, our 65th annual meeting, the oldest living member of this society, who, being admitted in 1842, has attended every annual meeting (now the 44th) since his admission as a member, and has received all the honors which it has been in the power of this society to bestow, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That this society tenders to Dr. Bacon its congratulations upon the excellent record and the high standing he has achieved in his profession, and expresses the hope that he may live to attend many more of the meetings of this society and that in so doing he may find pleasure.

Resolved, That the zeal and perseverance that he has ever exhibited in his profession is worthy of emulation by all.

The society then adjourned to meet at Oswego, on the second Tuesday in December.

Taylor Failed to Appear.

J. J. McGuinness of Binghamton, who was alleged to have insulted Fred Taylor recently, and was arrested at his home last week, arrived here yesterday morning, accompanied by assistant manager Stowe of the Binghamton ball club, and a lawyer of that city, and appeared before Police Justice VanWagenen at 1 o'clock. Taylor failed to make his appearance and the court adjourned for two hours to enable the officers to find the plaintiff. At 4 o'clock he had not been found, and court was again adjourned until this morning when McGuinness was discharged. It is generally believed that the case was settled by the defendant making it an object for Taylor to disappear. If this is the case Taylor's course cannot be too strongly condemned. This affair will cost the county about $30.

Good Advice.

An exchange says: With cheese selling at six cents per pound, butter at 15 & 18,c wool at twenty cents, and other produce at corresponding figures, it looks as though the prices that prevailed before the war only were again going to rule. Now if people will only curb the extravagant habits contracted by them during the period of inflation through which we have passed, and will return to the common sense ideas of economy held by their fathers and mothers, they will be the gainers by the hard times which prevail. It is not so much a lack of work or low prices that causes the present depressed condition of affairs, as the extravagant ways that have been acquired by American people during the last twenty-five years. To keep up these expensive habits requires large sums of money, which cannot be easily earned now that everything is down to rock bottom prices.

French Conversation.

Prof. Etienne Lambert whose French classes are so successful in Oswego and Utica, will give a "Free Lecture" Wednesday, June, 24, at 4 p. m. at the parlors of the Lewis House elucidating how a mastery of French conversation can be acquired, almost instantaneously "without any grammar." The lecture will be preceded by French readings from Victor Hugo, etc., and will be followed by an experimental lesson on French sounds and idioms. Prof. Lambert's method is highly recommended by the metropolitan press, and his unique system must be seen to be appreciated. Our people of culture who would be French scholars, should attend by all means, as they will be amply repaid.

Wedding invitations are out announcing the marriage of Mr. Albert R. Ney of the firm of Ney & Allen, proprietors of the Boston Bazaar of this village, to Miss Hattie C. Morse of Higginsville, N. Y., the wedding to occur at the home of the bride's parents next Wednesday, at 2:30 p. m. Upon their arrival in Fulton they will at once commence housekeeping in Lower Oswego Falls where a cosy and neatly furnished home awaits them.

R. E. Phillips left last Monday for Saratoga Springs, to attend the seventh annual meeting of the New York State Pharmaceutical association, which convenes there June 16, 17 and 18. He represents the drug trade in Fulton and will assist in the discussion of all matters of importance pertaining to their interests. Mr. Phillips is the oldest and most experienced druggist in town, and is eminently capable of advancing the interests of the drug trade. From yesterday's Saratogian we learn that Mr. Phillips has been chosen secretary of the meeting.

We invite the attention of our readers to the letters published in another column from Mrs. J. G. Benedict and son with regard to the promptness of the Ætna Life Insurance company in paying to her the insurance policy of her late husband. This is one of the oldest and most reliable insurance companies in existence. This company paid $1,271,863.82 during the year of 1884 to holders of policies of its deceased members. Over half of the amount was secured by families who were wholly dependent upon it for support. Mr. B. F. Stahl, of Syracuse, the general agent, and D. VanAlstine, special agent, are in town at present.

There arrived in Oswego at 11:45 Friday, by special train, Sam Sloan, president of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Jay Gould, Percy R. Pyne, Sidney Dillon, Russell Sage, George Bliss, Gardner R. Colby, W. H. Appleton, General Superintendent Halstead of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and superintendents Reasoner and Niver of the same road. They were out on a tour of inspection. As the train was leaving for New York in the afternoon, a colored porter named Wickwire, who lives in New York, attempted to board it two blocks from the station. He missed his footing and fell under the wheels. His feet were badly crushed and parts of them had to be amputated. He was also cut about the head. By the direction of Sam Sloan he was taken to the city hospital. After a careful examination, amputation of both feet below the ankle, was found necessary.

A Common Sense Idea.

Farmers and other out door workers, have long suffered from the rapid wearing out of the soles of their Rubber Boots. Dirt and gravel when wet, offer the best possible tools for cutting and grading away the rubber sole, and to this destructive agency Rubber Boots are continually exposed, from the very nature of their uses. Some two years ago, however, the "CANDEE" Rubber Co. of New Haven, Conn., hit upon the idea of making their boot soles double thick in that part which undergoes the greatest amount of wear. By their invention the extra rubber is added [illegible] where it is needed, and nowhere else [illegible]

Marital.

Last Wednesday afternoon at the residence of Dr. D. E. Lake, occurred the marriage of his daughter Fannie, to Mr. Will Patterson of this village. The wedding was a very brilliant affair, a large number of guests from out of town being in attendance. The list of presents were elegant and valuable. The twain are spending a short time at Niagara Falls and New York, and upon their return will occupy the new residence being built by the groom on Oneida street. THE TIMES extends its best wishes for their future happiness.

Music in the Air.

It was after midnight and on Monday evening. We were lost in deep sleep and wholly oblivious of our surroundings or the workings of mankind. In our dreams we could hear sweet music which seemed to intoxicate and for a time lay in calm repose, but as the notes grew louder and more distinct, we, after repeated efforts, threw off the fetters of sleep, and came to a realization of the fact that we were surrounded by a chorus of many voices, which discoursed music that could not but enchant the listener. We kindly thank our friends for so delightful a serenade.

A Narrow Escape.

This morning as County Clerk Gardinier, District Attorney Mead and Clint Gardner of Fulton were crossing the bridge in a hurry to get through some business in time for the morning train they were stopped by the flagman at the crossing. The horse became frightened and Messrs Gardinier and Gardner jumped out and the latter gentleman was quite badly hurt. The horse dashed across the track just scraping clear of the train. It was a very narrow escape for the district attorney.—[Oswego Times Monday. Mr. Gardner received several bruises but was not seriously injured.

A Pleasant Gathering.

Edward Hanna, a former resident of this village, but now of Chicago, where he is attending a medical college, is making his grandfather, Andrew Hanna of Oneida street, a visit. Last evening at about nine o'clock the young aspirant to the medical profession was somewhat surprised when he found himself surrounded by about thirty of his friends. A cordial greeting followed amid laughing and the merry chatter of voices. Dancing and social intercourse was the order of the evening. An immense lay out of viands were done full justice to. The affair was in every way pleasant and agreeable and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The Carpenter Case.

There is no probability whatever that the Carpenter trial will take place until fall, after a prolonged effort on the part of District Attorney Mead, Governor Hill appointed an extraordinary term of court for his trial in May, but when the day arrived his counsel refused to go on with the trial which the prosecution was ready to do. Last week an effort was made by Carpenter's counsel to have the case tried in Pulaski, either at the present term or at an adjourned one in July. The District Attorney objects to trying the case in his immediate neighborhood, but offered to make another effort to get a special court called in Oswego next month, but learning that serious objection would be raised by the circuit judges in being asked to preside over a lengthy trial during the heated term, he abandoned the idea, and the case will doubtless take its natural course on the calendar.—[Fulton cor. to the Standard.

MRS. JULIA A. BENEDICT.

B. F. STAHL,

General Traveling Agent Ætna Life Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn.,

DEAR SIR—I desire to thank the "Old Ætna" for the prompt and satisfactory manner in which the claim of two thousand dollars caused by the death of my father has been paid. The promptness and liberality of the company in prepaying the claim without discount is more than satisfactory. Believing that the company is one of the best in which to insure, you will please write my application for a $5,000 policy in the Terminal Endowment plan, believing it to be the most attractive, comprehensive and desirable plan of insurance now offered to the public. Yours truly

Last Monday afternoon Fred Taylor was fishing in the river on the short level. When about opposite the sluiceway, his hook became entangled in something, which upon being drawn to the surface, proved to be a large fish net. He found several fish in it, he says, and two spoon hooks. A large number of people visited it while the boat was lying at the dock. It had evidently been set some time from its appearance.

Of all hideous monstrosities the scare crow takes the palm.

Just at this season the scare crow is in his prime. Throughout the country his headless trunk, or trunkless hat; his shapeless limbs or limbless shape, sways to and fro in the wind a terror to all evil doers of the feathered tribes.

But scare crows are not found in the farmer's fields alone. In city as well as in country; on railroad trains and country stages, everywhere there are men, youths and boys who would well pass muster for scare crows.

These are men, youths and boys who have neglected to buy their summer clothing at Kent & Miller's, 18 and 20 South Salina street, where the most elegant things for summer wear are being sold at lowest cash prices. Comfort in hot weather, warmth in cold weather and health in all weathers are the portion of those who avail themselves of the low prices at Kent & Miller 18 and 20 South Salina street.

Harper's Monthly.

Harper for July is a model number. Its frontispiece, "Pandora," from a painting by Church, represents her kneeling upon her fabled box, from which a multitude of evil spirits are escaping. A great wealth of illustrated articles make this number especially interesting. A new serial novel entitled "Indian Summer," by W. D. Howell is begun. "The City of Buffalo" covering nineteen pages of descriptive matter with its rich illustrations, possesses a local interest to many of our citizens, and will be read with interest. Gen. B. F. Inter-Academic Union.

The tenth annual Inter-Academic Literary Union, which will meet in Fulton July 1st and 2d, is already attracting considerable attention in the Schools throughout the State. Every year these meetings have grown in interest, having at each place received enthusiastic local support. Our teachers, school commissioners and townspeople are exerting themselves to make this tenth union equal to any former one. A large number of persons have already been gratuiously provided for. It is to be hoped that this village will not be behind other places in tendering ample hospitality to all who may desire to attend the exercises. There are 14 subjects of competition, besides essays, declamations and recitations. The music at the Opera House will be under the supervision of Postmaster Gilbert on Wednesday, (July 1st) and by John Bachus Thursday evening.

Hon. Charles E. Fitch, of the Board of Regents and editor of the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, will deliver the address at the Presbyterian church Thursday afternoon. The lecture will be free.

The three mile race last Friday evening between Fayette of Oswego and Burdick of Syracuse, was won by the latter.

A game of polo was played in the rink last Thursday evening between clubs from Phœnix and Fulton. It was won by the home team in three straight goals. Time, 10 minutes.

Police Court News.

Lewis Slavers, was recently found by Officer Poole in the stairway of the Salvation Army barracks, singing, "We shall wear a crown." He was taken before the Police Justice charged with being intoxicated and creating a disturbance. He now languishes in the jail at Oswego for the term of 17 days.

Officer Poole left yesterday morning for Buffalo, to bring back Fred Carvey of this village, who is wanted here for petty larceny. Several weeks ago, late one Saturday night, while Carvey was intoxicated, he stole an armful of rolls of shadecloth from the sidewalk in front of Williams' drug store. Apparently the only motive for the deed was pure cussedness, as the rolls were afterward found scattered along in the canal, where he had thrown them. For a long time he eluded the police. Recently Officer Poole heard he was in Buffalo and a telegram describing his appearance was sent to the chief of police of that city, who at once arrested him. He will be brought here and tried.

Tickets.

Reserved seat tickets, for the graduating exercises of Union School occurring Monday evening June 29, will be on sale at Phillips' drug store on Saturday of this week and thereafter till the day of the exhibition, at 10 cents each.

There are two or three candidates for Lieutenant Governor on the Republican ticket. Senator McCarthy heads the list, and is not only making considerable progress in Central New York, but expects to secure delegates from the city of New York. The settlers upon the Crow Creek reservation are petitioning the president to allow them to remain, on the ground that they have invested their all on the chance of the success of the robbery. When the President wants the advice of a senator or representative in appointment matters he is very free to ask it; but he is not fond of having such advice thrust upon him, and persons who are boring their congressmen to come here and get them a place ought to know this and remember that it is more apt to injure than to help their chances to insist that a congressman shall be too urgent in their behalf at the White House or in the departments.—[Washington Letter.

Information Regarding the New Time Table on N. Y., O. & W. R'wy.

The time-table of the New York, Ontario and Western R'y will go into effect on the 21st inst.

Among the principal changes will be the opening of the new ferry between Weehawken and the foot of Jay street, New York. The downtown station of this Company will be known as Jay street, and the uptown station as W. 42d street, and all trains will arrive and depart from New York from the above stations.

Train No. 1 will leave New York and run on about the present schedule time.

The Mountain Express will leave New York daily at 3:50 p. m., arriving at Ellenville 8:25 p. m., and Livingston Manor 9:10 p. m.; returning leave Livingston Manor at 6:05 a. m., and Ellenville 7:15 a. m., arriving in New York 10:40 a. m.

Train No. 5, Thousand Island express, will leave New York at 5:30 p. m., running on about the present time. Pullman Sleepers will be attached to this train, connecting at Central Square with the R. W. & O., and running through without change to Cape Vincent, where passengers will take the new palatial steamer St. Lawrence for a delightful ride of twenty-five miles through the Islands to the Bay, making all the landings.

Train No. 6, New York Express, with Pullman Sleepers attached, leaves Cape Vincent at 6 p. m., on arrival of St. Lawrence steamer, running through to New York about three hours later than the present table, arriving in New York 9:40 a.m. Connection is made at Suspension Bridge at 2 p. m., with the Grand Trunk and Michigan Central R.R., via the R. W. & O. for the New York Express.

Trains No. 3 and 4 on the Northern Division will run through between Norwich and Oswego daily.

This table will give Sullivan county people two trains to New York in the morning, and two trains from New York in the evening, a better train service between New York and the Mountain resorts than ever before. This convenient arrangement of trains will undoubtedly be appreciated, and result in a deservedly large and increased patronage.

Palermo.

PALERMO, June 15th.—Mrs. Eliza Hungerford was found dead in her bed on Friday morning last. She has been a resident of this town many years. She was the mother of Mrs. Wm. Sharp and Mrs. Mason Bartlett, aged 77 years.

Mrs. Lydia Getman on Saturday last had a horse in the pasture struck by lightning and killed.

Benson Ropeters of Vermillion was drowned on Thursday night in a pond at New Haven, on S. Wilmouth's farm. It is thought by many that he had a cramp or a fit. His age was twenty-five years.

School Commissioner Ludington made our school a visit on Friday last.

In planting Lima beans set the poles of a length of eight or ten feet, in the center of the hill before putting in the seed.

Celery seed is often sown too heavy. [illegible] ounce of seed is enough to sow under three 3x6 sashes, and will produce on an average 3,000 plants.

Strawberry plants that were neglected last fall should be mulched now, to keep weeds and grass from growing in the beds. New sawdust for mulching is objected to by some; others say it is good for that purpose; but one thing is certain—nothing is better than leaf mould.

Creameries Again.

One question pertaining to butter making threatens to become as hard to settle as the discussion on original sin. It is whether whole milk or cream alone should be churned. As in most things the truth lies between the two extremes. When the milk is immensely rich and the cream very heavy, it will do to churn the whole milk. Thick heavy cream churned alone does not produce so good butter as when some of the milk is added. The butter is not so bright and clear, but is apt to have a greasy, shiny look. On the other hand if the cream is thin and produced from a great quantity of milk then churn alone.

No great point is gained by threshing a gallon or so of water. When only a few cows are kept the cream jar should be stirred daily. A good farmer will always take care to have the fresh cows coming in in mid-winter, to make the butter come quickly and be of a bright yellow color. Butter from cows long in milk comes very slowly in winter.

Notes.

One hundred pounds of skim milk makes 6½ pounds of weight upon pigs.

The milk crop in England is now $150,000,000. This is more than the value of the wheat crop, and the disproportion increases yearly, as the tendency is to stock feeding rather than to grain growing.

Nothing indicates the prosperous and wise farmer more surely than the cows and dairy appliances. Fine cattle and a neat dairy—there will be a liberal, intelligent and money-making farmer. Mark it.

Good dairying fits admirably into mixed farming. There is a suitable return made to the land in the way of manure, and the waste in the manufacture of butter is a great help in the feeding of calves and pigs.

C. H. Lyon and wife, of the Dexter, Iowa, creamery, made last year 60,000 pounds of butter; and the prospect is good for increasing that amount this year.

Buttermilk is one of the most healthful of drinks. It is a true milk peptone. In a creamery near a town this would be a source of revenue.

Many creameries make 800 to 1,000 pounds of butter a day. The price they pay for cream varies in different localities. In some places it is 30 cents a gallon. The richness of the cream must be gauged by measurers.

Big Crop of Strawberries.

J. M. Smith, of Green Bay, Mich., well known as a successful horticulturist, is reported to have raised 3,751 quarts of Wilson strawberries on a fourth of an acre, or at the rate of 416 bushels per acre. He cultivated in matted rows two feet wide, with a space of two feet between. The plants were mulched for winter and early spring. A good covering of well-rotted manure 15 or 20 loads an acre, or 75 bushels of unleached ashes, were applied early in the season. All weeds were destroyed at whatever cost. As for watering when dry, one thorough wetting was found better than three sprinklings. But the Wilson is not the best strawberry in this enlightened age.

Cheese-Making in Switzerland.

The making of cheese is a very important occupation, and in some parts of Switzerland, the Valais, for instance, the riches of a man are estimated according to the number of cheeses he possesses. A strange custom in the Valais is to make a cheese when a child is born, which is left untouched during his lifetime, and is first cut into for the first time at his funeral feast. A rich man stores up wine as well as cheese for his own funeral, and when that event takes place a portion of this "dead wine" as it is called, [illegible] the mourners [illegible] goblet in their hand, [illegible] with it, and drink the [illegible] meeting with their [illegible]

[illegible] and he had [illegible] educated [illegible] birth and [illegible]. He visited the scene of his proposed labors and found, to his dismay, that the enterprise was already bankrupt, and that he was penniless, homeless and friendless in a strange land. He worked his way back to New York, and in midwinter found himself, without money or friends, in the great, busy metropolis. He did not stop to measure the obstacles in his path; he simply set out to find work. He would have preferred the pen, but he was willing to take shovel; and the shovel it was to be.

Passing down Fourth avenue on a snowy morning he found a crowd of men at work shoveling snow from the sidewalks about a well-known locality. He applied for a position in their ranks, got it, and went to work with a hearty good will, as if shoveling were his vocation. Not long after, one of the owners of the property, a many-millionaire passed along the street, saw the young man's face, was struck by its intelligence, and wondered what had brought him to such a pass. A day or two later his business took him to the same locality again and brought him face to face with the same man, still shoveling snow. He stopped, spoke to him, received a prompt and courteous answer, talked a few minutes for the sake of getting a few facts about his history, then asked the young man to call at his office. That night the shovel era ended, and the next day at the appointed time the young man was closeted with the millionaire. In one of the latter's many enterprises there was a vacant place, and the young man who was willing to shovel got it. It was a small place at a small salary, but he more than filled it. He filled it so well, indeed, that in a few months he was promoted, and at the end of three years he was at the head of the enterprise, at a large salary. He is there to-day, with the certainty that, if he lives, he will eventually fill a position second in importance to none in the field in which he is working. The story is all told in three words—willing to shovel.—[Christian Union.

An Exceptional Reporter.

The Baltimore American has the swell reporter of this country. He is a young man, about thirty years of age. There is not the slightest necessity for his doing any work, as not only is his father a millionaire, but he has a fortune in his own name which yields a large revenue. Nevertheless, the young man is so passionately devoted to journalism that he entered the service of the American as a minor reporter in order to master all the details of the business. He has now been a reporter a good many years and loves his work as much as ever. He gets a good salary from the paper but spends twice as much every week. When he goes out on an assignment he uses his own coupe, or hires a cab, and if he does not wish to return to the newspaper office he will telegraph all his matter at his own expense. This journalistic phenomenon travels like a lord. He always stops at the best hotels, and will take two sections of a sleeping car when he can get them. As for clothes he has infinite variety, and if ever a special correspondent had a suit for every day in the month, this enthusiast has one for every day in the year. He cares nothing for the salary, but works to made his mark, and is one of the best newspaper men in the country. He says that one of these days he will have a newspaper of his own, which he will devote himself to. Writing is his chief amusement. When he is not writing for his paper he is composing a book, and indulges in the luxury of a stenographer. He occupies a large suite of rooms in a flat, and they are furnished like those of a prince.—[Pittsburg Dispatch.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

To rid the room of ants, sprinkle red pepper where they are seen; pulverized cloves will drive them away also.

A tablespoonful of powdered alum, sprinkled into a hogshead of water and stirred will precipitate to the bottom all the impure particles.

To drive water bugs and roaches from a house, blow Persian insect powder freely about the places they frequent. It destroys them or drives them away.

A sure test for eggs is the following: Dissolve one ounce of salt in ten ounces of water and put the eggs in. Good eggs will sink and bad ones will float.

To remove grease spots, apply buckwheat flour at night, and you will be delighted to find in the morning the spots have totally disappeared without injury to the texture or color of the choicest fabric.

Lace coverlets and pillow covers should not be rinsed in "blue water" when washed, but dipped in very weak, cold coffee. They should be made very wet, wrung very dry in a pattern wringer and dried with the greatest quickness.

If any one wants a cloth steaming hot to relieve neuralgia or pains, do not blister your hands by wringing out of hot water. Wring the cloth out of cold or warm water and lay it in an empty tin pan or wash basin, set the dish on a hot stove; in three or five minutes the cloth will be as hot as the patient can bear it.

Tough.

When it comes to toughness, Texas beef is entitled to the blue ribbon. The average Texas landlord usually manages to secure the toughest beef in the market.

"Is there a carpet beating establishment near here?" asked a newly arrived [illegible] Austin hotel. [illegible]

Something For the Baby.

What a terrible affliction about the house is a cross, crying baby! A young man on the very edge of matrimony might easily be frightened from his purpose by having too much of that sort of music at the homes of his married friends. Yet babies cry commonly only when they are sick. One teaspoonful of Parkers Tonic given the little one, will bring rest and sleep to the baby and all in the house. Only 50 cents, at druggists. 1m1

CURE FOR PILES.

Piles are frequently proceeded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture like prespiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and affecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, O. Told by M. M. Williams. 29tf

Night Work.

The habit of writing and reading late in the day and far into the night, "for the sake of quiet," is one of the most mischievous to which a man of mind can addict himself. The feeling of tranquility which comes over the busy and active man about eleven o'clock ought not to be regarded as an incentive to work. It is, in fact, the effect of a lowering of vitality consequent on the exhaustion of the physical senses. Nature wants and calls for physiological rest. Instead of complying with her reasonable demand, the night-worker hails the "feeling" of mental quiescence, mistakes it for clearness and acuteness, and whips the jaded organism with the will until it goes on working. What is the result? Immediately, the accomplishment of a task fairly well, but not half so well as if it had been performed with the vigor of a fresh brain working in health from proper sleep. Remotely, or later on, comes the penalty to be paid for unnatural exertion—that is, energy wrung from exhausted or weary nerve-centres under pressure. This penalty takes the form of "nervousness" perhaps sleeplessness, almost certainly some loss or depreciation of function in one or more of the great organs concerned in nutrition. To relieve these maladies, springing from this unexpected cause, the brain-worker very likely has recourse to the use of stimulants—possibly alcholic, or it may be simply tea or coffee. The sequel needs not to be followed. Night work during student life and in after years is the fruitful cause of much unexplained, though by no means inexplicable, suffering for which it is difficult, if not impossible to find a remedy. Surely morning is the time for work, when the body is rested, the brain relieved from its tension and mind power at its best.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March 23, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly recommended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me. I was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

"[illegible] Show Virtue Her Own Features, Scorn Her Own Image."

FULTON, OSWEGO COUNTY, N. Y., WEDNESDAY JUNE 24, 1885.

VOLUME [illegible]

[illegible] Wife.

"It's the strangest thing that ever I knew,
And the most provoking 'twixt me and you,
That a woman who's got a man like me,
A good provider and steady and free
With all her folks with funds salted down,
And as fine a house as any in town,
To be lamenting 'cause one child in ten
Ain't quite as good as he might have been.

"It's a pretty good showing, it seems to me,
That only a tenth of the whole should be
A little off color, and that's what I say
To their mother twenty times a day.
But I can't make her see it in that light,
And she listens and waits night after night,
For the sound of his step, till I grow so wild
That I almost curse both mother and child.

"[illegible] ought to live for others you know,
And let the tormenting vagabond go
And follow his ways and take the pain;
But I turn him out and she calls him again.
This makes a hardness between her and me,
And the worst of it is, the children agree
That I'm in the right. You'd pity her then;
Such times I think I'm the meanest of men.

"I've argued and scolded and coaxed without end;
Her answer is always: 'My boy has one friend
As long as I live, and your charge is untrue
That my heart holds no equal love for you
And all the rest. But the one gone astray
Needs me the most, and you'll find 'tis the way
Of all mothers to hold close to the one
Who hurts her the most. So love's work is done.

"Now what can I say to such words as those?
I'm not convinced, as the history shows,
But I often wonder which one is right,
As I hear her light step night after night,
Here and there to the window and door,
As she waits with a heart that is heavy and sore,
I wish the boy dead, while she gives her life
To save him from sin. That's husband and wife."

A BALD-HEADED BABY.

Briefly: The woman I loved was unquestionably pre-ordained to be my wife, but it took me six months to convince her of it, and even then the arguments were confidential, and carried on in spite of fathers, mothers, aunts and sisters, on both sides of the secret alliance.

Finally, I carried her off suddenly, married her hurriedly, and we tumbled hastily into a flat to consider it slowly.

I remember I held her in my arms for an hour or two in the dark—she laughing and crying, and I playing the mixed part of the bravo and the consoler, but afraid to get up and light the gas, for fear I should dispel some part of the illusion.

I had won her by a hair, so I squeezed her tight to make sure it was the prize I had been after.

Oh, you fellows who court a girl four or five years, have no idea of the luxury, the ecstatic enjoyment, of such a coup de main! Long before you have married your woman, you have grown accustomed to your right of proprietorship. Everybody has tacitly acknowledged it by keeping out of your way. The edge of possession has been dulled by slow familiarity. You have talked over all the prosiac details of the important event, fixing even the color of the chair-linings; and the bridal ceremony is only an incident in a series of circumstances that you have arranged with the full formality of an undertaker. You dissipate all the illusion of the sex by sitting up with your intended till 12 o'clock discussing rents and servants. You stalk prosiacally into the mysteries of womanhood, and you know all about the washing bills, the price of nursing-bottles, and the reputation of the nearest doctor long before the crises arrives.

This is your rational-humor wooer.

Give me the brute that I was, if the thing is to be rehearsed. Let me leap out of the purgatory of doubts into the paradise of posession. Let me find myself, after years of luxuriant imaginings, voluptuous fancies, strange doubts and misgivings, and a rude simplicity that heightened and exaggerated all the mysteries of the sex—let me suddenly find myself with my arms full of the mystery; its whelming bodice throbbing against my coat; its white arms around my neck, the whole world on the other side of the door saying; "By heavens, it shall not be," and I idiotically kissing the part in her hair, saying: "By heavens, it is!"

Now you know who the baby of this story is.

The manly brute who, so to speak, bursts into matrimony in this burglarious manner, undergoes several very curious transformations.

For the first six months he swell about with the air of a conqueror, and speaks of "my wife" as if she were a banner wrung from the enemy.

His chief concern is to keep himself from finding out how soft and sentimental he is. His great blindness will not let him see that marrying knocked some of the brutality out of him, and that he is now developing into a responsible human being.

During the next six months he grows [illegible] restless. He remembers the [illegible] and sharp pleasure of capture, and [illegible] possession does not renew it.

This is the last flare of the original brute in him. In his reckless moments of contemplation he wonders if, after [illegible] polygamous natures were not [illegible] from a purely physiological point of view, it would be better if a [illegible] married every year.

[illegible] months I found [illegible] that the dark- [illegible] the same elec- [illegible] when it swept [illegible]

[illegible] think she frizzed [illegible]

[illegible]

It flashed upon me suddenly that she might die. I hadn't thought of this before. What business had my property to die?

I turned about and ran home as fast as I could, for I thought I'd stop the dying nonsense, as a husband should.

When I got to my door and rang the bell, an old woman came to the door, opened it cautiously, put her finger to her lips and beckoned to me mysteriously.

I followed her into an unoccupied room.

"She's been took," said the old woman.

"Took!" I shouted. "Merciful heavens!—took where?"

She blinked at me. "She's took to bed."

"Sick!" I gasped. Then my premonition was right. She was going to die!

The old woman stood with her back to the door.

"You must stay here," she said. "I'll go up and see. Wait a moment."

I think I was about to jump over her head, when she turned round with an awful official severity, and said:

"Do you want to kill her?"

"No," I answered submissively.

All at once I got a new view of myself. I, who had begun to think I was a little weary of married life, was maddened at the mere possibility of losing her.

The fact is, as passion had withered, a tender regard, a holy, reverential love had been unobserved growing up in its place.

There are two occasions in a household when the head thereof feels his utter insignificance. On both of thes occasions a dread foreign element stalks grimly into his sanctuary, lays its old bonnet on the hall stand, hangs its reticule up on the hat-rack, looks at him icily, and takes silent posession of the place. Protests are in vain in the presence of that dire minister. Authority is of no avail, for it has the insignia of the invincible necessity under its wrinkled forehead; and calmly flourishes the most potent of all authority, that of precedent.

A man instinctively knows when this methodical monster assumes control of his house, that one or two dread events is about to follow—life or death.

But if he is—as I was—just one of the animal kingdom, and hardly yet a full fledged man, he will be very apt to mistake one event for the other.

He only knows he is in dreadful suspense. That the house is hushed, that somebody is moving about in the next room on tip-toe, that a subtle odor of drugs pervades the air. A fantastic dread takes possession of him, that these unusual and significant circumstances are only the preliminaries of others in the same chain. That presently a dread hush will fall over everything; that he will meet the doctor and shake hands with him solemnly, and that personage will go away hurriedly, and another more dreaded will come. Then there will be a pungent smell of varnish in the house, and a shuffle of feet. Then the windows will be open and the blinds pulled down—and—what then?

Does not the very strenousness of the danger breed this dread in the brain? Do others not flash through the mind—that picture of a group, black and silent, over the grave, and a horrible lowering of all that one loves into the clay, with the attendant miseries of desolation and unutterable solitude—as those walk away homeward, talking of their life affairs, that have not been disturbed by this blast that has withered your heart forever?

For the first time in his life, and just as his soul has stretched out and taken root, comes to this man this dread phantom of the possible, and he lifts his fist to heaven, and his undisciplined nature rebels.

I called this a new view of myself. It was. For the first time I saw clearly how dear my wife was to me. For the first time I became aware of my own capacity for suffering.

I remember that the nurse appeared suddenly and softly in the room, like a wraith, and with an unchanged expression of solemnity, jerked her head, and said, 'I could see her now.'

To me it was as if she had said: 'All is over, wretch, not even your presence can hurt her.'

I believe I rushed headlong to know the worst. The air that I breathed seemed to have crape in it. The passages were dark. I stumbled, and must have made a great deal of noise. All at once I was in a lighted room, white curtains, white walls, snowy counterpanes and a white face with a new pensive beauty on it. I fell down by the bedside, and got my arms around her. My voracious love seemed to please her. I pressed her dear face close to mine, and a drop rolled down from my eye upon her cheek. As it touched her, she kissed me, and said in a thin voice, but full of the deep music of joy:

"You do love me, don't you?"

I don't know what I said, but I believe it was half apologetic—about my not knowing and making a mistake, but now that there was a baby, of course—

She interrupted me. "There always was," said she.

"Always was!" I repeated.

"Yes, now there's two of 'em."

I saw something very red, with a frizzy head. That was one.

"Two? You don't say so! Where's the other?"

"Here," said she, pulling me down with one arm, and kissing me again on [illegible]

[illegible]

One of the first things I discovered now was that a baby is a bridge.

For a whole year my family altar had been surrounded by an impassible chasm. I had two sets of relations in the world, and I believe they had come to the edge of the abyss, in the dark, and scowled across at me and mine.

Now, to my amazement, I found that the little pink creature I had at home could stretch its tiny arms across, and that mother-in-law and aunts could walk over on them.

When a baby comes into such a household, it draws off about one-third of the mother's consideration. The first one to notice it is the father.

Consequently one of the immediate results of a baby is a sort of inhuman jealousy, of which he is heartily ashamed and tries to hide, but which his wife unerringly detects, and good-naturedly forgives. It's so natural, she says, for one baby to be jealous of another.

Still it is impossible to hate it.

I tried my best for a long time to despise it. I endeavored to believe that it broke my rest. That it was a nuisance. And I tried to dream at night of boarding it out in the country, where there were fine cows and wet nurses on the thousand hills, and no diphtheria. But, instead, I dreamed that somebody was pelting me with ripe, warm peaches, out of the sun, and woke up to find its fists in my face.

I think it reigned a year or two. Then it began to change into she. I first noticed this in a strong tendency to nurse the brass-headed poker, and to put the prayer-book to bed in the cradle of my cigar box. Further evidence was furnished by the discovery of a growing confidence between the mother and daughter upon matters of which I was profoundly ignorant. Being mysterious I knew she must be a girl.

Now let me run rapidly over the events of the next fifteen years for I am chiefly anxious to show you how love, to put it plainly, brings a man first under subjection by means of selfishness, and how marriage stamps it all out of him.

He first wins a woman. Then she and circumstances conquer him. One of the early and peculiar amusements of the married pair is to set up the baby and trace out themselves in the picture. Father and mother usually get mixed up in the most absurd manner in young veins. First a drop of brute, then a corpuscle of angel. Eeybrows—him to a hair; tips of the ears—her's. "Turns her left foot in like you do, my dear, and then that lock on the right temple—"

The fun of it is that nobody else can see these things at all.

For the goddess of connubiality presents to her votaries, a magic pair of spectacles, warranted to see ourselves as no others see us.

Well, I spent fifteen years in assiduously winding myself about that girl. She was my pupil, my companion, my alter ego. She got so that she could understand me before I spoke. In her were the few strong points of my character, all softened, sharpened and refined by the mother's influence.

A man can do a great deal of winding in fifteen years. He thinks he fastens his joys securely when he, spider-like, enmeshes this golden cocoon.

But one day it bursts open, and something flies away.

It takes your whole fifteen years with it like a week.

There is no use guarding your sanctuary night and day.

Paternal vigilance is only the price of liberty. When you have sentineled, locked, barricaded, walled up the jewel, somebody who never spent ten minutes in guarding it, who has no knowledge of its priceless value, who is utterly unlike it in every respect, will come in like a conqueror, and snatch it from you.

Then, when you rise in your wrath, you will find that all the bonds of fifteen years are on your own limbs. All you have done to keep your angel near your heart is to give it wings.

And its mother will look at you demurely, and tell you that all this grand protecting spirit is—

What?

Selfishness.

And that women cease to be babies when they cease to be infants.

In short, to be a man, you must let somebody else have his way.

A man has to go through all these crises in order to learn the moral lesson of life. A woman carries the divine tablets in her system.

She knows at twelve that she is set apart to bear and forbear.

If she is a thorough woman, she does both to the end with a smile on her face, that does not leave her even when we have laid her out, but which mocks even the chisel of death, with a beauty that belongs not to life so much as to immortality.

One day a dapper fellow came to me and formally asked permission to rob me.

The thief had the effrontery to look me squarely in the face. He had taken a hasty inventory of my riches, he said, and had found them worth carrying off.

Now mark what a change is wrought in a man by sixteen or eighteen years of married life. Indignation was seething in my soul. But I was now a humanized father. So I smiled and magnanimously told him to take all I had and do what he liked with it, and he needn't think of giving me any security that he wouldn't abuse it.

I believe my wife got as much satisfaction out of this bereavement as she formerly got out of the infant.

[illegible]

[illegible] sole possession of it, and he proposed to put his sign across its fair portion.

Well, the time came. One morning the thing was done. A coach drove up. I stood in the hall and saw him plunder me. I took my accumulated wealth down the front steps—the last flash of my jewel reached me just before he slammed the carriage door. It seemed preternaturally radiant, but I suppose it was the water in my eyes. There was a sound of wheels growing less and less. Then a new silence and a vacancy forever.

I went in and sat down before the grate fire. There was the brass headed poker that she had nursed. There was the very hook where her little stockings had hung on the Christmas eves. I felt lonesome.

Then somebody sat down beside me in the old way, and said, woooingly:

"It reminds you of your young and vigorous days, John?"

"No," I said, "it reminds me of my helpless old lunacy."

"Don't" she continued sweetly; "you're not old." Here she got her arm around me, and patted me lovingly on the head. "You're not old. Babies never get old."

"Don't call me a baby," I said gruffly, "because I have a human being's weakness."

"Oh, I don't" said she. "It wasn't the weakness that reminded me of a baby. It was the top of your head Look in the glass, dear, and see for yourself.

Let The Girls Romp.

Most mothers have a dread of romps; so they lecture the girls daily on the proprieties and exhort them to be little ladies. They like to see them very quiet and gentle and as prim as possible. The lot of such children is rather pitiable, for they are deprived of the fun and frolic which they are entitled to. Children—boys and girls—must have exercise to keep them healthy. Deprive them of it, and they will fade away like flowers without sunshine. Running, racing, climbing, skipping,—these are things that strengthen the muscles, expand the chest and build up the nerves. The mild dose of exercise taken in the nursery with calisthenics or gymnastics will not invigorate the system like a good romp in the open air. Mothers, therefore, who counsel their little girls to play very quietly make a mistake. Better the laughing, rosy-cheeked, romping girls than the pale lily-faced one, who is called every inch a lady. The latter rarly ever breakes things, or tears her dresses, or tries her mother's patience, as the former does; but after all, what does the tearing and breaking amount to? It is not a wise policy to put an old head on young shoulders. Childhood is a time for childish pranks and play. The girls will grow into womanhood soon enough. Let them be children as long as they can. Give them plenty of fresh air and sunlight, and let them romp as much as they please. By all means give us hearty, healthy, romping girls, rather than pale-faced little ladies condemned from their very cradles to nervousness, headache and similar ailments.

The Only Fighting Apostle.

It is well known that the late Elias Howe, Jr., the inventor of the sewing machine, not only enlisted as a common soldier in the ranks of the Seventeenth Connecticut regiment, carried a musket and did full military duty during the war, but at a certain juncture when national finances were at a low ebb, he paid solders of the regiment their wages for three months out of his own pocket. Relative to this incident, P. T. Barnum the other day told the following story, never before published:

While Mr. Howe was counting out the money referred to, a stranger who was clergyman entered the tent and said he had heard of Mr. Howe's liberality and had called to ask him to contribute toward building a church for his congregation.

"Church, church", said Mr. Howe, without looking up from the bills which he was counting. "Building churches in war times when so much is needed to save our country! What church is it?"

"St. Peter's, church." replied the clergyman.

"Oh St. Peter's church," said Mr. Howe: "Well, St. Peter was the only fighting apostle—he cut the man's ear off. I'll go $500 on St. Peter, but I am spending most of my money on saltpetre now."—[New York Letter.

H. C. Geisler wishes to make an assertion, which he can back with a positive guarantee. It is all about Acker's blood Elixir. He claims for it superior merits over all other remedies of its kind, and guarantees for it a positive and sure cure for rheumatism, syphillis, and all blood disorders. It frees the skin from spots and disease and leaves the complexion clear. Ask him about it.

Sensible Advice.

A physician writes to young men as follows: "My profession has thrown me among women of all classes, and my experience teaches me that Heaven never gave man a better proof of his love than to place woman here with him. My advice is: Go and propose to the most sensible girl you know. If she accepts you, tell her how much your income is, and from what source derived; and tell her you will divide the last shilling with her, and that you will love her with all your heart into the bargain. And then keep your promise. My word for it, she will [illegible] your happiness, and to your last hour you will regret that you did not marry [illegible]

Building up a Hay-Stack.

The great point to be secured in stacking hay is, to keep the center the highest. Is this is done, water can not penetrate into the stack, but will find its way to the outside under the most unfavorable circumstances. If, on the other hand, the center is hollow, the water must drain into the center, and so ruin the stack. An excellent way to build a stack is to set a tall sapling firmly in the ground, with a foundation of rails around it; then begin at the center, and place the hay about the pole, gradually spreading, until the edge of the base is reached. Continue building up the stack, the highest in the center around the pole, the builder standing in the center so as to tread the hay firmly there. As the stack settles, the outside sinks more than the center, and helps to make the stack better. The top of the stack is finished by fastening a covering of hay to the pole, with hay bands wound firmly around it. A stack so made will not leak, and even clover hay may be safely stacked in this manner, because the water must make its way to the outside by the force of gravity, and escape there by dropping to the ground clear of the stack.—[American Agriculturalist for July.

"Certainly, madam," politely replied tramp, attacking the dinner with both hands, "but will pardon me, I trust, if I venture to correct your English."

"My what?"

"Your English. Some modern authorities claim that grammer is played out. I know better. The word 'saw' is a verb in this case singular number and imperfect tense. The court charged, that if the jury found this to be the fact, such contracts were gambling contracts, and the defendant must be acquitted, and also took occasion to remark that the jury must have observed as he has "that bucket shops were the crying evil of the day and that dismay invariably followed in the pathway of margin dealing." We believe this to be a subject to which the press of this county should give more attention and should take every opportunity to quelch and discourage this growing evil, this illegitimate business, in which so many of our young, and even older men, are hopelessly ruined. There is scarcely a town of a few thousand inhabitants that does not find itself possessed with one of these nefarious institutions which are ever ready to entice and beguile the weak. Every day we read of some poor victim who has ruined himself and brought poverty upon his family through the so called "bucket shops." Away with them, we say.

THE question of imported rags looms up with considerable seriousness. The consul at Naples sends warnings for the proper authorities to be on the outlook for rags from infected Spanish places. The surgeon general recommends that no rags shall be permitted to land at ports where there are no local health or quarantine officers; but that rag-laden vessels be required to go to the nearest port where proper sanitary regulations can be enforced. This is wise. It will be wiser if it is seen to that the sanitary regulations are really enforced. No end of disease germs can be imported in rags of all descriptions.—[Rome Sentinel.

CONGRESSMAN Randall, of Pennsylvania, is authority for the statement that the leaders of the warring factions in the Democratic party of the state have harmonized their differences. "There ought to be and there will be unity among the Pennsylvania Democrats," said Mr. Randall, "upon the basis, so far as the patronage is concerned, of putting the very best men within reach into office. The qualifications for appointment will be primarily integrity and capacity to perform the duties required in various positions. The purpose of the administration to give the offices only to the best men, the leaders as well as the rank and file of the party, I heartily commend. The Pennsylvania Democrats, as far as I know, are, to a man, regardless of past differences, entirely in sympathy with the administration.'

The millers of Honeoye have been awarded $95,485 as damages by reason of the drawing from Hemlock and Canadice lakes of 9,000,000 gallons of water daily for the city of Rochester. The millers demanded $205,000.

A fire broke out in the lumber yard of Lamberton & Blodget, Rochester, Friday night, and caused a loss of $10,000. Six horses were burned. A tramp named James Halstead was arrested on suspicion of starting the fire.

New York City is experimenting, and with great success, in hauling around her fire engines, and flushing the dirty streets and yards with sea water. The cleansing effect of the practice is so marked as to encourage its continuance all summer.

The excursion steamer Long Branch, with 1,300 excursionists was disabled near Peekskill, on the Hudson, Saturday, during a heavy wind storm. Many of the passengers were conveyed to the shore in small boats and the rest were carried to Peekskill by the steamer Pioneer, where they took the train for New York.

A fire at Ontario, N. Y., originating in a barn of the Clark House, Sunday, destroyed the barn and hotel, several stores, the Furman House and barn, a meat market, a saloon, the postoffice, two millinery stores, Richmond's wagon shop and several dwellings. The fire was evidently of incendiary origin.

Eighty-four buildings have been erected in the village of Carthage since the fire at an estimated cost of $250,000. It is evident that one conflagration does not destroy the energy of Carthage citizens. We regret that Gov. Hill did not allow the appropriation for a public school.

South Scriba.

SOUTH SCRIBA, June 23.—Mrs. Electa Coe is convalescent.

Mr. Daniel Dubois is ill with congestion of the lungs, and but little hopes are entertained for his recovery. He is nineiy years of age.

Lucas Porter fell while at work in his barn last week, and fractured his shoulder. Dr. Phelps attends him. Report says he is quite comfortable.

Angeline Bartlett, who has been home from the insane asylum at Mexico, a few weeks was returned one day last week. Her insanity is caused by excessive use of tea and tobacco. When from under restraint she persisted in its use until her mind failed again. Q.

South Hannibal.

SOUTH HANNIBAL, June 23.—The festival held at the Baptist church last Friday night was well attended. The receipts were over $30.

John Barlow is the lucky man now. It is a daughter and just in time to help in strawberrying.

Mr. Otis Ingalls from near Weedsport was the guest of Wm. Swift Thursday and Friday of last week.

South Hannibal now has a paint shop.

Literary Notes.

A serial story, for business boys, "How the Middies Set Up Shop," by Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, has succeeded Charles Egbert Craddock's "Down the Ravine" in Wide Awake. Margaret Sidney at the same time contributes a serial for business girls, entitled "A New Departure."

Rose Kingsley, who is one of the choicest of English writers, has a new book, which is to have fine original illustrations, and reproductions of rare engravings, in the press of D. Lothrop & Co. entitled "The Children of Westminster Abbey."

Dr. Peabody, so long the revered and beloved college pastor at Harvard, is enjoying a hale old age in literary pursuits. His "Baccalaureate Sermons" recently published by D. Lothrop & Co., is having a remarkable sale.

Both Rose Kingsley and Mrs. Margaret J. Preston have contributions in the forthcoming July Wide Awake relative to the famous old Kenilworth Castle.

One of the first appearances of the handsome new seal just designed for the Department of State at Washington appears in a fine facsimile in gold on the back of "How We Are Governed," one of Lothrop's latest publications.

The case of Lettie Martin, of North Scriba, against ex-Supervisor Coe, of Oswego county, before Justice Kennedy, of Pulaski, was concluded on Wednesday, the jury giving the plaintiff a verdict for $2,000. The plaintiff, who is 16 years old, charged Coe with assault and seduction.

O. M. Baker, of Oswego, was arrested on Saturday, charged with administering [illegible] his wife. On Wednesday [illegible]

These races will be in length 2, 3, 3½, 4 and 5, miles each, and all with a turn unless otherwise agreed upon. Each race will be rowed for $500 a side with the privilege of increasing the stakes. The dates of the races are Aug. 8, Aug. 22, Sept. 5, Sept. 19, Oct. 3.

Mr. Conkling's income from his profession is reported to be in the neighborhood of $75,000 per annum. Under the circumstances this is an exceedingly flattering recognition of his abilities as a lawyer. Two years ago, when he resumed practice, he was, comparatively speaking, a poor man. If his good health continues and his good habits are not forsaken he must soon become a rich one. The professional income of his leading rival, the Hon. William Maxwell Evarts, is estimated at a little over $100,000, but unlike the ex-Senator, Mr. Evarts has never permitted his public duties to interfere with his private interests. It is a pity that Mr. Conkling is getting too fat to thoroughly enjoy his good fortune.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

While the 9 year old daughter of R. E. Sansom, a farmer of Mannsville, Jefferson county, was in a field, Saturdao, gathering strawberries, a stranger came along and seeing that she was alone, committed a criminal assault on her. She was able to reach home but in a critical condition. Everybody at once turned out in search of the offender. Fnally a man named Briggs, a farm hand, who has been working near Pierrepont Manor, was arrested on suspicion and identified by the girl as her assailant. There was talk of lynching and a rope was secured, but Briggs confessed his guilt and was taken to jail.—[Utica Herald.

Unclaimed Letters.

The following letters remain uncalled for in the post office at Fulton, Oswego county, N. Y., on June 24, 1885:

Chas. E. Pratt, W. J. Pratt, M. B. Barrett, Cora Wilder, Miss Lillian Fisher, [illegible]

[illegible] New York harbor will be graced by the most magnificent colossal statue the world has ever seen.

"Liberty Enlightening the World!" What a priceless blessing personal liberty is. It is the shrine at which people, ground under the heel of tyranny in the older worlds, worship with a fervency that Americans can scarcely realize; it is a principle for which Nihilists willingly die the death of dogs; and fit and proper is it that at the very entrance of the Bay of New York this emblematic statue should flash a welcome to the world.

The press is entitled to the credit of this achievement. Mr. Philip Beers, who has been making a circuit of the country on behalf of the Pedestal fund, says that the fund will certainly be raised as the World does not know the word fail.

Mr. Beers says he has found the most pronounced generosity among those of foreign birth. They seem more appreciative of liberty than do our native born. Moreover, among some a strange prejudice seems to exist.

"Prejudice? In what particular?"

"I have found that however meritorious a thing may be, thousands of people will inevitably be prejudiced against it. I have spent most of my life on the road and I know the American people 'like a book.' In 1879 a personal misfortune illustrated this prevailing prejudice. I was very ill, had suffered for several years with headache, fickle appetite, dreadful backache, cramps, hot head, cold hands and feet and a general break down of the system. I dragged myself back to New York, seeking the best professional treatment. It so happens that among my relatives is a distinguished physician who upbraided me roundly for preaching so much about my own case. Finally, with some spirit, I remarked to him:

"'Sir, you know that much of your professional wisdom is pretense. You are controlled by prejudice. You cannot reach a case like mine and you know it, can you?'"

"I had him; and he finally conceded the point, for it was bright's disease of the kidneys which had prostrated me, and the school-men admit they cannot cure it. Having cured myself, however, in 1879, and not having seen a sick day since, my relative finally admitted that Warner's safe cure, which accomplished this result, was really a wonderful preparation. Had President Rutter, of the Central-Hudson used it, I am certain he would be alive to-day, for he could not have been in a worse condition than I was."

"I have found similar prejudices among all classes concerning even so laudable a scheme as this pedestal fund."

Mr. Beers's experience and the recent death of President Rutter, of the Central-Hudson railroad, of an extreme kidney disorder, proves that the physicians have no real power over such diseases, and indicates the only course one should pursue if, as the late Dr. Willard Parker says, headache, sickness of the stomache, dropsical swellings back ache, dark and offensive fluids, prematurely impaired eyesight, loss of strength and energy occur, for they unmistakably indicate a fatal result, if not promptly arrested.

"Yes, sir-ee, every cent needed for the pedestal will be raised. Of course it will be a great triumph for the World, but would it not have been an eternal disgrace had our people failed to provide for this pedestal?"

Cheese Market.

(FROM THE UTICA HERALD.)

AT UTICA June 22.

The sales to-day are 5,000 boxes less than a year ago, and 1,000 less than two years ago This shortage has been going on all this spring, yet every week there is a surplus in New York, and shippers snap their finger at the facts. All the same, the time may come when they will be more anxious to get cheese than they are now. The high price and scarcity of hay during the winter brought the cows in in poor condition last spring, and made a poor flow of milk which no amount of good pasturage will bring up. Quite a number of factory-men held back one or two days' cheese, in the belief that the market would be no worse next week. There was some competition for the best lots to-day, and they went somewhat higher than was expected. The cheese is said to be very fine, our makers having taken unusual pains with it since grass cheese began to be made. Small factories will ship off to June 1 or 2, while the larger ones will be off to June 5 and 6. Transactions were as follows: 5 lots, 500 boxes, at 6¼c.; 56 lots, 5,753 boxes, at 6½c.; 63 boxes at 6⅝c.; 15 lots, 1,746 boxes, at 6⅝c.; 12 lots, 2,530 boxes, at 6¾c.; Sales 10,601 boxes; commissions, 952 boxes; total 11,553 boxes. Ruling price 6½c. Transactions one year ago, 16,457 boxes at 9c.; two years, 12,509 boxes at 9¾c. In 1879 the transactions of corresponding day were 15,643 boxes at an average of 5½c. We shall hardly get down so low as that this year.

LITTLE FALLS, June 22.

Those who predicted that prices were overdrawn last week were prominent with their "I told you so." Buyers have no one to blame but themselves for the prices paid then, and they have had to suffer pretty badly for it. Factorymen would have been as well satisfied with a less price, but in the strife of an excited market like that of last week, men often lose their heads. Trade to-day has been active and buyers were eager to secure cheese, altho' prices are about one cent lower than a week ago. The bulls and bears had a hot strife which finally settled itself. Cheese is now closed out to June 1, or perhaps a little later, salesmen keeping stocks closed out as nearly as can safely be done. Some sold lighter than their usual quantities to-day. Transactions are:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
9	520	6 cts
22	1,213	6¼ cts
45	3,423	6½ cts
20	1,620	6¾ cts
11	720	Com.
2	126	p. t.
109	7,630
Farm Dairy	936
Total	8,566

AT FULTON.

The few who did not sell their cheese last week but held over for a better price, were completely dazed when they learned that cheese had taken a big drop. The sale was very small Monday night. Twenty-five factories were represented at this market with bout 2,000 boxes of cheese. Of this number about 500 were sold for 6½c., and 500 sold on commission, the balance being held over.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 10 Dexter St.
DR. J. A. SHERMAN—Dear Friend: I am sorry, Doctor, you have left Boston. Persons continue to come to my house to inquire respecting you, while many others write me. Many who left me said they would surely seek your aid. Your success has been wonderful, and I am quite sure without a parallel. To my surpise my large Hernia appears to be perfectly healed. I did not expect it at the age of 79. After receiving your treatment I was relieved from suffering which was fast taking my life. I have no idea I should be living had you not taken my case in hand. I weigh now 170 pounds, over thirty pounds more than then. I think you must receive a great amount of happiness from the relief given and gratitude rendered.
You owe it to my son in Boston, who has known many of your patients before and after healing, that I applied to you. "Go," said he, "to Dr. Sherman; he is doing wonders." I had failed of help from a dozen others and doubted, but he would not let me rest till I went. I bless the day I did so. It is to me a mystery, Doctor, that you have so wonderfully out-distanced all in your profession.
I hope your life will long be spared to relieve sufferers, and thus bless the world. Most affectionately and gratefully yours. REV. JOHN ALDEN.
The Rev. John Alden's case was quite as bad as Mr. James Corlew's, in Dr. Sherman's illustrated book. Those who value immunity from strangulated rupture, the injury trusses inflict, and the comforts of physical soundness should lose no time in securing the benefits of Dr. Sherman's treatment and remedies. His book, containing likenesses of bad cases before and after cure, with evidence of his success and endorsements from distinguished physicians, clergymen, merchants, farmers, engineers and others, is expressed to those who send 10 cents. Dr. Sherman can be consulted daily at his office, 251 Broadway, New York, except Thursdays and Fridays, when he will be in Philadelphia office 302 Walnut Street. NOTE.—No operation or detention from business. Patients from a distance can receive treatment and leave for home same day. 3w4

As has already been made known to many of our readers, the committee appointed by the board to visit a number of towns and cities, to examine the system of water works proposed to be adopted by this village, did their work thoroughly, and at the last meeting made their report; they found the system a good one and report that the requisite quantity of water can be furnished, and that the proposed quality is satisfactory, and therefore would recommend the raising of the stipulated sum for one year, and named the date of July 9, from 4 to 9 p. m., for a vote to be taken by the tax payers of this village.

A map showing the location of mains and hydrants is on exhibition in the news room, and as shown are judiciously distributed, reaching to Seventh street, and thereby giving the numerous owners of homes in this heretofore exposed portion of the village, equal security with others living in nearer proximity to water. The expense, it is said, cannot exceed 75cts. on a $1,000 valuation, while with this gravity system of water pressure the difference in insurance as adopted by the Board of underwriters will fully make up for this slight tax.

The water to be furnished is pure and wholesome, and taken from the well-known springs, located on the Osgood and Conner farms. All residences to be furnished with pure water at prices as low as paid in Cortland, Ithaca or other towns. With the sum asked to be paid for fire purposes, will be furnished water free to the Engine House, all the school houses and village offices, and water for two public drinking fountains. Besides having a full supply of pure, soft spring water in all our homes, there will be a feeling of security in knowing there is a fire hydrant at or near every door supplied at all times with water under a high pressure. We doubt not, that the good sense of this people will vote for this well tried system of water supply.

Change of Proprietorship.

Last Monday Raymond Leonard of this village and James B. Burt of Hannibal, purchased the lease, furniture and good will of the Lewis House, of James T. Pratt who has been proprietor for the past four years. These gentlemen are both young and active. Mr. Leonard, of the firm of Leonard & Wilson, liverymen and 'bus proprietors, is well known and very popular in Fulton. Mr. Burt is a son of W. J. Burt of Hannibal, with whom he is a partner in the clothing business. He is a young man of integrity and good business ability, having been associated in business for the past few years, until recently, in Syracuse, New York and Philadelphia, and has a knowledge of the wants of the traveling public. The hotel will undergo many needful repairs. Under the new management we predict unexpected success to the Lewis House. They will take possession about July 1.

Alumni Banquet.

The third annual meeting of the Alumni Association of Fulton Union School and Academy was held last evening at the Lewis House.

Early in the evening the members, numbering about twenty, assembled in the parlors and listened to the following interesting program:

Address of Welcome,	Chas. Howe
Chorus,	"There is a Tavern."
Alumni Poem	May L. French
Chorus	'83's Class Song
Instrumental Solo	Carrie P. Jennings
Alumni History	Frank L. Boothby
Chorus	'84's Class Song
Vocal Solo	Zula Hubbard
Alumni Oration	Ada F. Thayer
Chorus	"Alma Mater"

At the conclusion of the exercises an adjournment was taken to the dining room, where a bounteous repast had been spread. The rarest delicacies of the season loaded the spacious tables, and the fragrant perfume of flowers filled the room. The toast-master, Frank A. Waterman, called upon the following members to respond to the toasts named:

Alma Mater - - Prof. Boothby
"Our hearts, our hopes are all with thee."

The Alumni - - Miss Lawrence
"Saw you not, even now, a blessed throng, invite me to a Banquet?"

Our Teachers - - Julia Kimball
"Though much they vexed us, and to imbibe their lore they kept us up o' nights, we love them well, aye, every-one."

Class of '83 - - Chas. E. Young
"Mark that grave and learned air."

Our Doctors - - Dana C. Highriter
"Physicians mend or end us, Secundum artem."

Our Lawyers - - Clarence P. Hall
"Those firm upholders of the ancient law."

Class of '84 - - Allie L. Case

OBITUARY.

Maria, widow of the late J. J. Murphy, died at her home in Lower Oswego Falls, on [illegible], aged 63 years. [illegible]

[illegible] to the Graduating class of '85 of Fulton Union school and academy. The services were opened by a prayer by Rev. Mr. Olmstead of Oswego Falls. The text of the sermon was the 104 Psalm, and the 23 verse: "Man goeth forth unto his work and to his labor until the evening." The sermon was very impressive and was listened to with close attention. We greatly regret that owing to our limited space we cannot give the discourse in full, for it could be very profitably read by all who failed to hear it.

At the conclusion of the sermon, the members of the class rose in their seats and listened to the following remarks:

"Young ladies and gentlemen of the graduating class, you have reached a point in your lives which may be described by the words of the text. You are going forth to your work and to your labor until the evening. You have reached an hour that is one of sadness and gladness, of ending and beginning. It is of sadness because the ties you have formed are to be sundered, and you are about to turn your faces toward the cold, hard world, to fight your way alone. It is one of gladness because you are now to enter upon the specific work which is to render your lives significant. Your days of learning in yonder building are over; let the ideas that have been inculcated there be applied constantly in your life work. Do not despise honest toil in whatever form it may appear. Work is one of the distinguishing characteristics of man. Man is unique as belonging to earth and heaven. Labor renders man Godlike, for God is eternally and intensely active, and the more active in honest toil the man is, the more Godlike is he. Have before you lofty ideals. Jesus Christ is the highest ideal; have Him for your criterion, and measure yourself by that standard morning and night, and then when evening comes to you 'it will be light.' The shadows of earth will give place to the brightness of heaven. As the dark river is approached, the glad acclaims of welcome will reach your ear; beyond the river there will be the loving embrace of the Elder Brother and the thrilling words, 'Well done, good and faithful servant,' from the Heavenly Father and Comforter; there kindred spirits will press around, making themselves known and mingling joyfully in the greeting. God grant we may all be there."

Police Court News.

Fred Carvey, who was arrested last week in Buffalo, and brought here by Officer Poole to answer to the charge of petit larceny, pleaded guilty last Thursday morning upon his arraignment before the Police Justice. He was sentenced to three months in Onondaga penitentiary, and $25 fine, or 25 days additional in case the fine was not paid. The Justice afterward changed the sentence to 30 days in Oswego jail and $25 fine. The fine was paid.

Joseph Wybron, a blacksmith of this village, was arrested last Friday, charged with drunkenness. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $10, and 60 days in the penitentiary. Last Monday morning he was taken seriously ill and the doctor ordered him taken home, where he now is.

The Contract Awarded.

In response to an advertisement of the village board for proposals for the erection of an iron bridge over the raceway, a half dozen bids were received. The contract was awarded to the King Iron Bridge Manufacturing Co., of Cleveland, Ohio. Although this company were not the lowest bidders, the board after due deliberation, came to the conclusion that the quality of the work being taken into consideration, the King bridge would be the cheapest and most economical in the end, and gave the contract to that company.

Mr. Johnson offered the following Resolution which was adopted:

Resolved, That when this Board adjourn it be to June [illegible] inst at 7 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of considering the proposals for building bridge.

Mr. R. P. Alger appeared before the Board and in behalf of Mrs. Jennie Wilson and Mrs. J. Bennett asked permission to erect two wooden buildings for dwellings on the west side of Second street in place of those recently burned.

On motion of Mr. Gage the request was granted.

The President reported that Messrs. Burdick and Bradshaw had paid $94, expense of building bridge on First street over tail race from their premises, and the money had been deposited with the Village Treasurer.

The Finance Committee reported the following bills favorably, and on motion of Mr. Kendrick the same were audited at the amounts claimed, and the Clerk instructed to draw orders on the Treasurer therefor, viz:

J. S. Palmer, repairing bridge irons	$3.45
E. Laporte " bolts &c	65

Mr. O. Scholz appeared before the Board and made the following report:

Balance tax of 1884 uncollected as reported in the President's annual report in March last	$219.90
Amount collected since	141.62
Balance uncollected	$78.28

On motion of Mr. Johnson, Mr. Scholz was allowed to retain the tax list for another week.

The Lamp Committee reported that they had considered the bids for lighting lamps and recommended that the contract be awarded to Mr. J. Kavanaugh. On motion of Mr. Kendrick a ballot was taken for lamp lighter which ballot resulted as follows:

J. Kavanaugh received	4 votes
H. Curtis "	1 vote
T. Wright "	1 vote

Mr. Kavanaugh was declared elected and the Clerk was instructed to draw contract and bond to be executed by him.

The committee appointed at the meeting of the Board on May 27th last to investigate the system of water works proposed to be put in this village by the Fulton Water Works Co., reported that the Committee had visited Cortland, Binghamton and Buffalo, and had examined the system of water works in those places, and the plans submitted for this place. That the proposed system for this place is practicable, and that the requisite quantity of water can be furnished thereby, and that the quality is satisfactory; but that some modifications of the proposal were thought desirable by some of the committee, and if such modifications were made, the committee would recommend that the question of raising the sum of $1600 to pay said Company for the use of water for public purposes for one year after the Works are completed, be submitted to the taxable inhabitants at a special meeting to be called for that purpose.

Messrs. Piper and Hodgins addressed the Board in behalf of the Water Works Co. and in behalf of the Company it was stated that said Company would extend their mains on Sixth street from Oneida to Erie street, and place one of the 32 hydrants on the corner of Erie and 6th streets without extra charge, or they would extend their mains in all about 1,500 feet more than proposed on their plans and put in 34 hydrants for $1,700 per year. Also that the stand pipes in the mills may be connected with the street mains, and water used therefrom for fire purposes only, without extra charge. Also that the rates to private consumers should not exceed the rates lately adopted for the village of Adams, N. Y., or the new rates at Syracuse, N. Y., in addition to the other places named in their proposal.

Mr. Johnson offered the following Resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the Water Works Company be required to put additional hydrants upon new mains put in by them after the completion of the Works, whenever required by the Board of Trustees; such hydrants and the expense of putting in to be paid for by the village, and the water therefor to be furnished by the Company without additional charge.

The representatives of the Water Works Co. stated that they could not accede to that proposition.

After some further discussion Mr. Kendrick offered the following Resolution which was adopted:

Resolved, That a Special meeting of the taxable inhabitants of the village of Fulton be held on Thursday, July 9, 1885, from 4 to 9 o'clock p. m. at the Police Court Room for the purpose of submitting to them the proposition of the Fulton Water Works Co. to furnish water for fire and other purposes for one year from the completion of the Works by said Company, for the sum of $1,600, and that the Clerk publish due notice of such meeting.

The Clerk was directed to have the proposal submitted by the Water Works Co. printed in the minutes, and to post up in the Post Office News Room the map showing the proposed location of mains and hydrants.

The following is the said proposal:

"To the Supervisor of the Town of Volney, and the President and Trustees of the Village of Fulton, Oswego County, N. Y.:

GENTLEMEN:—The Fulton Water Works Company, hereby proposes to construct, maintain and operate Water Works in the village of Fulton, for the purpose of supplying the inhabitants thereof with an abundance of pure and wholesome water, to be derived from springs and streams upon what is known as the Connor's farm, and the farm of Calvin S. Osgood. The water to be furnished to domestic consumers, at prices not to exceed those charged in Cortland, N. Y., Ithaca, N. Y., or Canandaigua, N. Y. And to enter into a contract with the village authorities to supply them with water for the extinguishment of fires through first class non freezing fire hydrants. Said hydrants to be located along the main lines of pipes at points to be designated by the Trustees or their authorized agents and approximately as indicated on a map of pipe system submitted herewith, for the sum of $50 per Hydrant per year, amounting in all to $1,600 per year.

It is further proposed that in the event a contract is made, said Water Company will furnish to the said village of Fulton, water for the use of the Engine House, public school houses and village offices, and water for two public drinking fountains without extra charge. The said Water Works Company to keep said Hydrants in perfect repair, and to keep them continuously supplied with water and ready for use at all times. The said Hydrants to be under the control and direction of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department during all fires and parades of the fire department, at all other times to be under the control of the Water Works Company. The Water Works to be first class in every particular, and to be constructed upon the modified gravity plan. For domestic use and ordinary fire protection, the water to be pumped from the springs into an iron water tower or reservoir 20 feet in diameter and 60 feet high located on a hill, so that the top of the tower will be [illegible] feet above the level of the canal. In special cases, when extraordinary pressure and [illegible] of water is desired, the pumps will be [illegible]

Quite a number of Schenectady county farmers have planted peanuts this spring, with a view of raising crops of the nuts. The experiment was tried there about six years ago and proved successful. The peanuts were shelled and planted in hills, like potatoes. They thrived and multiplied rapidly. The peanuts grew to enormous size and the meats when baked were fully equal in quality to those raised in the southern states. It is thought that they might be profitably raised in this section.

Making Seeds Distasteful to birds.—The English gardners have a way of treating various kinds of seeds so that birds will not eat them that farmers here could adopt. The seeds are slightly dampened—not made wet—by placing them in a vessel, and sprinkling water over them while they are being stirred. Then some dry red lead, about a teaspoonful to a pint of seed, is added, a stirring being kept up until each kernel is thinly coated with the paint. This plan works well with corn and peas.

Grapes Versus Wood Work.

All, or nearly all, of the vines grown in graperies are trained on the spur system—that is, the lateral shoots are cut back to within two or three buds of their base, each year, and from these buds the fruit is produced and no more wood is allowed to grow than is necessary to furnish bearing canes for the next season and leaves for the assimilation of sap. This, or similar spur-system of training is practiced extensively in the vineyards of Europe, and to a considerable extent in this country, among vineyardists who train their vines and do not allow them to run wild. If a cane is allowed to grow ten to twenty feet in length without a check, the lowermost buds would no doubt fail to produce good large clusters of fruit if such canes were shortened to within two or three buds of their base, but to allow vines to grow at random in that way is to cause a wasteful exhaustion of the fertility of the soil, unless the object is to produce wood for propagation. When vines are permitted to grow wild, without summer pinching or checking their growth, then they must be pruned long in order to obtain a good crop of fruit, but short stopping of summer growth developes the lower buds on the canes, and short pruning may follow with a certainty of obtaining as much fruit as the vine is capable of carrying through to the ripening period.—[A. S. Fuller.

The Buckwheat Crop—Valuable.

Buckwheat can be made a profitable crop, if proper care is given to it. This grain is worth at least seventy-five cents a bushel for feeding, if it is properly fed. It is best ground with corn, as fine as possible, and may be fed with cut hay or straw moistened with water. The seed may be sown early in July. We have found thick seeding the best. At least one bushel per acre should be used. It pays to prepare the ground as well for this crop as for any other, but it is especially useful for the purpose of breaking up an old meadow, and prepareing it for reseeding. The sod will be well rotted, and the soil mellowed and made ready for a full grain crop, if this is desired, to be followed by the grass seed next summer. No other crop, except peas, so well mellows the ground as buckwheat, and this is precisely the effect required in reseeding land. Besides this useful purpose, buckwheat is valuable for its grain. It will easily produce thirty or forty bushels per acre if well managed, and a bushel of it is worth two bushels of oats of the light sort usually grown, which is largely husk. The crop, too, is put in at times and harvested at times convenient for the farmer.—[American Agriculturrist for July.

Figured challies are very pretty and inexpensive for house wear.

Black will be in high favor for the summer and autumn season.

Crapes of all kinds are worn for dress trimmings and millinery.

Green cloth full dress kilt suits are very fashionable for small boys.

In low shoes for summer wear the Oxford ties have the preference.

Sleeves with a sagging puff at or above the elbow are coming into vogue.

Daffodils, tulips, white lilac and wistaria, are popular artificial flowers.

A present caprice is to have the handkerchief border match the dress in color.

Golden turtles are the latest golden fancy for hat and bonnet ornamentation.

Tan-colored undressed kid gloves are worn by fashionable men as well as women.

Gray and brown cheviots or Angola plaids are the correct stuffs for small boys' every day suits.

A little jeweled dagger pinning the corsage bouquet to the dress front is the latest caprice in fancy jewelry.

Dress shoes for children are particularly pretty this summer, with their delicate lace and ribbon rosettes matching their frocks.

Aprons are once more the height of fashion. Charming ones are manufactured of delicate silks and etamine, hand embroidered.

THE FAILURE OF PRIVATE ADVERTISING.

Why Cards, Circulars, and the Like are Failures as Advertising Mediums.

Within the last few years it has become the fashion with some people to do their advertising in their own private way, instead of through the newspapers. Some distribute cards, some circulars, some pamphlets, some even almanacs; and some inconceivable monstrosities of oddity, circulating them by the hundreds or thousands through the mails. The printer's art has been taxed to the uttermost to gratify the tastes of these advertisers. Some of the finest as well as some of the basest specimens of the art of engraving, of chromo-lithographing and of color-printing are being produced for these purposes, and every conceivable style of fancy paper is brought into requisition. The advertisers vie with each other in the elegance of their designs and the costliness of their devices, taking it for granted that the receivers will conform with their estimate of the status of the advertisers to the artistic pretentions of his advertisements. Some people may regret that the noble art of printing, at the period of its highest achievements, should be subjected to such debasing uses; but, to those who employ the art, it should be equally a matter of concern that the debasement so completely fails of the object for which it is intended. With him who notices such advertisements at all, the first feeling on receiving one of these superb specimens of typography or engraving is apt to be of disgust that it relates to the artistic pursuits of his butcher or his bootmaker, or that the subjects of its elegant illustrations are chair and tables, refrigerators and brooms; he throws it down with an indefinable grudge against the man who has been guilty of such a ridiculous prostitution of art, and without exactly knowing it, he is distinctly convinced that a tradesman who spends so much money in such an incongruous way is not likely to be endowed with the common sense of a good man of business, or to sell cheaply.

In truth, however, those who take any notice whatever of this flood of announcements form but a very small percentage of those who receive them. They have come to be the nuisance of both the parlor and the counting-room. At home they are never opened but with disappointment, because they come in the place of letters really hoped for. In the office the merchant finds his morning mail stuffed with these intrusions upon the serious affairs of his business, which he inwardly curses or impatiently consigns to his waste-paper heap. In short, if a public vote could be taken it would unanimously declare these drumming missives to be an intolerable nuisance that should be denied the privilege of the mails.

Men of business who resort to this method of advertising cannot be ignorant of the fact that the people whom they would reach have become nauseated with it. They must be aware that they themselves disregard all such appeals for patronage; and what reasons have they to suppose that others receive their applications with more patience? Sagacious advertisers are beginning to see this and are returning to the old method of public announcement. The newspaper is, in every sense, the best medium for advertising; and, for a given result, it is by much the cheapest also. It reaches a far greater number of possible customers than any private announcement can; and it is more certain to receive attention. The private circular is thrown aside as a thing which people have come to regard as a bore, and which which is neglected because its recipients no time to attend to it. The newspaper is used in each day's hour of leisure, and readers find interest in reading its advertisements as well as its news, because of the variety they present and the information they convey respecting a wide diversity of interests. It may be safely estimated that an announcement made through the press is noticed by fifty readers, where, made in a private way, it would reach but one. If, therefore, the same amount were expended in [illegible] the result would [illegible]

SCROFULA

Usually develops in early life, and is a peculiar morbid condition of the system, usually affecting the glands, often resulting in swellings, enlarged joints, abscesses, thickening of the lips, enlarged neck, sore eyes. A scrofulous condition is often hereditary, but bad diet, too free use of fat meats, bad air, want of sunshine and nourishing food will induce it. Some people are troubled with scrofulous swelling of the glands, and with ulcers and kernels, which may cause very little pain; others may have inward scrofula, scrofula of the lungs, scrofula of the spleen, scrofula of the kidneys, and scrofula of the bones. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS will drive away any case of scrofula and not to appear in another place, for their action on the blood and bowels will carry the disease entirely from the body.

A Fight With a Mountain Lion.

A man named James Jackson had a terrific fight with a mountain lion on Little Laramie River, Wy. Ty., recently. He started out to cut wood, taking his shotgun along. Seeing some birds perched on a rock he shot at them, but hit instead a mountain lion, till then invisible, but which made its presence known by yells of rage and pain, the charge of shot having lodged in its shoulder and side. Jackson could have got away without further trouble, as the lion was fully occupied in tearing around, not having noticed the man, but Jackson thought he would like to have the animal's hide, as it would look well mounted; so he fired at him with both barrels, filling the beast with bird shot. But still no notice was taken of the hunter, who emboldened by the animal's inattention, walked up close and peppered him again with two charges. That settled it. The lion for the first time noticed the man and went for him with mouth open and tail lashing. Too late Jackson started to run but soon saw it was no use, and stood with clubbed gun, and, as the lion came up, hit him over the head with it, knocking him down. Then another start to run was made, but the lion was up and at him again, and the man drew his pocket-knife for the fight. They closed and the struggle was long and hard. The man's clothes were torn off and he was bruised and mangled, but he kept working away with his knife, and finally got it into the throat of the beast, making such wounds that the lion weakened from loss of blood, and finally rolled over dead. Jackson will recover from his hurts and be as well as ever, though he will be laid up a long time.—[San Francisco Call.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

Pittsfield, Mass., March 22, 1881.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir: About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly recommended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, I was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

MATTHEW FARRELL.

"The Abstract and Brief Chronicle of the Time," [illegible]

FULTON, OSWEGO COUNTY, N. Y., WEDNESDAY, JULY 1, 1885.

[illegible]

BY [illegible]

There's a package of old letters in the little rosewood box
Which the key that to this locket, worn upon my heart, unlocks;
Will you go and get the package, and the letters read to me?
I have tried to do it often, but for tears, I could not see.

You have brought them—thank you, darling—now sit down upon my bed,
And lift gently to your bosom my poor throbbing, burning head;
Read the blessed words distinctly that I lose not even one;
Oh, the precious hand that penned them, its last work for me is done.

But if you should ever see him, whom I never more shall see,
Tell him that the sweetest solace his dear letters were to me;
That I never ceased to love him, never doubted that he loved;
That my faith in him was perfect, and remained through all unmoved.

And, oh! tell him when he came not, as he promised he would come,
If I could not choose but sorrow, that my grief for him was dumb;
That I never yet reproached him, ne'er a word of censure spoke;
That his memory must be gentle to the heart his coldness broke.

Tell him through the years which followed, when no tidings from him came,
Nor his absence, nor his silence, was I ever heard to blame;
Oh, this wild desire to see him, God subdue within my breast!
For it racks me into torture, and my soul hath need of rest.

When I'm dead, and in my coffin, and the shroud about me wound,
And my narrow bed is ready, in the pleasant church-yard ground,
Lay the locket and the letters both together on my heart,
And this little ring he gave me, never from my finger part.

Now, I'm ready—read the letters—the dear letters once again;
As I listen while you read them, I shall lose all sense of pain;
And if, when you have finished, I should gently fall asleep,
Gently fall asleep and woke not—dearest sister do not weep.

HER DIAMOND EARRINGS.

There they were, to be sure! sparkling like twin stars, as enveloped in seal she tripped down the steps and turned her head a moment in passing by. Mrs. Mayrell dropped the Holland window shade from behind which she had been reconnoitering, and turned away with a groan. To live in the basement "flat" was bad enough. To have tapestry Brussels carpets when Mrs. Kingsly had moquet was worse; but to have only coral earrings now when the tenant of the floor above displayed diamonds, was the latest and most cruel blow of fate.

A latch-key turned in the street door.

There was a step in the passage without. Will's cheery voice rang out, "Dora, dear."

And then in a minute—"Why, what's up? Are you ill?"

For his wife of a year lifted her head from the sofa-cushion and turned towards him a pair of suspiciously red eyes.

"No-o!" gulping down the sob that would rise; "but—but she's got them!"

Poor, big, good-natured mystified Will just stood and stared.

"I saw them!"

"You did, eh?"

"Ye-yes."

"And now," deliberately, "will you be good enough to tell me who is 'she,' and what has she 'got'?"

Dora swallowed another invisible pill as she rose.

"I mean Mrs. Kinsley. She has got diamond earrings."

Will burst into a boyish laugh; then, seeing it was a very serious matter with his wife, sympathetically sobered up.

"Come now, Dora, be sensible, like a good little girl. You don't mean to say you'd cry for a pair of earrings?"

Mrs. Mayrell's pretty face brightened not at all at the pleasant raillery.

"Much good it will do me," she declared sullenly, and intently regardful of the toe of her slipper. Will edged over to the sofa, sat down beside her, and stole an arm around her.

"Dora!"

"Well?"

"You don't look half so pretty when you're cross."

Silence.

Will began to ask himself if he hadn't made a tremendous mistake about twelve months ago. Then he banished the thought as disloyal. She was a little selfish, perhaps vain, at times discontented, but he loved her very dearly, and no other girl would have suited him half so well.

"Dora, pet," he said gravely, "you'd have diamonds if I could give them to you, indeed you would, dear. But you know I've got to figure pretty closely to make both ends meet now that hard times are upon us. You know that?"

She nodded.

But when half an hour later he went back to the office, he left behind him a very dejected little lady.

He was not quite so gay as usual that afternoon. He didn't joke so audaciously with the boys, nor break now and then into a whistle. The man who had the desk next to him observed the [illegible]

"[illegible] the racket, Mayrell?"

[illegible]

[illegible] and I could quite as easily [illegible] for her the World's Fair with the [illegible] thrown in. Now you know."

Andrews rubbed his chin and nodded.

"Yes, I know," dryly. "I know women, at least I know one woman, and I guess they are pretty much alike. I'm engaged."

"No!" cried Will.

"Fact. Got to get rich first. Domestic happiness indefinitely postponed. Just bought the ring," fumbling in his vest pocket. You may look at it and get an idea for your wife's solitaires."

"Don't joke, Dan. I'm a little sore on the subject of my poverty."

"I am not joking," replied Dan, snapping a spring with his finger; "what do you think of that?" And he handed him a little blue velvet case. Will's eyes widened

"Phew! how did you manage that on seventy-five a month. It's a beauty."

Andrews chuckled.

"You like it?"

"I should say so. How would stones like that do for earrings?"

"Oh, let up, Dan. What's the use of talking about it? That's a carat, isn't it?"

"Right you are. But you can get the same if you wish."

"Oh, some installment scheme, I suppose."

Andrew restored the ring to its case, and the case to his pocket.

"Not exactly."

And he forthwith proceeded to explain.

That night Mayrell said to his wife:

"I'll try and manage it, Dot."

"What? Not the earings?"

"Yes."

"Oh, you darling!"

And the next day he brought them up.

Didn't they sparkle on their bed of snowy velvet, though? And weren't they beauties? Actually larger than Mrs. Kinsley's too.

"I'm glad you like them, Dora."

"Like them?"

And her eyes were brighter than the gems.

And maybe she didn't rejoice in them and keep them wrapped in chamois-skin when not in use. And perhaps she didn't return Mrs. Kinsley's visit. If you think she wore a poke bonnet or a veil you're mistaken.

And for one month home was a paradise of serenity for Will Mayrell. But one day, going out in a hurry, Dora hastily put in her earrings. She could not have fastened them securely, for on her return she found herself minus one.

Of her grief, distraction, who could write? Straightway down-town went she and advertised in all the dailies. But she did not give her real name and address. She must not let Will know till it had been recovered. He would feel so badly about it. No, no, she would conceal the fact of her loss from him till she could tell him of her repossession in the same breath. She offered $15 reward, and came home fagged and heartsick. But day by day passed and never a word came there of the missing jewel. She stayed at the house altogether now. She had no heart for shopping or calls.

Her hope of ever recovering her precious earring grew fainter daily. She could not bear to look at the poor lonely one laid so carefully away.

Going out to the theatre one evening with Will, he said suddenly:

"Why, Dora, you haven't got your earrings in. Are you tired of them already?"

"Oh, no," she explained, with a feverish laugh, "but I can't wait for them. Come, I do hate to be late."

And Will, having read the oft-repeated advertisements, and noticing the unadorned pink ears, had come to his own conclusion. But he only smiled and was silent—except for this one reference to divert suspicion—like the wise fellow he was. And when two weeks had passed and doubt had begun to settle into dispair, little Mrs. Mayrell began to wonder if she could by any economical means replace the lost trinket unknown to Will. She might have managed it if they had not been such very brilliant stones, and so large, too. They must be worth an enormous sum. How Will had managed to get them in the first place rather puzzled her when she let herself think of it, but then Will always did things on a grand scale when he made gifts at all.

They must be worth three hundred at least. Several had valued them at that—none at less. She would take the one in her dressing-case down to Mackin, the chief jeweler, tell him of her loss, and learn from him the lowest sum at which it could be replaced.

And this the very next day she did.

Mr. Mackin examined the earring as she falteringly inquired what one exactly like it would be worth.

"Two fifty, madame."

Ah, even more than she had thought!

"Two hundred and fifty! That is a great deal," she murmured.

He looked at her blankly. "Two dollars and fifty cents, madame. We don't keep such stones, but we can have your missing earring replaced for that sum."

And then, observing her pallor and divining the truth, he kindly and politely turned his back on her.

Over the scene which followed at home turn low the lights, ring down the curtain.

* * * * * * *

But raise it again for a moment.

It is two weeks since Mrs. Will Mayrell met her husband with a face [illegible] that his scheme had found [illegible]

With a very white face Dora laid down the pages. Will took her in his arms. "Dearest," he said quietly, "that was the only other course left open to me."

"Oh, Will!"

"You forgive me now, dear?"

She was shaking from head from feet. She began to cry softly.

"Not that, Will. You forgive me. I didn't know—I didn't think—"

He kissed her tenderly.

"Of course not, sweetheart. But we can do without diamonds better than without honor or each other, can't we?"

"Yes, yes," she cried, and clung to him. But the tears had washed away the old selfishness and envy, and with her smile of love began a grander, fairer womanhood.

He Made a Mistake.

"Yes, he may be a fraud—probably is one," replied the man under the white plug hat as he replaced his change, "but I made a mistake on the wrong side of the ledger once and I don't want to get caught that way again."

"How was it?"

"Well, I'm neither a Christian nor a philanthropist. Fact is, I'm a pretty hard-hearted man on the average, but I used to be a little worse than I am now. One evening, five or six years ago, right in front of this very store, a boy about 12 years of age hit me for a dime. He had tears in his eyes, a drawl to his voice and I spotted him at once for an impostor. He went on to say that his father was sick and unable to work, and that he himself had been down with a fever and had no strength to look for a job, and I laughed in derision and told him to clear out or I'd give him in charge."

"It's an old dodge," observed the man who was smoking a corn-cob pipe.

"Exactly, but it may not always be a dodge. I had a pocket full of silver, and was too onery mean to hand over a dime. Suppose the boy was lying? Suppose he wanted the money for himself? How contemptible in me to begrudge that trifling sum to a little chap who was certainly all skin and bone and evidently needed a square meal."

"But it would have been encouraging vice," said the man with a checked shirt front.

"Bosh! There are men in this city who are looked upon as shining examples who cheat and swindle the people out of a thousand dollars where vice gets a shilling. This little incident I have been relating went out of my mind in an hour, but next day, as I was looking over an old tenement with the owner, who wanted me to figure on repairs, who should I come across but the boy of the night before. He was in bed raving with fever. In bed! Well, he was tossing around on a heap of rags. In the same room was the mother, trying to earn a few cents at the wash-tub, but not having the strength to work for more than five minutes at a time. Also the father—just alive with consumption, and occupying a bed no better than the boy's."

"Same boy, eh?" queried the corn-cob-pipe man, as the hard lines in his face began to melt.

"The very same. There was a quaver in his voice no one could forget in a day. He was raving away of this or that, but the father was quiet and inclined to be cheerful. As I sat down beside him for a moment after leaving a $5 bill in his skeleton hand, he said:

"'God bless you for a good man! When little Ben started out last night we hadn't either light, fuel or food in the house. He met some kind-hearted man who gave him a dollar. It might have been you. But for that money God knows how we must have suffered.'"

"Might have been me! When I remembered how I had repulsed that boy the thought stabbed me like a knife! I was trying to say something to cheer the dying man, when that fever-striken lad sprang up, evidently recognizing my voice, and cried out:

'Please, mister, don't have me arrested! Don't let 'em lock me up! I'm telling the truth—I ain't lying!'

He came right over and got hold of me and I tell you if ever a man was broken down it was this very individual. I left $25 there when I went away, and I sent a doctor around, but inside of a week father and son were dead. One died blessing me, the last words of the other were an entreaty to me not to call him a fraud and have him locked up. That's why my hand goes down for the chink when man or boy strikes me for change. I'd rather give a thousand dollars to frauds than to have another honest boy die with my refusal grinding into his soul."—[Detroit Free Press.

Letter from Germany.

[The following are extracts from letters written by Charles H. Jefferds, grandson of E. K. Jefferds, and a former resident of Lower Oswego Falls, who has been spending a few weeks in Germany.]

Stutgart, May 11th, 1885.

For the past four weeks I have been traveling around the country, visiting many places of interest. I have told you about Stutgart; this and the towns around here are noted for their beautiful hills and valleys, and for the cultivation of grapes. Constadt is a town of over 16,000 inhabitants and is a favorite resort for Americans. The mineral springs are numerous, the water cold and pure. Many invalids go there to be healed.

The Rosenstein is a beautiful villa, built in the Roman style. It is situated on a very high hill overlooking the city. It was built in 1723. We obtained tickets to visit the place. Of the many fine paintings there, that of King William 3d and his Queen, attract the most attention.

Esslington is prettily situated on the river Neckar. The Neckar wine is largely manufactured there. They have a church which was founded in the 11th century, we were not allowed inside but we walked around it. We took our dinner opposite the town hall which was the palace of Alexander of Wurtemberg. It was built in 1430, and was at one time known as Steimume Haus.

I have also been to Grisburg, Leonburg and Unterturkim. Around these places you see a great deal of farming. They hitch the cows to wagons and make them work like horses.

I have visited in this city, the cabinet of natural history, the academy of art and the royal library, at which place I saw a large collection of coins and medals. There were 17,000, I was told. I have a photograph of one of the largest castle on the Rhine. It is called "Ruine Drachenfels."

BADEN-BADEN, May 18.

This is a beautiful city. It lies in a lonely valley, and is said to be the most fashionable summer resort in the world. It is the most expensive place in Germany. The hotels are very fine and well kept. There are a great many Americans here now. * * * I have seen the palace of Prince William. There is a column in front which is 59 feet high. It was erected in 1841, to the memory of King William. It is crowned with a bronze figure which stands 15 feet high. At the corners are figures to represent different towns as defenders of their country. This place also has mineral springs which are celebrated for health giving properties, but the water is very warm.

I saw a bust of Schiller. I wrote you about the "Solitude," I believe. Schiller received the rudiments of his education there. His father was inspector of the gardens, which are very fine, and also of a very large park. Will write again soon.

THE PROPER THING.

Flower weddings are the rage this June.

Gloves in all delicate shades are worn by graduates.

Waist ribbons are worn with almost all summer dresses.

Some very fashionable women refuse utterly to wear tinsel.

Narrow white lawn ties are the fashionable neckwear for ladies.

Nuns' veiling, combined with lace or satin, make handsome graduating dresses.

Fasten the ends of the bonnet strings together now, if you have a very pretty pin.

Twilled surahs in checks, stripes, tiny plaids and brocades are much used this season.

A rough straw round hat or small bonnet, suiting the dress in color, is chosen for traveling.

Narrow grey ribbon, with a line of steel beads on each edge, is the trimming for grey stuffs.

The day of much draped, much cut-up, flounced, pleated, shirred and ruffled dresses is gone by.

Mohair, canvass and bison cloths are the fabrics commended for summer and autumn traveling dresses.

Lace or embroidery, or both, must adorn every dressy toilet this summer, is the degree of fashion.

To look well, tinsel braid must be of the finest quality, and must be put on by an artistic embroiderer.

For short journeys in warm weather the dark chamberys and ginghams may be used for traveling dresses.

Puffs of lace are worn about the throat, inside the high collar, and at the wrists, and are very soft and becoming.

Byron collars of solid jet, with two scarfs of beaded net to tie below the throat, are shown to wear with black dresses.

Small earrings with screw close to the ear are very pretty. The pond lily petals and cloverheads are the neatest designs.

Never in the history of jewelry in this country have colored stones, both gems and semi-precious stones, been more in request than now.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 10 Dexter St.

DR. J. A. SHERMAN—Dear Friend: I am sorry, Doctor, you have left Boston. Persons continue to come to my house to inquire respecting you, while many others write me. Many who left me said they would surely seek your aid. Your success has been wonderful, and I am quite sure without a parallel. To my surprise my large Hernia appears to be perfectly healed. I did not expect it at the age of 79. After receiving your treatment I was relieved from suffering which was fast taking my life. I have no idea I should be living had you not taken my case in hand. I weigh now 170 pounds, over thirty pounds more than then. I think you must receive a great amount of happiness from the relief given and gratitude rendered.

You owe it to my son in Boston, who has known many of your patients before and after healing, that I applied to you. "Go," said he, "to Dr. Sherman; he is doing wonders." I had failed of help from a dozen others and doubted, but he would not let me rest till I went. I bless the day I did so. It is to me a mystery, Doctor, that you have so wonderfully out-distanced all in your profession.

I hope your life will long be spared to relieve sufferers, and thus bless the world. Most affectionately and gratefully yours. REV. JOHN ALDEN.

The Rev. John Alden's case was quite as bad as Mr. James Corlew's, in Dr. Sherman's illustrated book. Those who value immunity from strangulated rupture, the injury trusses inflict, and the comforts of physical soundness should lose no time in securing the benefits of Dr. Sherman's treatment and remedies. His book, containing likenesses of bad cases before and after cure, with evidence of his success and endorsements from distinguished physicians, clergymen, merchants, farmers, engineers and others, is expressed to those who send 10 cents. Dr. Sherman can be consulted daily at his office, 251 Broadway, New York, except Thursdays and Fridays, when he will be in Philadelphia office 302 Walnut Street. NOTE.—No operation or detention from business. Patients from a distance can receive treatment and leave for home same day. 3w4

ALTHOUGH encouraging news is received from Mt. McGregor, it is plain to the average reader that General Grant's end is not far off. His cancer has commenced to inflame the jugular vein and it seems as though death was certain in a few days.

THE annual encampment of the Grand Army veterans at Portland, Maine, closed on Friday last with a monster clam bake. General Logan was present and made an afterdinner speech. The General made himself very popular during his stay in Blaine's state.

THE mental weakness of John McCullough, the actor, has assumed such an alarming degree that his closest friends have seen fit to have the great tragedian placed in the care of proper hands. On Saturday afternoon he was taken to Bloomingdale insane asylum. Poor McCullough's days of fame are over with.

THE appointment of collector at the port of New York has been the absorbing topic of discussion among the politicians in that city for some time past, but until last Saturday, none save H. O. Thompson could name positively, Collector Robertson's successor. President Cleveland was determined that the new collector should be a merchant and it was thought best that as Mr. Thompson's appointment was not in accord with the President's intention, he be given the privilege of naming the man. When Thompson was assured that his chances for the office were out of question, he named Edward L. Hedden who received the appointment on Saturday. The County Democracy politicians are jubilant and Tammany Hall is not much grieved. The new collector enters upon his official duties to-day.

LEADING business centers report to Bradstreet that trade continues quiet and singularly free from speculative movements. The volume of general merchandise moving is made up of hand to mouth purchases. Since the labor trouble at Pittsburg has been settled the local trade situation has assumed a better aspect. At Philadelphia merchants are inclined to a more confident and hopeful view of the near-by future, while at New York the reverse is true. The cotton and woolen men in all directions are inclined to regard the outlook as opposed to a rival, and their complaints as to the effects of the late heavy auction sales of cotton and woolen fabrics are based, they claim, on the injury done the textile manufacturing interests. At Boston there has been some activity in the sale of dry goods by jobbers, but agents and makers report trade as dull as ever. Chicago advices are that country dealers are taking less.

JAMES D. FISH, ex-president of the Marine National Bank of New York, appeared in court Saturday morning and was sentenced to ten years in Auburn prison. Fish is now sixty-five years of age. Nearly everyone is familiar with the details of the ex-banker's crimes—repeated fraudulent transactions—which were revealed by the failure of the firm of Grant & Ward. A little over a year ago Mr. Fish was known among men as a man of great wealth, acquired by honorable dealings, a man of shrewd business instincts and against whose character nothing could be said. He has fallen from that position down to the very floor of the prison cell, where nothing but the grim hand of death will release him from his confinement, for his age is now far advanced. His career and its ending is very impressive. And still it is the general opinion that his penalty is none too severe. The punishment of a man in so high a position and having so much wealth connected with his name, clearly shows that it had no bearing with the prompt execution of justice. A similar if not a more severe sentence should be met .d out to Ferdinand Ward. Bank presidents, tellers and cashiers take warning for "the law is no respecter of persons."

Quite a sensation was caused at Seneca Falls, by the elopement of Miss Nellie Adriance, and her marriage at Phelps to Walter Gregory. The girl's mother favored the match, but her father did not, and as a result of the elopement, the parents have separated after being married 25 years.

At Ithaca, N. Y., the mangled remains of the 17-year-old son of ex-Alderman Patrick Shannon were picked up at the base of the Ithaca falls on Saturday. While going through Ithaca Gorge he lost his balance and fell over one hundred feet, striking the falls in his descent.

John Golden of Oswego, captain of a canal boat, was arraigned in Syracuse Monday charged with stabbing Patrick Fitzsimmons in the cheek in an altercation Sunday night. Golden said that when he struck Fitzsimmons he did not know he had a knife in his hand. The latter felt lenient toward Golden and he was discharged.

Several hundred trees in the eastern part of Wayne county, have been successfully felled during the past month by the use of dynamite cartridges. In nearly all of the cases of felling trees by this means, it is found that the tree was not fractured by the explosion, and the wood can thus be utilized, where by the old method of felling trees, the timber has been lost.

Julius David of Hastings, who was engaged in the stove and heating business, who has hitherto borne a reputation for honesty and industry, disappeared three weeks ago and is reported to be in Iowa with a brother. He owes about $800 in Syracuse and is indebted to Miss Emily Giddings for about $3,800. He appears to have made no attempt to defraud his creditors, but finding himself unable to meet his debts, left for other parts. His assests remaining aggregate about $2,500.

Clayton Fairman, who was sent from Oswego to the Onondaga penitentiary in 1880, 15 months for burglary, died Friday night. When he began his sentence he was a strong, healthy young man of 19, but when he came out he was a physical wreck, and had since been a terrible sufferer from abscesses, which he alleged were caused by cruel treatment received in the penitentiary. He had also been unable to walk without crutches. He was put to work in the bolt shop where he said the temperature was sometimes 175. He complained also of having to wear an iron cap and other abuse.

The town boards of Clay and Schrœppel met Monday to take action in regard to the building of a new bridge over the Oneida river, to take the place of the old wooden structure that fell into the water a few weeks ago. A ferry will be maintained between the two townships until a new bridge can be built. The construction of a new iron bridge is advocated. The two towns will each pay a certain part on the expenses, and the remainder will be defrayed by the county. The drawbridge, to allow steamers to and from Oneida lake to pass, will be put in at state expense.

[illegible] (N. Y.) Correspondence. [illegible]

"Judge," said a young lawyer to a very successful senior, "tell me [illegible] of your uniform success at the bar."

"Ah, young man, that secret is a life study, but I will give it to you on condition that you pay all my bills during this session of court."

"Agreed, sir," said the junior.

"Evidence, indisputable evidence."

At the end of the month the judge reminded the young man of his promise.

"I recall no such promise."

"Ah, but you made it."

"Your evidence, please?"

And the judge, not having any witnesses, lost a case for once!

The man who can produce indisputable evidence wins public favor. I had an interview yesterday with the most successful of American advertisers, whose advertising is most successful because always backed by evidence."

"What styles of advertising do you use?" I asked H. H. Warner, Esq.

"Display, reading matter and paragraphs of testimonials."

"Have you any testimonials?"

In answer he showed me a large cabinet chock-full. "We have enough to fill Boston, New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Philadelphia morning papers."

"Do you publish many of them?"

"Not a tith. Wonderful as are those we do publish, we have thousands like them which we cannot use. 'Why not?' Let me tell you. 'Warner's safe cure, has probably been the most successful medicine for female disorders ever discovered. We have testimonials from ladies of the highest rank, but it would indelicate to publish them. Likewise many statesmen, lawyers, clergymen, doctors of world wide fame have been cured, but we can only refer to such persons in the most garded terms, as we do in our reading articles."

"Are those reading articles successful?"

"When read they make such an impression that when the 'evil days' of ill health draw nigh they are remembered, and Warner's safe cure is used."

"No, sir, it is not necessary now, as at first, to do such constant and extensive advertising. A meritorious medicine sells itself after its merits are known. We present just evidence enough to disarm the skeptics and to impress the merits of the remedies upon new consumers. We feel it to be our duty to do this. Hence, best to accomplish our mission of healing the sick, we have to use the reading-article style. People won't read plain testimonials."

'Yes, sir, thousands admit that had they not learned of Warner's safe cure through this clever style they would still be ailing and still impoverishing themselves in fees to unsuccessful 'practitioners.' It would do your soul good to read the letters of thanksgiving we get from mothers grateful for the perfect success which attends Warner's safe cure when used for children, and the surprised gratification with which men and women of older years and impaired vigor, testify to the youthful feelings restored to them by the same."

"Are these good effects permanent?"

"Of all the cases of kidney, liver, urinary and female diseases we have cured, not two per cent. of them report a return of their disorders. Who else can show such a record?"

"What is the secret of Warner's safe cure permanently reaching so many serious disorders?"

"I will explain by an illustration: The little town of Plymouth, Pa., has been plague-striken for several months because its water supply has been carelessly poisoned. The kidneys and liver are the sources of physical well-being. If polluted by disease, all the blood becomes poisoned and every organ is affected and this great danger threatens every one, who neglects to treat himself promptly. I was nearly dead myself of extreme kidney disease, but what is now Warner's safe cure cured me, and I know that it is the only remedy in the world that can cure such disorders, for I tried everything else in vain. Cured by it myself, I bought it and, from a sense of duty, presented it to the world. Only by restoring the kidneys and liver can disease leave the blood and the system."

A celebrated sanitarian physician once said to me. "The secret of the wonderful success of Warner's safe cure is that it is sovereign over all kidney, liver and urinary diseases, which primarily or or secondarily make up the majority of human ailments. Like all great discoveries it is remarkably simple."

The house of H. H. Warner & Co., stands deservedly high in Rochester, and it is certainly matter of congratulation that merit has been recognized all over the world, and that this success has been unqualifiedly deserved.

[illegible] Last week the arrivals [illegible] Then, too, there is no cheese held back now in all this region, the stocks both here and at Little Falls being shipped off close to the curing point. The weather is cool and favor[illegible] so cool, in fact, that if it continues it will cause a shrinkage in milk. And more than all our dairymen don't understand why the June make of Canada (which certainly is not being bought to hold, so that its keeping qualities do not come into question,) should bring ¼@1c. more than ours, as it did last week wherever they sold.

Transactions of the day were as follows: 200 boxes partly skimmed at 5½c.; nine lots, 765 boxes, at 6¼c.; 55 lots, 5,742 boxes, at 6⅝c.; 12 lots, 1,266 boxes at 6¾c.; seven lots, 780 boxes, at 6⅞c., 18 lots, 2,154 boxes, at 7c.; and three lots, 580 boxes, at 7⅛c. Sales, 11,719 boxes; commissions, 1,549 boxes; total, 13,268. Ruling price 6⅝c. Transactions one year ago, 16,158 boxes, at 8¼c. Two years ago, 15,214 boxes, at 10 c.

LITTLE FALLS, June 29.

This market shows little variation from that of a week ago. Early in the day it was thought buyers would not purchase with the avidity that they did last week, but the market held late and buyers sought for all the cheese they could get. Many salesmen anticipated at least a little advance in price, but with all their standing off could not obtain it and figures are just the same as last week. Finding this state of things, salesmen in almost all cases decided to sell larger lots than last week, and we find the heaviest sale yet made here this season. Hopes of securing much better prices till after the hot weather cheese is gone are about relinquished. Feed in pastures is very fair, but the hay crop is expected to be light in most localities in this section. Transactions to-day are:

Twenty-five factories were represented at this market with about 2,500 boxes, of which nearly all were sold at 6⅝c., the balance being held over. The price one year ago was 8c. Two years ago, 9¾c. Three years, 10½c. Four years, 9¼. Five years 8½c.

Board of Trustees.

FULTON, June 18, 1885.

Board met pursuant to adjournment. Present President Waugh and Trustees Bradford, Chase and Johnson.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Trustees Gage and Kendrick came in.

Mr. Chas. F. Bond, agent of the Penn Bridge Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa appeared before the Board and made explanation of the proposal for bridge submitted by that Company.

None of the other parties submitting proposals for bridge appeared.

On motion of Mr. Gage the proposal of the Penn Bridge Co to build the bridge for $945 be accepted, provided said Company will put in iron joists instead of pine, at an additional expense of $175, making $1120 for the whole work, and provided the standing of said Company was found to be satisfactory.

Mr. Bond said the Company would accept the proposition.

On motion of Mr. Johnson the village Attorney was directed to prepare the contract for the work.

The Clerk presented a letter from the Attorney of Mrs. LaDuke, asking immediate payment of the judgment in her favor against the village amounting at this date to $945.01 and interest from January 12, 1885.

On motion of Mr. Johnson the village Attorney was directed to continue the proceedings on appeal to the Court of Appeals in said case.

On motion the Board adjourned to June 24th, 1885, at 8 o'clock p. m.

ARVIN RICE, Clerk.

June 19th, 1885.

Board met pursuant to a call from the President. Present full Board.

The President stated that there had been some misunderstanding about the meeting held last evening, and that some parties making proposals for building the bridge had not been heard.

Mr. Johnson offered the following Resolution, which was adopted:

Whereas, at the meeting of this Board held June 18th inst, to consider the proposals put in for building bridge, some of the parties making proposals were not present and did not explain their plans to the Board; and whereas it is deemed for the interests of the village that this Board obtain all the information possible before making a contract for the work; therefore

Resolved, That the action of this Board at its last meeting in accepting the proposition of the Penn Bridge Co. for the work, be rescinded.

Mr. Towne, agent of the Berlin Bridge Co., Mr. Clagstone, agent of the King Iron Bridge Co. and Mr. Bond, agent of the Penn Bridge Co then separately appeared before the Board and explained the proposals of their respective companies.

Mr. Johnson, having an engagement away, was excused and went out.

Mr. Bradford offered the following:

Resolved, That the contract for building the bridge with with joists be awarded to the Penn Bridge Co. at $1120.

Mr. Gage moved to amend by awarding the contract to the King Bridge Co. at $1191.49.

The amendment was carried as follows:

Ayes—Messrs Gage, Hulett and Kendrick—3.

Nays—Messrs. Bradford and Chase—2.

The original Resolution as amended was then adopted as follows:

Ayes—Messrs Gage, Hulett and Kendrick—3.

Nays—Messrs. Bradford and Chase—2.

And the President was directed to execute the contract for the village.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick the Board adjourned to June 24th 1885 at 8 o'clock p. m.

ARVIN RICE, Clerk.

FULTON, N. Y., June 24, 1885.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present the President and Trustees Bradford, Chase, Gage and Kendrick.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick, John Kavanaugh was appointed policeman No. 9.

The Finance Committee reported favorably on the following bills, and on motion of Mr. Kendrick the same were audited at the amounts claimed and the Clerk directed to draw orders on the Treasurer therefor, to wit:

Thos. G. Poole, special police	$2.00
F. Bennett, printing	43.75
H. McKiernan, Assessor	27.00

J. Kavanaugh, Lamplighter	40.60
D. C. Baker, tools	5.80
M. A. Howe; services Board of Health	2.00
	$184.18

On motion of Mr. Kendrick sections 2 and 3 of chapter 2 of the village ordinances were ordered printed in the minutes of this meeting and the Street Commissioner was directed to call attention to the same, wherever necessary.

Said Sections are as follows:

"12. No person shall throw or deposit any dirty water, dirt, filth, chips, shells, straw, manure or other rubbish in any street, lane or alley of this village under the penalty of three dollars for each offence.

13. No owner or occupant of any tenement or lot in this village shall permit any substance mentioned in the preceding section to be or remain in or upon [illegible] or lot, or between the same and the centre of the street adjoining, under the penalty of two dollars for every day during which the same shall be or remain thereon."

On motion of [illegible] the Board adjourned to July [illegible] at 8 o'clock P. M.

HART BROTHERS'

Improved Water Filter!

This Filter is constructed upon the latest scientific principles, having two cylinders, the inside one being perforated in the bottom. The water is poured around this cylinder, and can only be drawn off after passing through layers of ocean pebbles and prepared charcoal. This effectually separates all impurities, making the foulest water perfectly palatable.

EVERY WOMAN IN THE LAND [illegible]

One week from to-morrow is the day appointed by the village board for our taxpayers to decide whether Fulton is to have water works. The advantages derived from this contemplated improvement are almost incalculable. That it will greatly decrease the rate of insurance is certain. The State board of underwriters declare officially that towns having an improved system of water works are rated No 1, and receive the lowest rates of insurance. The Chief Engineer of the fire department of one of our large cities states that during the four years previous to the putting in of the new water works, the annual losses from fires in that city averaged $4.00 per inhabitant, but that during the four years since the introduction of water, the annual losses had not exceeded an average of 75 cents per capita. Here is an annual saving that fully demonstrates the economy of water works. Thomas Turnbull, chairman Board of Underwriters, Oswego county committee in writing to us concerning rates of insurance on villages in Oswego county, says: As chairman of the committee I can say this, that if the rates are as low as they suppose them to be, there will be a material advance in rates unless villages are provided with a good water supply.

But independent of the advantages derived from a better protection from fires, the sanitary condition of our village would be greatly improved. An abundance of pure water always at one's door would materially facilitate the carrying off of foul sewerage with which the atmosphere is contaminated. Dr. Chandler says, that "Pure water is hardly second to pure air as a life-giving and life-protecting agent. It is the most potent servant the sanitary authorities can call to their aid."

We earnestly hope that our citizens, perceiving the benefit to be obtained from the water works, will decide by a large majority, that Fulton shall soon have the proposed improvement.

A New Heating Stove Enterprise.

We clip the following item, which will be read with interest, from the American Artisan, the leading national stove trade paper of the United States:

The Howe Ventilating Stove Co. have foundry room for twenty-five men, warehouse and shops in a building 50 by 150 feet, three stories high, at Fulton, N. Y. They have 100 horse power in the building with reserve up to 4000 horse power. In the way of shipping facilities they have the advantage of three railroads and the Oswego canal. Two of the railroads run switches into the yard of the stove works.

The company will manufacture the Howe ventilating stove in various forms, as a hard coal base burner, a wood base heater and a box stove for wood, all under the Howe patent. The claims and drawing in this patent were printed in the American Artisan, October 15, 1883. The following report of the committee after testing the operation of the stove will be of interest:

The committee would respectfully report that they have carefully examined the stove set up and in operation in Fireman's Hall and have made several tests as to its heating and ventilating qualities. Also as to the equalizing of the heat in the room. We find that the stove is a great heater—economical in the consumption of fuel and fully ventilates the room when properly set up. It also circulates the air in the room in such a manner as to warm every part of the room equally—actual tests by thermometers made in Fireman's hall—stove being set up in one corner—showing no difference between the thermometer ten feet from the stove and one sixty feet away. Farther tests showed only two to five degrees between the ceiling and the floor—sixteen feet—when in the ordinary radiating stove there is about thirty degrees as any one may learn upon trial.

The officers of the Howe Ventilating Stove Co. are F. G. Weeks, president; E. R. Redhead, vice-president; Almon Bristol, secretary and treasurer. The company have been fortunate in securing as general manager, E. L. Messenger, a competent and and experienced stove man.

Tired of Life.

Alfred Draper, a farmer living at South Hannibal last Saturday morning committed suicide by hanging himself in his barn. He had been suspended several hours when found. He leaves a wife and two sons. His mind has been affected more or less for some time and it is supposed he took his life while temporarily insane. His mental troubles are supposed to be due to financial embarrassment. The funeral services were held Sunday under the direction of the Hannibal lodge of Masons, of which the deceased was a much respected member. An inquest was held by the Coroner, and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above facts.

Police Court News.

Florin Bellenger, a 14 year old boy of Hubbards Corners, was arrested last week on a warrant sworn out by Mr. Heeley of the same place, charging him with burglary and petit larceny. He was arraigned before Police Justice VanWagenen, plead guilty and was sentenced to the House of Refuge. He was taken to Rochester by Officer Poole.

Charles Sylvester, arrested for intoxication was sentenced to 6 months in the penitentiary. The sentence was suspended on condition that he left town for three years.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. Kenyon wishes to announce to the public that he is prepaired to do piano tuning in a satisfactory manner. The following letter from the New York State Institute for the blind, proves that he is capable of doing such work.

All interested are requested to attend as the preliminary lesson will be of great importance. No one will be admitted to the class unless they are present, or send in their name as above.

Miss Stella Crosby formerly of this village, who last week graduated from the Baldwinsville Academy, is visiting friends in town. The Baldwinsville Gazette in speaking of the commencement exercises, says that Miss Crosby's essay on "Drifting" was a meritorious composition and very gracefully delivered.

The Ideal C. L. S. C. closed the year's course yesterday with a picnic at High Banks. During the day toasts, readings songs and other exercises were held. Foot ball, croquet, and boating were among the amusements. They returned after passing a grand time with many pleasant recollections of the day's doings.

The windows of H. & A. Rosenbloom have attracted considerable attention for several days. Elegant silks, satins, laces and velvets in rich profusion are shown in one, and combination dress goods, fans, handkerchiefs, etc. in the other. Both windows present an elegant appearance. The trimming was done by Miss Fannie Stevenson and Mr. Ed. Wolcott, who have the ability to rival the artist of any Metropolitan store.

Down the River.

One of those charming views which always greet the eye as one looks down the river, has just been transferred to canvass by Fulton's artist. The time selected is sunset when the shadows are lengthening and through the hazy atmosphere reddish purple and golden of the sun and reflected from the mirrored waters. The scene is a familiar one looking toward VanBuren's island and the artist never caught the view in a happier moment. This picture was made by Mr. Styles to fill an order for Mrs. H. N. Gilbert who surprised her husband with the presentation of the same yesterday as a birthday reminder.

The Case Adjourned.

The case of the Oswego Falls Board of Trustees against John E. Parker, clerk of the old board, who was served June 22 with a warrant for refusing to deliver to them the books and papers belonging to the village, came up yesterday before acting Police Justice Shannon. Parker appeared without counsel, while the board was represented by Attorney Bulger of Oswego. Parker objected to be tried before Justice Shannon, his successor, whose election he claims was illegal, and declared he could not have an unprejudiced trial, as Shannon was an interested party. He offered to give bail for his appearance in a higher court. After considerable discussion the case was adjourned until July 10.

Soiree Musicale.

The annual rehearsal of Mrs. Bullock's music class was given at her residence last Wednesday evening. Her parlors tastefully decorated with choice flowers, were filled with an appreciative audience.

Twenty-two pieces are a long program, yet they were rendered with such a degree of excellence as to hold the attention, and to interest to the close. All did well and evinced thorough training in time and technique. The class from Baldwinsville added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. The piano solos by Miss Hattie Matteson was classical, and was skillfully executed. The solos by Mrs. Fred Smith were sung sweetly and artistically. A difficult guitar solo by master Vell Reynolds, was especially noteworthy. The piano trio by Misses Bliss and Cornell, two of the girls but nine years old, was well executed. Miss Matie VanBuren rendered a difficult piano solo with effect. The exercises of the evening were closed by a duet performed by Mr. Johnson and Miss Matie VanBuren upon the cornet and piano. Mr. Johnson seems master of his instrument and merited applause. His home is in Norwich and since ten years of age he has played the cornet as an accompaniment to the organ in the Baptist church of that place. Mrs. Bullock added to the enjoyment of the entertainment by providing bountiful refreshments during the social hour which followed. Mrs. Bullock is now attending the National music teacher's association.

Orange Blossoms.

The marriage of Albert R. Ney of this village, to Miss Hattie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morse of Higginsville N. Y., took place at the home of the brides parents last Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Cochran of Oneida. The young couple were the recipients of numerous useful and valuable presents. The day was delightful and everything seemed in harmony with the occasion. They received the hearty congratulations of as jovial a company of guests as ever attended a wedding. Shortly after the wedding supper the happy couple took the train for Fulton, arriving here at 8:30 in the evening and were immediatley conveyed to their residence in Lower Oswego Falls. The Oneida Union in speaking of the marriage says: "Both have hosts of friends in this and other places who wish them abundant happiness." THE TIMES with many other friends in Fulton extends its most hearty congratulations.

Rose Sunday.

Last Sunday evening, Rose Sunday or Children's day was observed at the Universalist church. The church had been profusely decorated with flowers and evergreens. The exercises opened with a voluntary by a quartette consisting of N. H. Gilbert, W. P. Hillick, Mrs. Nellie Pratt and Mrs. Eva Lathrop, Mrs. Ida Watson presided at the organ. Then followed some twenty-five recitations, songs, songs in concert, and singing by the school, after which the pastor, Rev. G. W. Barnes, made some timely remarks touching the object and work of the Sunday school. The house was well filled and all went away feeling that the hour was well spent.

Firemen's Tournament.

A firemen's tournament and brass band contest will be held in Norwich next Friday and Saturday, July 3d and 4th. Over 2,000 uniformed firemen and 16 brass bands are expected to be present. Friday evening a grand display of fireworks will be given in the park. The New York, Ontario & Western railroad company have placed tickets on sale from all stations to Norwich and return, at the fare one way for the round trip for organized bodies, and 2 cents per mile each way for the round trip for the general public.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary Rice, wife of Eber Rice of this village, died last Saturday morning aftar a long and painful illness, aged 68 years. Mrs. Rice was one of the oldest residents in Fulton having been born and brought up here. She was an examplary woman, a devoted mother and an affectionate wife, and was much respected by all who knew her. INTER-ACADEMIC UNION

Will Continue Through To-morrow—List of Principals and Contestants Already Here.

Our village early this morning assumed a livelier aspect than usual, from the fact that a large number of the contestants in the State inter-academic literary union, had already arrived. The first day of the union opens with delightful weather and at present everything points to a successful and unusually pleasant session. Prof. Boothby had previously made ample arrangement for the accommodation of all contestants through the kindness of our citizens. At this hour of writing about half of the 200 principals, and contestants have arrived, and we are therefore unable to give the program of the day. This evening fourteen gentlemen will enter the prize declamation contest at the opera house; and to-morrow evening about the same number of ladies will enter for the prize recitation. These contests will be of great interest and we advise all to secure tickets and attend. To-morrow afternoon Hon. Chas. E. Fitch editor of the Rochester Democrat will deliver the annual address at the Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock. There will be excellent music this evening under the supervision of N. H. Gilbert. There are many good seats obtainable yet, at Phillips drug store.

Oration, with Valedictory, Principle, A source of Power
Burnie M. Chubb.

Miss Rice was the first who appeared before the large concourse of hearers. She delivered her essay and the salutatory in a distinct and pleasing manner.

Mr. Livingston came forward in a fearless manner and spoke for a few minutes on "affectation" with voice well pitched and full of force. He retired from the stage amid great applause.

Mr. Shattuck's oration was the result of deep study and thought, and it was evident that he was master of the undertaking and knew what he was talking about and how to say it. He did well.

Miss Ferguson made a graceful appearance on the stage. She spoke slow and very deliberately in a clear voice.

Miss Farrell's essay displayed much thought and defined the word "success" in its truest meaning. She spoke well.

Mr. LaPorte won the admiration of the audience for his excellent manner of delivery. He was quite enthusiastic over the subject, as well he might be, for it was "Young America." He said: In this brief innumeration of power of the character of young America, let us not forget a word of warning. Opportunities may occur where it is necessary for him to curb his inclination, questions may arise which may better be decided by older minds. Experience is after all of some value. Enthusiasm may lead him into some difficulty from which there can be no happy issue. In short let him sometimes take time to meditate on the old adage "old men are for counsel, young men for war."

Miss Boomer appeared perfectly at ease. She treated her subject cleverly and read with much expression. Among all the treasures bound up and hidden away in books, she says, "none are so numerous or so important as those which incomplete in themselves, furnish much of the clue to much of our present information."

Mr. Lasher's oration on "Oxygen" is well worthy of mention. He has a full, rich voice and spoke in a free and easy manner. He handled his subject skillfully, bringing out many interesting points concerning this gas.

Mr. Allen who was next on the program was absent in attendance at Yale commencement.

Miss Lang's essay was one of the best. She spoke in a clear firm voice which she has well under control, and never once referred to her notes. Though brief, it contained much solemn truth. She said: "While we have been laying the foundation of our education and acquiring a few of those accomplishments which tend to polish and refine character, we have not been burdened with the anxieties and responsibilities to which we shall be subject when we have reached maturity." From her essay we also take the following beautiful sentence: "The great masters of architecture and sculpture, displayed their skill and ingenuity in producing their ideal in marble; from the rough stones wrought form of love, beauty, wisdom—all attributes that seemed to them fair and good. The block of marble to-day may contain the same Venus, who escaped her prison home so long ago, but where is the sculptor to release her? He who attempts it produces not the old form, but a new likeness; the image of his own ideal."

Mr. Coats delivered his oration in a vigorous and pleasing way. To many, he said, the words character and reputation have a similar meaning, but on investigation, we find that although closely connected, they are by no means synomonous."

Miss Elder read in a natural tone of voice with soft accent, which was audible. Her essay was one of the best. She said: "Projects or institutions which aim at noble realizations never lack for champions; however degraded man may have been in bygone ages of barbarism he yet retained some latent spark of noble principle." She further said: "The age of chivalry has not passed away while there is a wrong left unredressed in the world."

Mr. Wright spoke very earnestly, and with good delivery. He said: "Among all the events taking place on our earth none have such universal interest, none [illegible]

[illegible] Elms Hall and Miss Anna Howe had received Albany diplomas but preferred not to graduate this term although capable. They stepped forward and joined the rest. The class as a whole were truely deserving of the honors bestowed upon them. Not one failure was made. They are a credit to their teachers and to the community. We are convinced that each member of the class fully comprehends their motto: "Whosoever advances not, takes a backward step." We hope to hear of every member making his or her mark as they go through this short journey of life.

The floral offerings were many and elaborate, the graduates as they left the stage being fairly laden down with flowers.

The awarding of prizes, which was an interesting part of the evening's program, followed next. Each committee had handed in their report sealed. Mr. Amos Youmans, secretary of the school board, opened them and announced the winners. The rhetorical prize, given by the board of education, of fifteen dollars in gold, was equally divided between B. M. Chubb and Miss Laura M. Lang. Chemistry prize, given by Dr. Hall went to Louis Emerick; botany prize gift of Professor Eggleston, to Miss Rice; zoology, given by C. R. Nichols, also went to Miss Rice; physiology, two gifts by H. E. Nichols, Miss Blanche Boomer and Miss Effie Beals; spelling, two gifts by John Hadcock, Myrtis Gilbert and Eva Montague, report said, for correctly spelling 98 of 100 difficult words. There was also honorable mention made in each report.

The exercises were interspersed by music by Andelfinger's orchestra of Oswego.

At the close of the exercises the class and their teachers repaired to the home of Miss Bertha Elder where a most excellent repast was served under directorship of Mrs. Elder. Excellent music was discoursed and a grand jolification was enjoyed, which will be long and pleasantly remembered by all.

Closing of the West Side Schools.

The closing exercises of number two school at Lower Oswego Falls occurred on Friday last and were of unusual interest. There was a very large attendance of the patrons and friends of education present. Never before has there been so much interest manifested by parents and pupils, and as a consequence the character of the exercises was proportionately advanced. The cause of all this, it was plain to be seen is the result of long and patient labor on the part of the instructors. It is now three years since the present principal, Mr. J. F. Cooper, was engaged to take charge. There was need of a change, little interest, comparatively, being taken by either patron or pupil. There was soon a marked change noticed. Mr. Cooper is inspiring new life into the school being ably seconded by his assistants, Miss Carrie Wright and Miss Frankie Conners. The latter has had charge of the primary department and has shown herself very efficient. With the same excellent corps of teachers in future the school will continue to flourish. The following program was rendered and gave universal satisfaction:

Each teacher received a beautiful present from the pupils.

Highway Robbery.

James Dwyer and Murt Murphy were arrested last Sunday on a warrant sworn out by James Dewell of Palermo, charging them with highway robbery. Dewell says that on Saturday evening he went into Conley's saloon on Second street and "took sumthin." In paying for this he displayed quite a sum of money and then started to go home with a friend of his whom he found in the saloon who lives at the Upper Landing. When near the Willow Hotel on his return he was set upon by Dwyer and Murphy, one of whom held him while the other "went through" him. Upon their examination Monday, they were held in the sum of $500 each to appear Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. After an examination in which the [illegible]

FULTON, July 1, 1885.

[illegible] To make a [illegible] from poor material is as impossible [illegible] as in any manufacturing industry.

A farmer in Salem county, New Jersey, last season raised eighty-three tons of tomatoes on six acres of land. The crop was sold to the canning establishment for $7 a ton.

Black raspberries may be made self-supporting, that is they will not need stakes, by planting them at least four inches deep, instead of an inch or two, as is the general way.

The man who puts an over check on a horse and then tightens it until the horse's nose is pointed into the sky, with the bright sun dazzling his eyes, causing the poor creature unmeasurable misery, should be prosecuted for cruelty to animals.

Ice cold water sprinkled upon cabbage plants infested by the imported cabbage worm, is claimed to be sure death to that insect. The water should be sprinkled upon the cabbages during the heat of the day, when the worms will roll off and die.

A correspondent of the Orange County Farmer says he prevents the white grubs from destroying his strawberry plants by planting between the rows a number of lettuce plants. The grubs like the roots of the latter best, and will let the strawberry alone if fed with them.

Parasitic Disease in Lambs.

Lambs are subject to a parasitic disease which is always fatal to them if neglected. It is known among shepherds by the suggestive names of "pining" and "paper-skin," and by veterinarians as "anaemia," or want of blood. It is caused by thread-worm, which exists in the lungs and air passages, and interferes so much with the breathing as to prevent the decarbonization of the blood, and the necessary supply of this vital fluid. The consequence is, that the red globules of the blood are lacking; the blood is pale, and the growth of the animal is arrested. The skin appears white and thin, like paper, and the young creatures are weak, and pine away gradually for want of adequate nutrition, and finally die. A similar parasite produces the disease in calves, known as "husk," or "hoose," and another causes "gapes" in young chickens. It affects lambs that graze in pastures with old sheep; calves are troubled which are fed with the cow, or upon hay from fields where older animals are pastured; and young chicks which run upon ground fouled by the hens, are apt to get the gapes. To prevent it, this chief cause is to be avoided, while to cure it, the usual and effective remedy is to give small, repeated doses of turpentine. The following mixture is recommended: To one ounce of molasses, or linseed oil, add one-fourth of an ounce of spirits of turpentine; shake well together, and give one teaspoonful to each lamb, early in the morning. For a calf, one tablespoonful should be given, an hour before feeding in the morning; and one drop may be given to a small chicken. The remedy should be repeated for a week or ten days, as it is necessary that a sufficient quantity of the turpentine should be given to secure its escape through the lungs of the animal by exhalation.—[American Agriculturist.

Disposing of Early Potatoes.

It is the manner of disposing of a crop which makes the profit in nearly all cases, but especially is this true in regard to early potatoes. To get the best price, these must be in the market as soon as possible; a week will give one an opportunity of disposing of a whole crop before a competitor can bring in his produce and the prices fall. New potatoes are easily damaged; the skin slips readily, and this spoils their appearance, and of course their value. The use of a convenient package for the potatoes, in which they can be handled and carried to the consumer, brings them to him in the nicest possible shape. Purchasers like to see neat, clean packages, and are pleased to know when they contain full measure. A splint basket makes an excellent package but is not economical of room, and one basket cannot be set upon another without rubbing the potatoes. If the baskets are made square, with straight sides, they are better. But a wooden box is more durable and convenient. It should be sixteen inches long, thirteen and one-quarter inches wide, and thirteen inches deep; this makes one heaped bushel when the box is level full, containing two thousand seven hundred and fifty-[illegible] cubic inches. Such boxes lie close together in a wagon box and no space is lost.—[American Agricultulturist.

Good Coffee.

If you put boiling water on coffee and do not let it boil, you have all the good qualities preserved. When the coffee is ground as fine as possible, put it in a little bag of unbleached muslin, which should be tied tightly enough to prevent the escape of the grounds. If you use a cup of unground coffee you can make [illegible] of very strong, black coffee. [illegible] coffee, many people sacrifice [illegible] strength. Bitterness comes [illegible] boiling. When boiling water is [illegible] the bag of ground coffee it [illegible] minutes be[illegible] the longer it [illegible]

[illegible] certain crops are [illegible], and the interest on investments amounts to more than profit derived, leaving nothing in payment for labor.

It must be evident to every one that the man who begins early to make selections of seeds for spring sowing, getting those which are best adapted to his soil, climate, etc., and those which will yield the greatest return per acre, will succeed better than he who delays all this and makes no effort to secure them until the soil is fully prepared. In the latter case, ten chances to one if inferior qualities are not used, and poor yields the result.

Some farmers complain that they are always behind with their work, on account of not being fore-handed enough to carry on their own independently; that they have to help other people in seed time and harvest before attending to their own farm interests, in order to procure funds and help. Now the man who gets into this rut is destined to remain there just so long as he has not resolution enough to break loose and do for himself. Than to live in such a state of submission and self-robbery, he had better pay four times the real value for seeds, tools and help, and be fully up to the time.

Here and there all over the country, let the season be good or bad, may be seen inferior fields of grain, the result of late sowing, spindling corn-fields from late planting; and in winter poor stock, because fed upon hay which was not cut until it had lost all its vitality, and the loss attending such management should be lessons of value to those who make experience a teacher.

A promptness in business transactions tells as much in favor of the farmer as in any of the professions; the man who has the name of always being up to time, fulfilling all engagements possible, will never lack for creditors, and can therefore obtain whatever he desires to aid his business, and the only way to be just to others, is to be prompt in those things that are of personal interest.

Sleep.

Sleep, like any other appetite, can be cultivated and pampered; and just as any mouthful of food more than we really want is waste, and something worse, so every wink of sleep more than we need is dead loss, and that without the redeeming quality of over-eating and drinking, viz., pleasure. For to be asleep is not pleasure; simply dead loss. To sleep from 11 to 9 in the morning is too much; from 11 till 6 should be, and is, for one averagely healthy and normally constituted, quite enough. The point I want to fix on especially is those two precious hours before breakfast. How many people only begin their day after breakfast, say about ten o'clock! I myself lived for nearly forty years without realizing that I had thrown away about 21,000 hours of good working life. Of course, the candle can not be burned at both ends. You must get your sleep. I have known more than one professional man succumb to the habit of retiring too late and rising too early. That was the beginning of my poor friend the late Baron Amphlett's collapse. As Q. C. he never should have gone into Parliament, and when he retired from the House on a Judgeship the mischief was done. He used to be up late with briefs, or down at the House till 2 or 3, rise at 6, light his own fire and work till 9. All such over-pressure is, of course, bad. Young men may stand it for a few years—young men can stand almost anything for a few years—but it is a vicious principle. Give the body its dues, or the body will revenge itself. Still to acquire the habit of early rising is worth an effort. I recommend it for health and pleasure as well as for profit. No one knows how radiant and vigorous nature looks who has not cared to assist her at early toilet, and seen her bathing herself in crystal dew and decking herself with opening blossoms between four and six o'clock on a midsummer morning. So much and how much more for the pleasure-seeker? But the early-rising worker all the year round is rewarded by an increase of produce, an economy of time and an invigoration of mind and body. Morning literary work is usually characterized by freshness, continuity, grasp and vigor; night work by fever, excitement and less condensation. This I believe to be the rule, and with exceptions, in speaking thus generally, it is, of course, impossible to deal. Of one thing I am certain, that for all headworkers, especially literary men, the following rules will be found golden:

To bed before twelve.

To work before seven.

As little liquid as possible, and no smoking before breakfast.—[Rev. H. L. Haweis.

Favors.

If you want to be happy, never ask a favor. Give as many as you can, and if any are freely offered, it is not necessary to be too proud to take them; but never ask for or stand waiting for any. Who ever asked a favor at the right time? To be refused is a woeful stab to one's pride. It is even worse than to have a favor granted hesitatingly. We suppose that out of a hundred who petition for the least thing—if it be even an hour of time—ninety-nine wish, with burning cheeks and aching hearts, they had not done so. Don't ask favors of your nearest friend. Do every thing for yourself until you drop, and then if anyone picks you up, let it be of his own free choice, not from any groan you utter. But while you can stand, be a soldier. Eat your own crust, rather than feast on another's dainty viands; drink cold water rather than another's wine. The world [illegible]

Something For the Baby.

What a terrible affliction about the house is a cross, crying baby! A young man on the very edge of matrimony might easily be frightened from his purpose by having too much of that sort of music at the homes of his married friends. Yet babies cry commonly only when they are sick. One teaspoonful of Parkers Tonic given the little one, will bring rest and sleep to the baby and all in the house. Only 50 cents, at druggists. 1m1

CURE FOR PILES.

Piles are frequently proceeded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomash, etc. A moisture like prespiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a mommon attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and affecting a permanent cure. A BABY SAVED!

Since birth my baby had running sores all over his head, and the doctors said that he must die, for they could not heal them. I used everything I ever heard of, but it was no good. He got so bad that he would not nurse. My husband's sister told me to try Sulphur Bitters as she had great faith in them. I used a bottle and the sores commenced to heal. After using two bottles more, the sores all healed and I considered my baby saved.—Mother, Concord, N. H.

The Lancet says that appetite is a most misleading sensation, only remotely related to the actual demands of the organism. If we only ate more deliberately we should find half of our accustomed quantity of food sufficient to satisfy the most eager cravings of hunger, and hence save ourselves from the evils of dyspepsia, or, on the other hand, a tendency to over increase in weight.

Purification of Drinking Water.

The average adult man takes into his system four and a half pounds of water daily, and with it too often a dangerous quantity of foreign matter and disease-producing germs. In very many homes during the summer months, water that otherwise would nauseate the drinker, is made cold by ice, and then is hastily swallowed, the coldness masking its offensiveness. Unfortunately for the health of the consumer, the addition of ice does not render the impurities in water innocuous, but often adds to its own contribution of disease-germs. The only safe-guard to the consumer is in giving his personal attention to the filtration of the water used in his household. Water slowly percolated through crushed vegetable charcoal will escape from it not only cleansed of particles held in suspension, but also of organic and other matter. The cheapness of charcoal is such that it is obtainable by all classes, and when soiled, a fresh quantity can be substituted at trifling cost. The most effective filtratrion is obtained by placing crushed charcoal in an earthen vessel, so arranged as to compel the slow passage of the water through it, as all efforts at rapid filtration have proved inefficient. Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly recommended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me. I was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c., MATTHEW FARRELL.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

"The Abstract and Brief Chronicle of the Time," [illegible]

FULTON, OSWEGO COUNTY, N. Y., WEDNESDAY JULY 8, 1885.

PRINCESS BARNABAS.

The Princess Barnabas was in a state of the most profound perplexity. She could not for the dainty little life of her make up her mind on the important question as to whether she should or should not commit suicide at the close of the season. It was not very easy for the princess' many admirers to understand why she should perturb her mind with such a problem at all, but perturb it she did with that very problem, wisely or unwisely.

The Princess Barnabas was a very remarkable young woman, who had proved the puzzle, the pride, and the passion of London society for three whole sensational seasons. She was not yet four and twenty. She bore the title of a great Russian prince who had married her just before she came of age, at a time when he himself was old enough to be her grandfather, and who had considerately died within two years of the ceremony, leaving her absolute mistress of his fortune and his territories, as she had been during life the absolute mistress of his heart for the short time she had swayed it. She was said to be fabulously wealthy. Her jewels were the wonder of the world, and she delighted in wearing them in season and out of season, with a semi-barbaric enjoyment of their glitter and splendor which was, like everything else about her, partly oriental and partly childish. Some time after her husband's death she had come to Paris and got tired of it, and then she crossed the channel and conquered London. During one resplendent session little else was talked about but the Princess Barnabas. Society journals raved about her delicate beauty, which seemed to belong to the canvases of the last century, which ought to have been immortalized on pate tendre, and hymned in madrigals. Men adored her. Women envied her marvelous dress and her matchless jewels. The dying ashes of a season's scandal flared up into marvelous activity around her pretty personality. She was enormously "the thing." Enormously "the thing" she remained during a second season, after an interval of absolute disappearance into the domains of the Czar. Enormously "the thing" she still appeared to be now in her third season, in spite of the rival attractions of an American actress who had not married an English duke and an American girl with millions who had married the bluest blood and the oldest name in Europe. It would have been absurd for any one to contest the point that the Princess Barnabas was the very most interesting figure of that phantasmal dance of shadows which is called London society.

Nevertheless the Princess Barnabas was weary, positively bored. If she had been less of a success, life might not have appeared so desolate. There would have been a piquancy in the possibility of rivalry which would have lent a new interest to the tasteless feast. As it was, however, London life at the height of its maddest activity appeared to her as drear and gray as those vast stretches of steppes which lay like a great sea around one of the Russian castles of the late Prince Bernabas. It was during this fit of depression when the Princess Barnabas was graciously pleased to agree with the author of "Ecclesiastes," that life was vanity, that it occurred to her that in all her strange experiences she had never yet committed suicide. She immediately gave up her mind to the important problem, whether she should gain this ultimate human experience at once, or postpone it indefinately.

It was in this frame of mind that the Princess went to the great ball at the Russian embassay. As she nestled among her furs in the dim, luxurious warmth of her carriage, her mind was running entirely upon the different forms of self-destruction which had been made famous by celebrated persons at different stages in the world's history, and she could find none that were sufficiently attractive or remarkable to please her. "Good heavens!" she thought to herself, with a little shudder, which even the warmth of her surroundings could not repress, "is it impossible to be banale even in that?" and she gave a little groan as she stepped out of her carriage and up the embassy steps. The thought was still on her mind and tracing the least suggestion of a frown upon her exquisite, girlish face as she entered the great room and took the hand of the embassadress. The thrill of interest of excitement, of admiration, which as a matter of course attended upon her entrance did not give her any answering thrill of gratification. She appeared to listen with the most gracious attention to the compliments of the ambassador. She answered with the daintiest little air of infantile obeisance the old world courtesy of a white-haired minister who would have been as much at home as she herself in a salon of the regent of Orleans. She condescended to entangle in her net-work of fascination a particularly obdurate and impassive secretary of state. She patronized a prince of the royal blood and was exceedingly frank and friendly with the young painter Lepell, who knew exactly how much her familiarity meant, but was at once amused and delighted by the envy it excited in others. Yet all the while the Princess Barnabas was not devoting a single serious thought to one of her admirers. [illegible]

[illegible] half-humorous contemplation. The moment, however, their eyes met, he turned his head slightly, and resumed a conversation with a gray-haired old man with a red ribbon at his buttonhole whom she knew to be a foreign diplomatist. The young man's gaze had expressed an interest in the princess, but it seemed just as interested in the pale wrinkled face of his companion. The Princess Barnabas seemed piqued. "Who is that young man?" she asked, half-fretfully, of the secretary of state.

"Which young man?" The secretary of state's stolid face gazed vaguely into the dense crowd of dress coats and white shoulders, of orders and stars and diamonds.

"The young man in the window talking to the gray-haired-man."

The secretary put up his eye-glass and considered the young man in question thoughtfully. He was never known to hurry in his judgments or his replies in parliament, and he did not hurry now, though it was the Princess Barnabas who was interrogating him, and not a member of the Opposition. Then he answered her, weighing his words with more than judicial deliberation: "He is a young fellow named Sinclair. He is going out to the east, or something. Why do you ask?"

"His face interests me," replied the princess. "I should like to know him. Bring him to me; or stay, give me your arm, we will go to him."

She rose and dispersed her little knot of disconsolate courtiers. Taking the secretary's arm, she moved slowly toward the window where Sinclair was still standing. The secretary touched him on the arm. "Mr. Sinclair, the Princess Barnabas has expressed a desire to make your acquaintance. Allow me Princess, to introduce you to Mr. Julian Sinclair."

The young man bowed. He seemed a little surprised, but not in the least embarrassed. The princess smiled brightly at him, and her eyes were brighter than her smile. "Thank you," she said to the secretary of state with a pleasant little smile, which was meant to convey, and which did convey, that she had had enough of him. He promptly disappeared into the crowd with resigned good humor, bearing away with him in his wake the elderly red-ribboned diplomatist.

Princess Barnabas and Julian Sinclair were left alone. She sat down on the couch in the recess of the window, and slightly motioned to him with her hand to take his place by her side. He obeyed silently. The recess of the window was deep. For the moment they were almost entirely isolated from the shifting, glittering throng that seethed and drifted around them. Sinclair kept quiet, looking into the face of the princess with an air of half-amused inquiry. There were a few seconds of silence, and then she spoke, beginning, womanlike, with a question.

"Have you forgotten me, Mr. Sinclair?"

The young man shook his head, gravely. "No, I have not forgotten you, princess." Her eyes were fired on his face, but he returned her gaze quite steadily.

"Yet it must be two years since we met," she replied, "and two years is a long time."

"Yes, two years is a very long time,' he said, half sadly, half scornfully.

There was another little pause. Neither seemed embarassed, and yet the interval was long enough to be embarrassing. Then she spoke again:

"Why did you leave St. Petersburg? Where have you been all this time?"

He answered the second part of her queston: "I have been in Constantinople most of the time. I only returned to London a few days ago, and I am going away almost immediately to the east again, to Persia this time."

"For how long?"

There was a faint tone of weariness in his reply, though he strove to make his voice purposely steady. "Oh, forever, I suppose; or at least until I am an old man, and of no further use. Then perhaps I may come back on a pension, and write dreary letters to The Times about the errors of my successors." And he laughed to prevent himself from sighing.

"You have not answered all my questions," said the princess. "Why did you leave St. Petersburg so suddenly? We were such very good friends, and I assure you I quite missed you."

Sinclair got up and looked down into her laughing eyes. "I left St. Petersburg," he said, "because I was afraid to stay."

Her eyes were laughing still, but there was an unwonted softness in her voice as she asked him: "Why were you afraid to stay? Surely you were not a Nihilist?"

He began to speak, and paused; then with a determined effort to keep his voice under control, he said, "I left St. Petersburg because I was fool enough to fall in love with you."

"Thank you for the compliment. Was that so very foolish?"

"Not for others, perhaps. For me, folly, and worse than folly—madness. I never thought I should see you again; I did not dream that we should meet to-night. But since chance has thrown us together for the last time, as I leave England in a few days for the rest of my life, I may as well tell you, for the first and for the last time, that I love you."

Her eyes were laughing still; those [illegible]

[illegible] hidden by the curtains of the deep window would only have seen a man and a woman talking lightly of little things. "And you have not forgotten me yet?" she said.

"I never shall forget you," he answered sadly. "I cannot love more than once, and I love you with all my soul. Do you remember one day, when we drove together in the Neva perspective, how you stopped to give some money to an old beggar? I envied the beggar for getting a gift from you, and you in jest dropped a coin into my outstretched hand. He took out his watch-chain and showed her the tiny gold coin with the Russian eagle on it. "I have kept it ever since," he said. "It is the only thing I care for in the world. I have lived and shall live so much in the east that I am somewhat superstitious, and I think it is my talisman. Good bye." He held out his hand again. She took it.

"Will you come and see me before you leave?" she asked, almost appealingly.

He shook his head. "Better not," he said.

For a moment she was silent; she seemed to be reflecting. Then she said, with a sudden vehemence, "promise me that if I write and ask you to come you will obey me. Promise me that for the sake of our old friendship."

He bowed his head. "I promise," he said.

"And now give me your arm and take me to my carriage," said the Princess Barnabas. "I want to go home to bed.

The next day Julian heard nothing from the princess. "Of course not," he said to himself, shrugging his shoulders at the fantastic hopes which had besieged his brain since that strange meeting, and he doggedly faced his approaching exile. But on the afternoon of the second day after the meeting at the embassy, Julian Sinclair, coming to his hotel after a day spent in busy preparations for departure, found a tiny note awaiting him. It was from the princess, and had only these words: "Come this evening, I shall be alone." And he went.

* * * * * * *

This was a part of a conversation which Princess Barnabas happened to overhear at a reception at the foreign office, on the eve of her departure for the east. The speakers were Harry Kingscourt and Ferdinand Lepell. Said the painter: "Have you heard the news about the Princess Barnabas? She is going to marry a fellow named Sinclair, and is going to live in the east—Persia, or some place of the kind. The fellow hasn't a penny in the world and won't have from her, for I believe that by her husband's will she loses almost all her fortune if she marries below her own rank." "How very romantic," yawned Kingscourt. "Romantic," replied Lepell; "it is absurd. Haven't you heard? the woman has committed suicide." And the speakers moved away.

"Suicide," said the princess to herself, smiling. "No, no; I was going to commit suicide once, but I have learnt what life is worth, and I have changed my mind."

THE PROPER THING.

Mitts are not worn with dressy costumes this summer.

The Jersey is quite discarded for elegant toilets.

Straw ornaments are much used for bonnet trimmings.

Much fine embroidery and lace are used on little girl's skirts.

A belt is always used as a finish to a little boy's costume.

Loop knots of ribbon are worn at the throat with ruching.

The wool canvas dresses are especially liked for seaside use.

Black wraps are worn, even with the most delicate costumes.

Light green is more used for bonnet trimming than for gowns.

White plumes will be fashionable all summer upon dressy white hats.

Blue with red remains a favorite combination of colors for seaside ware.

There is a steady tendency to return to the styles of dress of fifty years ago.

The only tones of blue employed at present are navy, sapphire and sky-blue.

Ruching is very popular. Linen, mulle, crepe lisse, silk grenadine and sheer silk are all used.

White waistcoats braided with narrow gold cord, are remarkably pretty with dressy costumes.

Double folds of canvas, either white or colored, are basted in the neck and sleeves of traveling dresses.

Plain velvet dresses looped up on one side over a satin or beaded skirt, are new and elegant for evening wear.

Wool serge and twilled flannels remain the favorite material for bathing suits. Wool braids are used for the trimmings.

Small necklets of plaited silk crape, in the popular shades, with a small pompon to match at the side, are very fashionable.

Black will be in fashion as long as there are women possessing any idea of the advantage accruing from the possession of a black gown.

It is estimated that the number of people who meet their deaths by railway accidents, sixteen per cent. are killed by falling or being thrown from engines or trains in motion. Forty per cent. of those injured by railways are hurt by coupling cars and seven per cent. of the killed are killed from the same cause. The average life of a freight brakeman is only ten years.

Hunting wild hogs in the tules of the San Joaquin river is profitable business. One man during the past winter killed seventy-three, which netted him $400, besides furnishing meat for twenty-seven wood-choppers all the season.

The Beauty of Youth.

No matter how handsome or stalwart a young man may be otherwise, nothing can make up for a partially bald head. Shining talents are attractive, but a shining poll is not. The cause may be sickness or anything else, yet Parker's Hair Balsam will stop the loss of the hair and start a new growth of glossy and soft hair so quickly as to surprise you—restoring the original color at the same time. Not a dye, not oily, delicately perfumed. Only standard 50c. dressing. 1m1

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 10 Dexter St.

DR. J. A. SHERMAN—Dear Friend: I am sorry, Doctor, you have left Boston. Persons continue to come to my house to inquire respecting you, while many others write me. Many who left me said they would surely seek your aid. Your success has been wonderful, and I am quite sure without a parallel. To my surpise my large Hernia appears to be perfectly healed. I did not expect it at the age of 79. After receiving your treatment I was relieved from suffering which was fast taking my life. I have no idea I should be living had you not taken my case in hand. I weigh now 170 pounds, over thirty pounds more than then. I think you must receive a great amount of happiness from the relief given and gratitude rendered.

You owe it to my son in Boston, who has known many of your patients before and after healing, that I applied to you. "Go," said he, "to Dr. Sherman; he is doing wonders." I had failed of help from a dozen others and doubted, but he would not let me rest till I went. I bless the day I did so. It is to me a mystery, Doctor, that you have so wonderfully out-distanced all in your profession.

I hope your life will long be spared to relieve sufferers, and thus bless the world. Most affectionately and gratefully yours, REV. JOHN ALDEN.

The Rev. John Alden's case was quite as bad as Mr. James Corlew's, in Dr. Sherman's illustrated book. Those who value immunity from strangulated rupture, the injury trusses inflict, and the comforts of physical soundness should lose no time in securing the benefits of Dr. Sherman's treatment and remedies. His book, containing likenesses of bad cases before and after cure, with evidence of his success and endorsements from distinguished physicians, clergymen, merchants, farmers, engineers and others, is expressed to those who send 10 cents. Dr. Sherman can be consulted daily at his office, 251 Broadway, New York, except Thursdays and Fridays, when he will be in Philadelphia office 302 Walnut Street. NOTE.—No operation or detention from business. Patients from a distance can receive treatment and leave for home same day. 3w4

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

A member of President Cleveland's cabinet is credited with the statement that had not the administration been inflexible in its adherence to the civil-service reform, the country would have been in danger of a revolution within six weeks after March 4. "The country and the Democratic party" he added, "owe a debt of gratitude to President Cleveland for the firmness with which he has adhered to his engagement in regard to the public service. I can say that he has been the master of us all in this matter; and I will add that while I believed in civil-service reform before, I never saw the absolute necessity of it for the safety of the country, for its peaceful and ordinary continuance, as I have learned to see it since I have been a cabinet officer. The country has become too great and populous for a continuance of the spoils system. It would breed revolution." We cannot see how a revolution could have been brought about in that length of time, still we can see where there would have been a disposition for a feeling of general dissatisfaction or a public declaration of disgust with the President's course. As it is, however, we are sure that the Democratic party as well as many Republicans will gladly commend the present course and will admit that it is prudential and honest, for the best interests of the country, while at the same time tending to maintain and strengthen his own party.

What man would make a better run for governor on the Democratic ticket than Roswell P. Flower?

The strike among the Chicago street railway conductors and drivers has not yet been entirely subdued. The affair is most disgraceful to the city.

Aspirants for the nomination of county clerk will soon, if they have not already commenced, to pull the wires and gather material for a good hot fight.

James D. Fish might improve his time in prison by inventing some scheme which will prevent bank employes from getting into Canada with so much lucre in a single night.

Ex-Governor Seymour promises to write a letter advocating the appropriation by the State of enough money to improve the canals so as to increase their capacity three-fold. He will attend a convention to organize a movement for the improvement. It will probably be held in Utica next August.

The American Dairyman thinks that farmers will not be injured by the recent decision of the Court of Appeals that the oleomargarine law was unconstitutional so far as it prohibited the manufacture of the article. Farmers will be compelled to make a better article of butter and consequently will get better prices.

A Fourth of July incident was a banquet given in London by Cyrus W. Field at which Minister Phelps, Senator Edmunds, Consul-General Waller, the more prominent members of the American colony in London, the Duke of Argyll, Lords Houghton and North, John Bright and a large number of noted Englishmen were present. Toasts were drunk and all the distinguished guests made speeches. Mr. Field sent a congratulatory dispatch to President Cleveland and a sympathetic dispatch to General Grant.

The Cincinnati Enquirer says that there is a very prevailing belief that the President has asked Hoadly to make the Gubernatorial race in Ohio. The recent interview with Hoadly put out by The Sun has pleased the President not a little, and he is willing and anxious to test the popularity and strength of his Administration in Ohio by having Hoadly at the head of the Democratic ticket. It can be said that Hoadly has been more than impressed by this desire on the part of the President, and it can be openly declared at this time that if he is nominated he will again measure swords with Foraker. For personal reasons he would prefer to let politics alone, but the President has urged him with so much delicacy and yet force that he feels constrained to oblige him.

Mexico's financial condition has caused her officials to make many propositions for the sale of Mexico territory to this government. The President and Secretary Bayard have received many letters on the subject. The most popular of the plans pushed forward is one for the purchase of the six states of Mexico which lie on her northern boundry next to the United States.

Sec. Manning has sent out a circular stating that in the future merchandise which passes over Canadian territory in transit from one part of the United States to another will be treated as having been imported from contiguous foreign territory and therefore subject to custom duties. This order, if enforced, will destroy a large portion of the business now transmitted by the Grand Trunk and other railroads.

From present appearances it looks very much as though the Republicans would meet in State convention first after all. Many of the leaders declare that an early convention is the most expedient. In addition to the nomination of the State ticket the scheme of Senator Warner Miller, of reorganizing the conventions by increasing the number of delegates will be acted upon. Carr seems to be gaining strength in localities.

Wheat is rapidly ripening in Western New York.

There were 275,000 bushels of malt made at Lyons during the season just closed.

Edward Rathburn of Auburn, was shot by officer Goetchus, at Seneca Falls, Saturday, for insulting a lady. His wound in the arm is dangerous.

Cars commenced running on the new street railway at Oneida for the first time last Saturday. Oneida is one of the most prosperous and wideawake villages in the State.

Thirteen members of the Salvation army were locked up in the police station in Syracuse, charged with marching thro' the streets and making a disturbance by playing upon drums and tambourines, shouting and singing.

The New York State Teachers' association holds its 40th anniversary at Saratoga, July 8, 9 and 10. The national Educational association meets at the same place from July 10 to 18.

The head of one New York clothing house is quoted by the New York Times as saying that his firm spent over $5,000 last year in signs along highways and railroads, money, he avers, that was "all wasted."

A boy, aged 12, was struck by a Central express train near Palmyra, Friday night. It was evidently a case of suicide. He had taken pains to remove everything in his clothes that might serve to identify him.

Large crowds gathered at Union Springs, on Cayuga lake, Saturday, and waited patiently thro' the rain to see the single scull race which was advertised to take place there between Courtney and Conley, but they were destined to disappointment. Conley did not appear.

A man was struck by a west-bound freight on the Central-Hudson railway near Savannah, N. Y., Saturday morning. His head was nearly severed from his body. It is supposed that his name is Thomas Greenwood of Stockport, England.

At Starin Place, Fultonville, N. Y., Saturday, as a cannon was being fired in accordance with the annual custom of Commodore J. H. Starin, the gun went off prematurely and William Van Voast was killed instantly. Charles Maxwell was badly injured and died soon after.

On July 21st the Survivors' association of the Twenty-seventh regiment, New York Volunteers, will hold their sixth annual reunion at Elmira. The date chosen will be the twenty-fourth anniversary of the battle of Bull Run, where the regiment received its first taste of war but a very few days after being mustered into service.

Fire was discovered in the loading room of the Remington cartridge works at 10:45 o'clock Monday night. The fire soon reached the main building, which is also the sewing machine works. More than ten million cartridges were destroyed, the upper story of the cartridge factory, the main building and the sewing machine shop are nearly destroyed. Help arrived from Herkimer, Mohawk, Frankfort and Utica.

The striking moulders at Rochester, numbering nearly 200, are still out. In the Cook and Sell foundries about twenty non-union men are working. These men work, sleep and live in the shops and are closely guarded against possible attempts of the strikers. Mann & Converse's and Austin & Galusha's foundries are almost entirely idle, only work being done in regard to which there is no dispute.

Joseph E. Perkins of Syracuse, has for the past 38 years been collecting statistics of the people who have died at the age of 100 years or over. He has 10,000 instances gathered from all parts of the world and will publish them in book form. Connecticut takes the lead among the states, and sailors, soldiers and farmers among occupations. He found 100 ministers, 30 doctors, 10 lawyers and 10 actors, while only one journalist was discovered. The majority of centenarians are women.

Pie-crust thus made is much more wholesome and digestible, besides being more economical and easier prepared. In addition to saving all the butter it desired, one-third the flour is also dispensed with, as the crust is rolled that much thinner, the leavening qualities of the Royal Baking Powder swelling it to the requisite thickness. If drippings or lard be used, the Royal Baking Powder removes any unpleasant taste, rendering the crust as short, sweet and pleasant as if made from the finest butter. Those who know the appetizing qualities of the genuine home-made American pie will rejoice that by the aid of Royal Baking Powder in the pastry it can be made quite as digestible as it is delicious.

A near friend of John McCullough's says there is not a theatre from Maine to Oregon in which some actor or stage manager does not owe him some borrowed money, and that if the money he has loaned was returned to him now he would be worth $100,000.

President Cleveland said to a reporter: "I'm not a bit tired." But he ought to think of the hundreds of thousands of fellows who have taken the Bible injunction and asked, but have not received. Tired won't begin to express it; they are totally undone, and fearfully tired. A Chicago Democrat can be told by his tired walk two squares away.—[Chicago Herald.

COUNTY COMMENT.

The Independence Temperance society of Scriba Centre held a strawberry and ice cream festival at Grange hall, Friday evening. The total receipts were $50.

About five thousand people attended the Fourth of July celebration at Central Square. Judge Nutting was the speaker of the day.

The wagon shop of Dyke & Williams at Lacona was burned Saturday night. [illegible] insured for $1,000. A building [illegible] by W. B. Tifft was also badly injured.

Mrs. Carrie R. Waugh, missionary among the Freedmen at New Berne, N. C. [illegible]

[illegible] was less of a financial success than that of last year, the cause is no doubt due from the fact that Fulton is not as centrally located as Waterville, and not from any fault of the managers. In the business meeting of Thursday morning Principal James W. Ford of Colgate academy was elected president and A. M. Wright of Moravia secretary of the next year's contest which will be held at Owego.

The examiners in studies were Prof. J. H. Gilmour, of Rochester, Prof. P. H. Braislin of Vassar College, Prof. Geo. P. Bristol of Hamilton College and Miss E. H. Brewar of Vassar College. The supervising committee was D. D. Metcalf, C. R. Parkhurst, Jay B. Cole and Wm. B. Howard.

The speaking for prize declamations at the opera house on Wednesday evening was decidedly interesting. There were fourteen contestants. The following is the program:

"Lost Ship," - - - Male Quartette

Insulted the First Thing.

The new waiter girl sidled rather timidly up to the dinner table yesterday to take her first order. She had just come from up near Sand Bank, Oswego county, and her folks had warned her to beware of any attempts at familiarity on the part of the young men.

"What are we to call you?" inquired the boarder at the head of the table,

"My name is Miss Diefendorf, if you please."

"Yes, Miss Diefendorf, but your first name?"

"Thank you," cried Miss Diefendorf, turning on her heel and flouncing out of the room, "I'm not that sort of a girl, and if you was anything of a gentleman, you'd know I didn't come here to get insulted on the very first day, too."—[Syracuse Standard.

Cheese Market.

(From the Utica Herald.)

AT UTICA July 6.

The market to-day has probably been the most active of the year. By this we mean that the competition for choice lots was livelier than it has been before. Several factorymen who thought they were doing remarkably well found that they had sold too soon, and might have obtained more money if they had waited a little. The secret of the boom seems to be the single fact that it was June cheese that was being sold. It is anticipated that this cheese will be finer than the July make, and of better keeping quality. We suspect also that buyers are beginning to wake up to the fact that the make is decidedly short. Inquiry among salesmen to-day showed that in almost every case the factories are making and have been making fewer cheese than last year. Whether this will continue is a problem, as from this time out there was a great shrinkage of milk last year. But it is a fact that dairymen are not feeding extra this year, as they can not afford it at the present prices of butter and cheese.

Transactions of the day are as follows: 34 boxes skims at 6¾c.; 2 lots, 196 boxes, at 7c.; 4 lots, 400 boxes, at 7¼c.; 5 lots, 480 boxes, at 7½c.; 7 lots, 1,117 boxes, at 7⅝c.; 18 lots, 2,227 boxes, at 7¾c. 3 lots, 622 boxes at 7⅞c.; commissions, 1,000 boxes; 6,589 boxes at 7⅜c.; Sales, 11,675 boxes; total 12,684 boxes. Ruling price, 7⅝c. Transactions one year ago, 13,812 boxes at 8¼c.; two years ago, 15,055 at 9¼c.

Little Falls, July 6.

It was quite a surprise all around to find an advance to-day of one cent per pound on cheese. It was sought to keep the ruling price at 7¼c.; but it could not be done, and it went strong at 7½c.; in fact, so very little sold below this figure as to cause some astonishment. Again there are fears of a rebound in price next week, but if the weather does not turn hot, it is believed this will be avoided. White cheese is in better demand than colored. It was believed that this is a good week to sell and we learn of no holding back of stock. Feed in pastures continues to be very fair, but with some the hay crop promises to be quite light; on the average it is believed that less hay will be cured than last year. Transactions to-day are:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
2	175	7 cts
4	225	7¼ cts
91	5,842	7½cts
24	2,202	7¾cts

Farm Dairy	813

Farm Dairies.—Business on the morning market was done on a basis of only one-fourth cent advance from a week ago, the range being 6¾ and 7½c., with the bulk at 6¾ and 7c. These are low rates compared with sales on the afternoon market.

Butter.—There were 58 packages of creamery butter sold, nearly all of which brought 18½c. A few tubs brought 18c. Twenty-three packages farm dairy sold at 16 and 17c.

AT FULTON.

The sudden rise in the price of cheese last Monday night rather surprised both buyers and makers. The latter were decidedly backward in offering cheese, being hopeful of a still further advance. Twenty-six factories were represented with [illegible] boxes, of which about 1,600 were sold for 7¼c. to 7½c., the balance being held over or sold on commission. [illegible]

But, next morning, he appeared half-offended at our offering pay for his hospitality! My companion, however, made him accept as a present a sample from his case of goods.

Six weeks later, I drew up at the same house. The planter stepped lithely from the porch, and greeted me cordially. I could scarcely believe that this clear complexioned, bright-eyed, animated fellow, and the morose being of a few weeks back, were the same. He inquired after my companion of the former visit and regretted he was not with me. "Yes," said his wife, "we are both much indebted to him."

"How?" I asked in surprise.

"For this wonderful change in my husband. Your friend when leaving, handed him a bottle of Warner's safe cure. He took it, and two other bottles and now——" "And now," he broke in, "from an ill-feeling, growling old bear, I am healthy and so cheerful my wife declares she has fallen in love with me again!"

It has made over again a thousand love matches, and keeps sweet the tempers of the family circle everywhere.—[Copyrighted. Used by permission of American Rural Home.

HART BROTHERS'

Improved Water Filter!

This Filter is constructed upon the latest scientific principles, having two cylinders, the inside one being perforated in the bottom. The water is poured around this cylinder, and can only be drawn off after passing through layers of ocean pebbles and prepared charcoal. This effectually separates all impurities, making the foulest water perfectly palatable.

[illegible] is an ample supply of water can be supplied to all parts of the village.

Leaving out of the question the beautifying of our village by its use, I refer to the protection of property it will afford and to the great reduction in insurance far greater than the amount of taxes, that will be made when the water is furnished. On examining into the cost of insurance I find we pay on an average from 20 to 25 per cent. more for insurance on property similarly situated than is paid in corporations where water works are in operation. In fact we have this fact demonstrated at home. Our factories at an expense far exceeding the entire cost of the proposed system, have their entire property protected by powerful pumps and an ample supply of water, thus reducing to about one half of one per cent. the insurance on their hazardous risk, a rate far less than we are compelled to pay on our safest business property. I again refer our taxpayers to the humiliating fact that for lack of proper facilities for extinguishing fires, one of our best business blocks was entirely destroyed and for more than 30 years it has remained only partially rebuilt, and that a repetition of such a catastrophe would be fatal to our village. As means for such prevention is now offered at a meagre cost to the tax payers, let us adopt it by all means, and thus assure all who will aid in benefitting and beautifying our village that all reasonable protection to property will be given. Respectfully,

JOHN J. STEPHENS.

To the Editor of THE TIMES:

The question that has more nearly interested the people of our village than perhaps any other, for some months past, has been that of the proposed new water system.

We cannot but regard it as one of the most important questions that our citizens have ever been called to act and decide upon when the benefits derived are fully considered. The health and life giving qualities of pure water distributed to us direct from its fountain head in a way that escapes all pollution from other sources cannot be well overestimated, it is next in importance to the pure air that we breathe.

Other villages, larger and smaller than ours have been in the enjoyment of this blessing for years, and it can be truthfully said that in such communities, the health of the people has been as a rule exceptionally good. As we have heard the terms for the introduction of the water stated and from opinions expressed by prominent citizens of Fulton, they are reasonable both for fire protection and for public and private use in comparison with other places in the state where rates are low.

Water offered to families who depend upon cisterns and wells, for all ordinary uses, would be furnished according to size of family and number of rooms, at from $5.00 to $7.00 per year and from a source that will not run dry or otherwise fail. For bath tubs, closets, lawn sprinklers, &c. a fair rate would also be given.

With a thorough system of water supply, with our new railroad, our present lines, and our unbounded water power in advantages would place Fulton on par with any place in the State. From the present popular expression in favor of the water works, we think that the verdict of the taxpayers, to be decided to-morrow, will be for its adoption. Such a decision once made we undertake to say will be one never to be regretted.

The Fourth.

All last Friday evening a large crowd of irrepressible small boys were hard at work collecting boxes, barrels, and anything else that would burn, for the building of a mammoth bonfire near the canal bridge. At midnight the huge pile was ignited, and with the ringing of the fire bell, the "ever glorious" was more or less appropriately ushered in.

The day was very quiet in Fulton, as nearly everybody seemed disposed to spend the day as pleasantly as they could with the least exertion. A few but congenial parties swung their hammocks and picnicked in some of the many shady nooks on the banks of the river below the village.

A large and merry crowd assembled at the N. Y., O. & W. railroad depot about 9 o'clock, and when the train of flat cars which had been tastefully decorated with evergreens, backed down, they were loaded with excursionists for Three River Point. This is the first excursion over the new Phœnix road, and all who attended report having a very pleasant time.

The Catholic picnic on the fair ground was largely attended. The children of the Sunday school assembled at the church in the morning, and after forming into line, marched to the grounds. Music, dancing, ball playing and other amusements were the order of the day, and happiness and good feeling reigned supreme.

Several members of the Oswego Canoe club came with their boats by train, and spent a large part of the day on the river with Fulton canoists.

In the evening the rink was opened and a large crowd of skaters spent the time in their favorite amusement.

Sunday's Storm.

A severe rain storm accompanied by hail visited this section last Sunday afternoon. The storm seemed to gather and break directly over the village. The air was charged with electricity, telephone bells were rung, and on the wires in front of the Western Union office a large ball of fire was noticed which exploded with a sharp report. No serious damage was done in town, but a house on the other side of the river was said to have been struck by lightning and slightly damaged. Fortunately no one [illegible]. A correspondent writes that hops are looking indifferently well. Oswego county will probably produce less than an average crop this year. A few yards are looking splendid at this time, but many old and very new yards are a total failure.

Hannibal Williams of New York delivered a lecture on "Othello" in the chapel of school No 2, on Monday evening, under the auspices of the ladies of the M. E. church. The eloquence of Mr. Williams is too well known, and needs no comment. The only disagreeable feature of the evening was the oppressive heat.

An exchange gives the latest method of endeavoring to fool the public, in regard to matrimonial bliss: Young married couples off on their wedding tour have in times past devised a good many able schemes to conceal from their fellow travelers how recent their happiness was, but none that we ever heard of equaled in inventive genius the young pair from Somerville, who borrowed a three-year-old boy from a neighbor to take along with them to avoid suspicion.

Seth Green objects to liming streams to exterminate pickerel as it renders the waters valueless for the propagation of trout. The lime effectually kills the pickerel, but it also exterminates all other forms of life in the streams and leaves the trout that may afterwards be deposited there with nothing whatever to feed upon. The only proper way to rid a stream of pickerel, he says, is to snare or shoot the fish when on the spawning beds and pursue them relentlessly with hook and line.

The country newspaper is the most useful of all the agencies which stamp the impress of progress upon villages and inland cities. Without the aid of local newspapers towns are, as a rule, thriftless and dead. It is common for small great men to speak in contempt of the local newspapers, but the village newspaper makes more great men out of less material—more bricks without straw—than any other factor in politics, and it is the one ladder on which men climb to local distinction as the beginning of wider fame. The advent of the local newspaper has always dated the increased thrift of the community. The local newspaper is the life of the locality, and the measure of its support, as a rule, measures the advancement of the people.—[Phila. Times.

The outside of THE TIMES is printed on Saturday. On that day papers enough—as we suppose—are printed for the next week. Between Saturday and the next Wednesday—publication day—something of importance is liable to happen that will create an unusual demand for the edition, some weeks as many as 500 extra copies of the paper have been wanted. Twice within the past six months this has happened. When this demand is made, while the forms are on the press, we print the inside—local pages—on both sides of extra sheets, then cut them in two, and mail a few of these half sheets to exchanges and some of our subscribers who live out of town, thinking that they consider the local news of more importance than the outside reading matter. It is seldom we are called upon to do this and we thought that the few who received these half sheets would kindly overlook the discrepancy as it occurs so rarely. We presume that THE TIMES will still make its appearance each week in spite of the loss of the above subscriber.

The Stove Works.

Work on the upper foundry is being pushed forward as rapidly as the weather will permit. The roof of the moulding room is nearly completed, and will be finished this week. The interior of the buildings have undergone several changes, new floors have been laid and other needed improvements made. Mr. Redhead, the vice-president of the company is confident that active operations will be begun by Sept. 1st. He expects that about next week the new machinery, sand, patterns, etc., will arrive and the work of casting will commence.

Mrs. Grundy on Insurance.

On general principles, Life, Fire and Casualty Insurance are good things.

Specifically, it is one of the very best means of advertising a prosperous business.

An English publisher guarantees $500 to the legal heirs of any person found dead with a copy of the current issue of a certain weekly paper on his person.

The scheme of insurance advertising might be indefinitely extended. For instance Kent & Miller, Nos. 18 and 20 South Salina street, might guarantee a weekly payment to all persons hurt while wearing a suit of clothes of their manufacture.

At any rate Kent & Miller do now insure every purchaser perfect satisfaction in quality, in style, in pattern, in make and in price of the choice summer clothing now in stock. Call and see.

Trustees' Proceedings.

Fulton, July 1, 1885.

Board met pursuant to adjournment. Present, President Waugh, and Trustees Chase, Hulett and Johnson.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A communication from the Fire Department stating members received and discharged was read and on motion of Mr. Johnson placed on file.

Mr. Chase from the committee on lamps reported that the committee had examined the oil lamps and ordered all necessary repairs made.

The matter of apportioning the expense of repairing on First street and putting in tile and repairing sluice under tow-path, was referred to the Street Committee.

On motion of Mr. Johnson the Board adjourned to July 8th, 1885, at 7½ o'clock, p. m.

Last evening the young ladies of the Catholic church gave a festival in the rink. It was largely attended and all present seemed to enjoy themselves. Refreshments were served and dancing indulged in until a late, or rather an early hour.

During the heavy rain storm yesterday a high wind prevailed which caused considerable damage in this vicinity. A barn belonging to Peter LaMay, about two miles east of the village, was blown completely over, and other buildings east of Fulton were more or less damaged. A large tree in the rear of Mr. McCracken's house was torn up by the roots and carried along a distance of fifty feet.

The first number of the Phœnix Chronicle, a new seven column, four paged paper, published by Robert Saunderson of New York, and edited and managed by Harrison Bros., late of the Register, came to our table last Friday morning. The editors announce that it is "strictly a business venture, based on reasons which are purely financial." We wish our neighbors abundant success in this new venture.

Judge Low of New York was in town Saturday and made a trip to Fulton on the new railroad, and also visited Three River Point to learn what progress was being made with the bridge at that point. [illegible] Joicing. After a pleasant drive, and an enjoyable visit in Baldwinsville, he obtained his horse from the livery stable, and accompanied by his girl, started on his return. During the drive home the young man was so engrossed—probably with the beautiful scenery—that he failed to notice the fact that the horse he then had was a different one from his own, but such is the undeniable fact. If he was not such an exemplary young man we would almost be compelled to think he had become color blind or was dazzled by the fireworks, but truth compells us to say he was lost in admiration of the beautiful landscape. Upon his arrival home, he put his horse in the livery stable, and it was then, when the animal was under the brilliant rays of the kerosene lantern, that he noticed the change. His own well-known "Dick" had been retained in Baldwinsville, and an inferior animal that was sadly afflicted with the heaves had taken his place. The young man was chagrined, as well he might be, and after procuring eminent legal counsel as a precautionary measure, he finally obtained his own horse from the parties who had unintentionally made the change. We shudder when we think what the consequences would have been had an antiquated mule or a long-horned ox been substituted for his own noble steed, but "all's well that ends well."

[illegible] the place for the [illegible] The funeral was held last Sunday afternoon, and was as large as any ever held in Oswego. From all portions of the country came sorrowful friends to attend the last sad rites to the dead chief.

Shortly after two o'clock the procession moved toward the Congregational church in the following order: Platoon of police, 29th separate company, 38th separate company, G. A. R. drum corps, O'Brian post, surviving members of 147th regiment, to which the deceased belonged, the veterans' association, mayor and common council, officers of the city government, the fire department, the masonic organizations, the hearse, guarded by knights templar, and a long line of carriages.

The services at the church were conducted by the Rev. J. S. Riggs, who preached an eloquent sermon. The remains were buried in Riverside cemetery with masonic ceremonies. Mr. Baker leaves a wife and two children who have the hearty sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Michael Kivel died at his home in this village last Friday, aged 45 years. Funeral services were held on Sunday from the house. The remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery.

General Grant's Life.

A wonderfully nice book, as entertaining as any novel, is Richardson's "Personal History of U. S. Grant," revised and completed by Mr. Fletcher of the Hartford Courant; a volume of over 600 octavo pages, with 33 fine engravings illustrating scenes in which the General has figured. No better author ever appeared before the public than Mr. Richardson, who has always been noted for his careful and accurate writings, and the General is to be congratulated in having a biographer of so great ability. The book is really of more value and practical use than the General's own "Memoirs," which will cover but comparatively small portions of his life, while Richardson's book covers the entire career of the great soldier, and sells for about one-third the price. We can heartily advise any who want a reliable, first-class "Life of Gen. Grant," complete to date, to purchase "The Personal History," by Albert D. Richardson, in preference to any other. The book ought to be in every household.

Mr. A. L. Goman of this village, has the agency for this county and will visit you before long.

Stormonth's English Dictionary.

Harper & Brothers of New York have just published a new dictonary which is by far the best handy lexicon we have yet seen; not so large but that a school girl can handle it, or a business man can find room for it on his desk. The plan is a new one, the words being placed either single or in groups, and printed in bold black letters. The leading or key words is given in larger type to catch the eye readily and following compactly are the words, a system of grouping is adopted which gives many more words in the same space than either Webster or Worchester. Special attention is given to the accuracy and extent of definition, and just so simple and full, as to convey a clear idea of the meaning of the words. The latest and most approved pronunciation is given, with others following where usage is well divided in their use. Besides being the most complete English dictionary in each department, it is in a great degree supplying the place of an English cyclopedia. Price $6,00.

[illegible] but the [illegible] plan has [illegible]. The stubble is [illegible] not more than four inches deep and immediately harrowed in a thorough manner. There are several new implements which do this work in the best manner, pulverizing the soil, leveling the surface and smoothing it, [illegible] the land in the most perfect condition for the seed. After all this has been done, and the furrow marks obliterated, the seed is sown and the surface immediately rolled. If this is done in July, nothing more is required. If this is done later, it will be desirable to sow turnip seed at the rate of one pound per acre with the grass seed. This affords protection for the young grass and clover in the fall and winter. We have found it a good plan to leave the turnips on the ground and not gather them. They will be killed by the frost, and the leaves falling down, furnish protection to the grass during the winter, and in early spring, when so much damage is usually done by the alternate thaws and frosts. The grass will usually furnish one cutting the same season, but it should not be pastured, as the surface is not yet firm enough, nor the plants sufficiently well rooted to stand such a tax.—[American Agriculturist for July.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

Grass loses three-fourths in weight by drying.

Kill the potato bugs; each female lays 1,000 eggs.

It is said that corn cobs dipped in coal-tar and placed by cucumber vines drive away the striped bugs.

The Norway spruce planted at two feet apart will, with one clipping each year, make a perfect and beautiful hedge for the farm.

A good wheel hoe is as much superior to the common hoe for cultivating a garden as is the mowing machine to the sickle in the hay field.

Pigs squealing for food should not be heard, if profit or good meat are desired. Cheaply fed pig meat boils away in the pot and lacks quality.

Feed your poultry with raw onions, chopped fine, mixed with other food, about twice a week. It is better than a dozen cures for chicken cholera.—[Colorado Farmer.

If hens must be confined at this season, be sure of four things: That they have clean quarters, good shade, plenty of dry feed, and as much sand and grave as they can use.

When horses refuse their feed, and act sick, give them one tablespoonful of ginger, two tablespoonfuls of soda, two or three tablespoonfuls of salts (that is if you use the common Epsom salts), and one tablespooful of cayenne pepper. If any common ailment this will give speedy relief. If not, repeat the dose in an hour or so.

Feeding Chickens for Market.

Much profit is missed by feeding young chickens too long. The early broods should now be ready for feeding. It is better to have them already fed, for then the cockerel will be ready for sale, and the pullets will be so far forward as to be ready to begin laying early in the fall. But if the chickens have not been fully fed, the cockerels should be separated now and the old cocks turned in with them. At any rate the cocks should be separated from the hens at once, as they are a worry and a nuisance to the hens, and more eggs will be laid without them than with them. Probably no more hens will set, but as the eggs will be good for two weeks after the separation, this may be made at once. The best of young cockerels should be selected for use next year, and the rest should be forced for market and disposed of at once. They will bring more now than at any time later. An excellent feed for them is corn-meal, mixed with boiling hot skimmed milk. This gives the flesh a fine flavor and a white and clear appearance, which adds to the market value. The feeding should not be continued over two weeks, and if the fowels have had all they will eat, they will be as fat as they can be made. Longer feeding will not add to their weight, as it is apt to produce disease.—[American Agriculturist.

Graveyard Insurance.

Frank Ackerly, recently sent to State prison from Poughkeepsie for forgery, while acting as agent in Oswego for the Mutual Trust Fund Life association of New York, placed insurance to the amount of $89,000 on several persons afflicted with incurable diseases. [illegible] They know that only a single plank separates them from the relentless waters—that a rod—a pin—a [illegible] crack may snap at any moment and render the huge ship as helpless as a log.

There is treachery in the waters when they lap and gurgle and run softly up on the sands, and break so still that a sleeping infant would be soothed to deeper slumber. There is fire aboard. Under the boilers down in the dark hold—in the cook's galley—in half a dozen other places lurks a fiend who may spring up at any moment and clasp the huge ship in his fiery arms.

The sky is without a cloud, but an hour hence may bring a hurricane which will vex ocean and land until every living thing cries out in supplication. Puff! puff! puff! It is the exhaust of steam. It is steam controlled by watchful eyes and experienced hands. Let it but secure the mastery for a moment and the heavens will be rent by an explosion. Straight ahead in her path, but miles away is a ghastly obstruction. It creeps—creeps—creeps—moved by some mysterious current. It is an iceberg of such dimensions that the great steamship is a button compared to the monster fly-wheel of a 200 horse-power engine. On the starboard bow is a bark under full sail—on the port bow a steamer coming head on.

Throb! throb! throb!

And the men and women and children go to their beds and sleep in peace and dream sweet dreams. Bye and bye a fog creeps up—coming without whisper or foot fall, as a deadly scourge enters a city and silently marks its victims with a touch of death. The man on the bridge reaches for a better glass—seems a trifle uneasy. The lookouts rub their eyes and start up as if half suspecting they had slept for a moment, and a hand is raised to the fog-whistle.

Boom! boom! boom!

Here and there a nervous sleeper may start up at the sound, but only to sleep again. All is well.

Through the darkness—through the blacker mantle of fog—throbbing, breathing, living—the great iron monster pushes her way, and every few seconds the omnious sound of the whistle booms out to be caught up by the wreaths and and smothered in the folds which are pressing down to smother their victim.

Throb! throb! Boom! boom! But all is well!

When a knob comes off a door handle you can fasten it on again by filling the cavity in the knob with sulphur, then heat the iron end of the handle which goes in the knob just hot enough to melt the sulphur, put the knob in, and let it cool. It will be firmly fixed in place.

To color kid gloves: India ink, dissolved in water and applied evenly with a camel's hair brush, will give jet black color. One-fourth of an ounce of extract of logwood in two ounces of brandy give a lilac; increase the proportion of logwood and a darker color is produced, even nearly black. Strong tea gives a handsome brown.

To destroy ants: Drop some quicklime on the mouth of their nest, and wash it in with boiling water; or dissolve some camphor in alcohol, then mix with water and pour into their haunts; or tobacco water, which has been proven satisfactory. They are averse to strong scents. Camphor will prevent their infesting a cupboard, or a sponge saturated with creosote. To prevent their climbing up trees, place a ring of tar about the trunk of the tree, or a circle of rag moistened occasionally with creosote.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS.

They are the most important secretory organs. Into and through the Kidneys flow the waste fluids of the body, containing poisonous matter taken out of the system. If the Kidneys do not act properly this matter is retained, the whole system becomes disordered and the following symptoms will follow: Headache, weakness, pain in the small of back and loins, flushes of heat, chills, with disordered stomach and bowels. You can thoroughly protect the Kidneys by BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS, and when any of these symptoms manifest themselves you can quickly rid yourself of them by this best of all medicines for the Kidneys. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS are sold everywhere at $1 per bottle, and one bottle will prove their efficacy.

The Newspaper Reporter.

Among the workers who with brain or muscle toil their way through this weary world, the newspaper reporter seems to occupy an anomalous position. The whole course of his life alternating between the deepest shadows and the wildest merriment show that he is at once the most courted and neglected, the most sought-for and shunned, hated, feared, underrated and overestimated factor in modern society. At the regulation social gathering, "The Press" is toasted amid applause and the response always alludes to "the great power" and the "moral lever," but the world knows nothing of the trials attending the life of the average reporter. The plaudits of the public are sometimes wafted into the editorial sanctum, but the poor reporter unnoticed, has to see the credit which should belong to him given to another.

The nature of a reporter's business enables him to estimate human nature, as he sees his fellowman under all circumstances. In all the scenes which go to make up the drama of life, the reporter is on hand, quick, apt, and ready to make a mental photograph which will include the most minute details. As circumstances require he must be able to spread a trivial occurance over a column of space without repetition, or describing the most thriling scene in a paragraph. He must be ready at the call of duty to fraternize with the bar-room rough, and be competent to discuss theology with a doctor of divinity. To-night he is wading among the slums of the great city viewing vice in its most hideous form, to-morrow he may be sitting in the parlor of the merchant prince, with whom, for the time being, he is on terms of equality. He shakes hands with the condemned murderer, and turns to hob-nob with the judge who pronounced the sentence.

He is ever among us, yet seldom recognized, and whether the occasion be a dog fight or a political revolution he takes in the situation at a glance, and makes the most of it. Like the poet he is born, not made, for all the colleges in the country could not turn out a reporter, as nothing short of actual experience will fit him for this business. He makes a fortune for others and lives in penury himself. He makes others famous and dies unknown.—[Arkansaw Traveler.

H. C. Geisler would specially recommend to the ladies Acker's Dyspepsia Tablets. As a laxative they have no equal. They are guaranteed to cure chronic consumption, dyspepsia and all diseases arising from a deranged stomach. With a free use of the Tablet, sick-headache is impossible.

KEEP IT PURE.

The Life is the Blood—Prevent Disease Surgery the Last Resort—A Telling Letter.

Here is a fact for you to think over, viz.: Medical science proves that diseases, no matter how great a variety they seem to have, proceed from comparatively few causes. It is for this reason that some single medicines relieve or cure so wide a range of complaints—some of them appearing almost directly opposite in their natures. When a medical preparation acts at once upon the digestive and urinary organs, and also purifies the blood, the list of difficulties subject to its control is astonishing. But, while many things are said to possess this power, those which actually do exert it are very rare.

It is conceded that DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., is the most effective preparation now in use for all diseases arising from a foul or impure state of the circulation. Hence it is more than likely that if the writer of the following letter had habitually taken "FAVORITE REMEDY" ten years ago, he would never have suffered from Cancer.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 22, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—About six years ago I was obliged to resort to external treatment for the removal of a cancerous growth on my lip. On my return home, I became sensible that my blood needed a thorough cleansing. My whole system, too, required toning up. While casting about for the best medicine to do this, your "FAVORITE REMEDY" was so highly recommended in my hearing that I resolved to try it. I did so, and the result surprised me, I was effected so quickly and completely. I soon got over the depression produced by the operation, and since the "FAVORITE REMEDY," which I have continued to take in small doses, has kept me in such health and strength as I never had before, nor expected to have. It is the best blood purifier in the world. I am sure of that. Yours, &c.,

[illegible] Wishes.

HIS WISH.

"[illegible] for a wife," said a youth who had learned
[illegible] penny saved is a penny earned;
[illegible] be too vain or proud,
[illegible] of show in a dazzling crowd;
[illegible] her comely, and plain and neat,
[illegible] graces and gifts you rarely meet;
[illegible] must be tender, her knowledge fair,
[illegible] must lighten my weight of care,
[illegible] not mind if her purse is small,
[illegible] whether she has a purse at all,
And I crave not beauty, nor set it above
The weightier matters of goodness and love."

HER WISH.

"When I take a husband," the maiden said,
"I shall take a man with a level head;
[illegible] shall not dwell on dress, and knows
[illegible] girl is not made by furbelows;
Who can earn a penny, and save it two;
Who is good and honest, tender and true;
Who does not put mere beauty above
The higher blessings of earnest love.
I would have his lineage honest and fair,
But for his money I do not care.
When such a man I chance to see,
I shall wish him success, if he comes for me."

Perhaps these wishes may somewhere meet,
In hall or parlor or field or street;
For they are worthy to place above
Mere show and gewgaws the heart's true love.

ONLY AN ADVERTISEMENT.

I was a in destitute circumstances. I was young physician. I was known, but that was about all, and the people in my neighborhood when they required the assistance of a medical man of any kind always left me out of the question. My name is Phillip Drummond, and I had an office in one of the business neighborhoods of New York.

One morning I reached my office a little earlier than usual. I took up a few letters that awaited me there, and after perusing them glanced over the morning paper. I had been reading it but a short time when my eye caught an advertisement. I smiled at the peculiarity of it, and I read it a second time, and actually laughed. Then I walked to the cracked looking glass in the corner of the room and gazed upon myself. I prided myself upon my good looks, and I again read the advertisement. It read as follows:

WANTED.—A good looking young man with a view to matrimony. He need not necessarily possess a fortune. Apply at once to No. — 46th street, city.
A LADY OF FORTUNE.

I straightened my hair, and set out for the above mentioned residence. Why should I not have a chance of winning a fortune as well as any one else? There is many a girl who has obtained a fortune by her good looks, and, although I am not a girl, I determined to try my luck. I walked along, deeply meditating on what kind of a house I would live in, and what kind of a lady I was going to make my wife, and sundry other nonsensical notions, which naturally strike a head with such great hopes as I had that day.

I had been walking some time, and was just about to cross a street, when I heard a commotion, and turned my head to see from whence it proceeded. Gathered about midway between the two sidewalks was a crowd, steadily increasing in size, and it immediately struck me that it was an accident of some kind. I abandoned my mercenary motives for the time, and joined the crowd to see who the unfortunate creature was. I succeeded in getting half way through the crowd when I heard a musical voice say, in piteous accents:

"Won't somebody please go for a doctor, or she will surely die?"

I cried to the people to let me through, intimating that I was a physian, and as I reached the front of the crowd a sight greeted my eyes that I will never forget. Stretched upon the ground was a female, apparently about 30 years of age, with a strangely beautiful face. Her eyes, which were open, had a look in them that I could not forbear shuddering at, so piercing was it. Kneeling over her was a very pretty young girl, about 16 years of age, who was dressed in clothes so fine they made me think she was a resident of one of the fashionable neighborhoods. I told her in as few words as possible that I was a physician, and lifting the head of the other proceeded to discover if she had received any serious wounds. All was quiet for a few moments, every person bending forward to catch a glance at the unfortunate woman.

"You have tarried too long in sending for help," I said. "The woman is dead."

The young girl uttered a shriek and fell senseless, and I just arose in time to receive her in my arms. A man in the crowd said that he knew her.

"Where do they live?" I inquired.

"That woman was the young girl's aunt, but she was a little gone in the head. They live at No. — Forty-sixth street."

I started up and uttered a cry, for it came to me that that was the place where the lady lived who was so anxious to marry. They were immediately taken to that place, and I followed. The girl recovered in a short time, and the lady being removed I begged her attention for a few moments. I had something to say.

"I have learned that the lady was your aunt, miss," I said, "but the par[illegible]

[illegible] wandered out; I followed her, but only to see her struck down and killed by a vehicle. Oh, sir, let me thank you for the service you have rendered me this morning. I can never forget it."

I sat and looked at her. I had almost lost my voice while listening to that one so full of distress and mortification. I made a supreme effort, and at last commanding my voice I said:

"It may seem mercenary on my part, but I must confess that I met with yourself and aunt in a very curious manner. I am in distressed circumstances, and happening to see this morning's paper, I noticed an advertisement desiring a young gentleman who had a desire for matrimony to call at this residence at once. The strange advertisement was signed by 'A Lady of Fortune.' While on my way here I passed along the street in which your unfortunate aunt met with that awful accident, and was thus by a strange coincidence thrown in with the persons whom I sought."

That was the only way that I could get out of it, so I preferred to tell the truth. I watched the effect my words had upon her. Her face turned white, then very red, as she replied:

"My aunt had a strange fancy for publishing such things and, and as she was once a lady of education, they were always supposed to be genuine. However, I feel very sorry for you that all your hopes are blighted, but as time works wonders, you may yet succeed to a fortune." I did not know what was implied in her words, but when she said that she was sorry that my hopes were blighted, I thought it quite an insult, and bidding her a cold adieu, I left the house.

As I walked along the street I fell to cursing myself, instead of blessing my lucky stars that I had escaped marrying a maniac. I would have given a deal of money to have taken back those words I had said while in the house. I need not have told her that I was in hopes of obtaining a fortune, but then it might have been her that inserted the fatal advertisement, and I would have missed it.

About five weeks after my adventure I began to despair of ever having a chance to tell her that I loved her, when while strolling along Broadway. I met a near friend of mine.

"Allow me to congratulate you on your good luck, my good fellow," said this personage. "I hope I will come in with some of your good wishes."

I looked at him with staring eyes, for I thought he was drunk.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"Is it possible that you do not know,' he cried, "Read this." He took from his pocket a newspaper, and pointed to the following paragraph:

"If Dr. Phillip Drummond will call at No. 46——street, he will hear of something to his advantage. He has been left a fortune."

I darted down the street without a word to my astonished friend, and soon reached the well-known residence. When the door was opened, I had the greatest difficulty in controlling myself. At last I reached the parlor and saw before me the young girl.

"Sir, she said, "my father has just departed for England, and learning of your heroic conduct on the occasion of the death of his sister, he insisted that you should receive this small sum in acknowledgement of the valuable services rendered."

There was a merry twinkle in her eye as she said this, and I answered:

"Indeed, miss, I cannot understand you I rendered no valuable services that day. What heroic conduct does your father refer to?"

"He made no remarks on that, but when I told him he complimented you and insisted on leaving this for you."

I gazed at her a few seconds and knowing that I had money at last, before I knew it myself I had clasped her in my arms and told her of my love. Instead of replying she burst out laughing, and turning my head, I saw standing some distance away an elderly gentleman gazing at us with a complacent smile on his benevoelent face. I knew that this was her father. He stepped forward and grasped my hand, saying:

"My young friend, I admire your coolness. Take her and treat her well." I was surprised at this strange manner of love making. I said:

"I am overwhelmed by my happiness, but may I ask your name?"

"Phillip, don't you know me?" the elderly gentleman asked: "I am Dick Brinton and this is my daughter Kate."

I recognized in him an old school friend of my father, whom I had met when quite small; but I never knew he had a daughter, nor in what part of the world he resided, but as I had received her love I cared for nothing else.

* * * * * * * *

It is five years since I have been married, and as I sit here in my own home I have to the right of me an elderly gentleman, whom the reader will recognize, and to the left a beautiful woman, my Kate, and on all sides of me I have any amount of young physicians looking in the papers for advertisements.

The Cigarette Nuisance.

Not long ago, in a smoking compartment of a Pullman car on the Pennsylvania road, a little scene occurred in which the cigarette was, as usual, the cause of the trouble. There were four men smoking cigars in the somewhat confined space of the compartment, when the cigarette came in. Attached to it was a thin young man who was still so far behind the fashion as to wear his hair banged. It was one of the twenty for 10 cents cigarettes of a cheep brand abundantly advertised. The cigarette had not been there a minute before the enjoyment of every smoker in the place was thoroughly spoiled. An elderly man who was one of the original quartette took out his cigar case and offered the cigarette young man a cigar. The youth preferred his cigarette he said. Then the man put his cigar case back in his pocket, tossed his partially consumed cigar out of the window and deliberately left the compartment. The youth with a cigarette was well meaning enough, and he rushed after the retreating smoker with an apology, but the man with the cigar case did not return. He was quite pleasant about it, however; said he recognized the right of every man to smoke in public place, but as he could not himself stand cigarettes, though he had smoked all his life, he preferred to go to the forward end of the car.

I don't think cigarette smokers realize—I know I never did when I smoked cigarettes—how offensive the odor of the cheap paper abominations so extensively sold are to cigar smokers. That the anti-cigarette smoking movement is growing can not be doubted. A few nights ago a group of men were talking uptown in a cafe when one of them lighted one of the usual cigarettes. The man inhaled the smoke and then blew it out in a perfect cloud almost into the faces of the four or five men who were sitting around him. Mr. Joseph Howard jr., was one of the men. He turned to the man calmly and said:

"Will you be kind enough to put that cigarette out? It is disagreeable and unpleasant, and if you keep it here I shall go away."

The man looked at Mr. Howard in some surprise, saw he was in earnest and tossed his cigarette away.

A night or two afterward, another party of men, among whom was Mr. Charles A. Byrne, stood talking in front of a theatre, M. B. Curtis, the "Sam'l of Posen" actor, came up to the crowd, effusively yelled a greeting and blew a cloud of smoke so that it floated about in the faces of those who stood near him. Mr. Byrne put out his hand calmly, took Curtis' cigarette and tossed it in the gutter. He was talking at the time. He did not interrupt himself, finished what he was saying, while Mr. Curtis looked at him in absolute astonishment. Then Mr. Curtis appeared subdued and sad, but made no protest whatever. The signs prohibiting cigarette smoking in offices grow more numerous and, after all, there may be a check to the custom after awhile. If good cigarettes were smoked, it would be bad enough; as it is, the nuisance is intolerable.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

Baby waists gathered on to yokes and belts at the waist line, worn with full gathered or plaited skirts, which are tucked and trimmed with embroidery, but not flounced, are features of little girls' dresses.

A REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

Mrs. Mary A. Dailey, of [illegible]

"Fair Play."

"Git up!"

It was in 1864, down in front of Grant's army, and I was a mile or so outside of the Union pickets, having been out on a scout. In making my way back I had been followed pretty closely by half a dozen Confederates, and had eluded them by hiding in a thicket. After an hour's rest I was creeping along on hands and knees towards the nearest field fence when the above command reached my ears, and a "reb" stepped into view from behind a large tree.

"Yank, in course?" he queried as he looked me over, holding his carbine ready for a shot.

I nodded in the affirmative.

"How are you heeled?"

I had a navy revolver in my belt, and I showed it to him.

He threw down his carbine, drew a navy from his own belt, and, coming quite close to me, he said:

"Yank, one of us has got to die! A week ago some of you'uns set the cabin afire and turned my poor old mother out into the fields to take sick and die. I swore on her grave that I would kill the fust Yank I could draw bead on, and you're my meat!"

"Are you going to shoot a prisoner down in cold blood?"

"That ain't Silas Curtis—not much! It's ten paces—one—two—three—fire. You shall have fair play."

"You mean we shall fight a duel?"

"Sorter one. I expect you'll shoot at me and miss, and I'll shoot at you and put a ball into your head. I'm no bushwhacker to shoot a man down without a show, but I'm a dead certain to kill you, all the same."

We backed away from each other. The woods were fairly open, and when we had thirty feet between us there was no obstruction to deflect a bullet or annoy the eye.

"All ready, Yank?"

"Yes."

"I'll be fair. You may do the counting. Good-bye to you, for I'm a dead-shot."

"One—two—three—fire!"

The two pistols made one report, but as the noise filled my ears I went down. I was bewildered—half-unconscious—but realized that I was hurt.

"Shoo, now, but I just raked his scalp!" I heard the man say, as he bent over, me "Say, Yank, we must have another shot. You cut powerful close to my ear, and mebbe I dodged a bit. Come, fair play, ye know."

I tried to rise up but fell back, and that moment two bushwhackers pushed out of the woods and came running up. I heard loud talking, oaths, threats, and a bullet from a pistol tore through the cloth on my shoulder. Then I must have fainted for the next thing I remember was of being carried on the man's back through the woods. When he felt me moving he laid me down and asked:

"Say, Yank, how fur is it to your lines?"

"About a mile from where we fought."

"Straight north?"

"Yes."

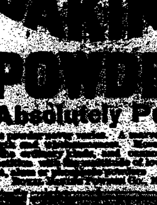
"Because those bushwhackers was bent on killing you, and to see fair play, I had to plant 'em both. Reckon I hain't no more business in the Confederacy after this. Reckon Uncle Sam won't be any wuss on me nor Jeff Davis. Yank, can ye hang to my neck?"

"Yes."

"All right. Keep this 'ere handkerchief sorter waving as a signal to the pickets, and I'll carry ye safe as an ambulance."

And clinging to the back of the man who had thirsted for my blood, I was soon inside the lines, and Sile was explaining to the pickets:

"No, I hain't no deserter. I've been sorter driven in here because Sile Curtis will see fair play if it takes a leg."—[Detroit Free Press.



ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. Royal Baking Powder Co. 106 Wall St., N. Y.

"Yes, sah," said Uncle Zach, "I've watched it forty years an' it's as I said. De fust of May an' Christmas day on de same year allers comes on de same week day."

Further conversation proved Uncle Zach a most incredulous person. Chancing to mention Dr. Carver's feat of breaking glass balls with a rifle, he said:

"I heered' bout dat shooting' and knowed right off it wasn't squar', dat was a Yankee trick, boss, sho's you born."

"What was the trick?"

"Dar was loadstone put into de glass balls, an' likewise onto de bullets; so when de bullet fly outen de gun, it an de ball jes drawed tergedder, which, in course, brokes de glass—dats de trick!"

Later, Uncle Zach observed a rope running along the side of the car.

"Boss, what's dat line fur?"

"To apply the air-brake in case of accidents." Then we had furthur to explain how the force of the brake was obtained, to which Uncle Zach responded:

"Look a here boss, you sholy don't spect me to b'leeve dat foolishness? Why, de biggest harricane whatever blowed couldn't stop dis train, runnin' forty mile a hour. An' you think I gwin to b'leeve a little pipe full of wind under de kyars can do it? No, sahree!"

There are a great many Uncle Zachs who judge everything simply by appearences. The air-brake does not seem to be a very powerful thing, but power and efficiency are not necessarly equivavant to bigness and pretense.

Philip Beers, Esq., who resides at United States Hotel, New York city, and is engaged in raising subscriptions for the New York World Bartholdi pedestal fund, was once upbraided by a distinguished relative who was a physician, for commending in such enthusiastic terms, a remedy that cured him of brights disease eight years ago. He said: "Sir, has the medical profession with all its power and experience of thousands of years, anything that can cure this terrible disorder?" No, no, that is true, there is no mistake about it but that Warner's safe cure is really a wonderfully effective preparation. That remedy is an "air-brake" that every man can apply and this fact explains why it has saved so many hundreds of thousands of lives.—[Copyrighted. Used by permission of American Rural Home.

Four Great Generals.

The four greatest generals produced by the great civil war on the National side were Grant, McPherson, Sherman and Sheridan. One of the most pleasant memories of American history is, and will be, the fact that between these four great commanders there was never the shadow of jealousy or envy. It is the highest honor that Grant ever received from men's judgment or admiration that these three able captains all willingly and always looked up to him as their superior. McPherson fell in battle before the splendor of his abilities could attract the world's attention. But in his death Grant, as he declared, lost one of the greatest—perhaps the very greatest—of his lieutenants. Sheridan, as in right of his Irish blood, had the fiercest spirit in battle; Sherman the greatest invention in council, while McPherson could fight with the one and plan with the other; but they all admitted, because they knew and felt that "the silent, gray-eyed man" was greater than they.

"Why," I asked Gen. Sherman, once, "did you and Sheridan always acknowledge Grant to be your leader?" "Because," he responded in his quick idiomatic manner, "while I could map out a dozen plans for a campaign, every one of which Sheridan would swear he could fight out to victory, neither he nor I could tell which of the plans was the best one; but Grant, who simply sat and listened and smoked while we had been talking over the maps, would at the end of our talking tell which was the best plan and in a dozen or two words the reason of his decision, and then it would be all so clear to us that he was right that Sheridan and I would look at each other and wonder why we hadn't seen the advantage of it ourselves."

"I tell you," he continued, after a moment's pause, "Grant is not appreciated yet; the critics of Europe are too ignorant of American geography to appreciate the conditions of his campaigns. What is it to march an army from Berlin to Paris? Look at the shortness of the distance. Look at the multitude of roads. Look at the facilities for transportation. Consider how many times the same ground has been fought over by successive commanders. Is not every point of advantage known? What commander can blunder where all the conditions lie open to his eye? But I have seen Grant plan campaigns for half a million of troops along a front line 2,500 miles in length, and send them marching to their objective points through sections where the commissariat necessities alone would have broken down any transportation system of Europe; and three months later I have seen those armies standing where he said they should be, and doing what he [illegible] Napoleon, Wellington and [illegible]"—[Montreal Gazette.

JAMES D. FISH, ex-bank president from New York, has been assigned to packing boots into boxes and nailing up boxes in the boot and shoe shop in the prison. He has written one letter to his daughter since his confinement. He will only be allowed once in six weeks to write letters.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL GARLAND has rendered a decision on the three points relative to the acceptance of the dispatch boat Dolphin by the government submitted to him by Secretary Whitney. The attorney general holds that the vessel can not be accepted by the Secretary of the Navy, that no contract exists between John Roach and the government and that the large sum of money paid to him for the vessel may be recovered.

THE Democratic State Editorial Convention of Indiana, on Friday passed resolutions declaring in their belief that radical reform in government affairs is only possible through the appointment to civil positions of persons in full sympathy with the Democratic party as represented by its statesmen and leaders. A resolution was also adopted depreciating the presumption that cause should be shown for removal of Republicans from office.

EXCITEMENT in London over the exposures of vice in the Pall Mall Gazette continues with but little abatement. Proof of the truth of the revelations, which are most revolting, is to be submitted to a responsible committee who will report to the public. The paper has the sympathy of the clergy of London and many prominent people throughout all England. The exposures of iniquity by this paper are unparalleled in history.

DULL as times are in the United States, it is evident, from reliable information gathered by United States consuls abroad, that the workingmen, even in this season of depression, is better here than in England, and immeasurably better than in continental Europe. The United States continues to be the best country in the world for the man who has to toil for a living, and it is noticeable that the foreign labor-agitators who find the most fault here are in no hurry to return to whence they came.—[Providence Journal.

TO-DAY the State reservation at Niagara Falls will be thrown open to the public. The event will be celebrated in grand style and in a manner characteristic of our people. Cheese Market.

(FROM THE UTICA HERALD.)

AT UTICA July 13.

The market to-day was active, and competition for fine lots was strong. This competition did not develop itself until late in the day, then the spurt was made in a few minutes. Factorymen say that cheese and milk are shrinking quite as rapidly as they did last year at this time, cause not given. One buyer succeeded in cornering a large portion of the high priced cheese to-day. Some, however, express fears that these figures will not be maintained, but the advance of last week which was equally strong gives encouragement to believe that the foreign advices will warrant these prices. Transactions were as follows: 4 lots, 400 boxes, at 7¼c.; 6 lots, 600 boxes, at 7⅜c. 56 lots, 6,363 boxes, at 7⅝c.; 16 lots, 2,673 boxes, at 8c.; 5 lots, 578 boxes, at 8⅛c.; 16 lots, 1,917 boxes, at 8¼c.; 93 boxes at 6⅝c. Sales, 12,628 boxes; commissions, 2,061 boxes; total 14,690 boxes. Ruling price 7⅝c. Transactions one year ago, 14,749 boxes, ruling price 9c.; two years ago 16,385 boxes; ruling price 10c.

LITTLE FALLS, July 13.

CHEESE—We have a further advance in price of one-fourth cent on the ruling price and one and one-half cent on the top price. This was believed to be a good market by [illegible] and a favorable time to sell; accordingly the lots were large and the aggregate [illegible] the most yet shown here any day this season. White cheese continues to be favored above colored, altho' prices vary but a trifle. General confidence is expressed in these rates being maintained, altho' it is admitted that it is a speculative market. All are quite pleased with the advance on June stock, and as the weather thus far this month has been generally cool, the July cheese made are fully equal in quality to the June make. It will be a surprise [illegible] Factors [illegible] by two or three weeks of the [illegible] following is a list of transactions:

[illegible] over 40,000 copies of this "Students' Songs" have been made, and the demand is almost the same as before. The probable cause of this success is the fact that prior to the publication of "Students' Songs" there was no book containing songs and music that have sprung up and become popular within college walls during the past ten years. The songs have been heard and heartily enjoyed by thousands of people at glee club concerts, college festivities, college societies and at home and social gatherings. They have a peculiar breeziness and mirth-making capacity that make them enjoyable on all enjoyable occasions. The book itself is also a cause of its success. It is handsomely printed, and contains sixty of these songs, with their music, nearly all of which are copyrighted, and to be found in no other collection. It is a surprise to find so choice a collection of new and copyrighted jolly songs and music, selling for only fifty cents. Like almost all successes, it has its imitations, and some are rather deceptive in their make-up. Already several so-called collections of students' or college songs are in the market, but the genuine and original book of "Students' Songs," the only one that has been noteworthily successful is edited and compiled by Wm. H. Hills, a young Harvard graduate, and published by Moses King, the publisher, at Hanover square, in Cambridge, Mass.

Gen. Grant Better.

Mt. McGregor, July, 13.—All the indications are that Gen. Grant is again mending. Last night was a quiet one and this morning the general seemed refreshed and cheerful. Dr. Douglas took his pulse once during the night. He thought it had better volume than for several days. The doctor attributes the good night and such improvement as has followed to yesterday's preparation for it, where nothing was allowed to disturb or excite him. But there has not been a full recovery to the condition of Wednesday last, and it will be wonderful if he becomes so well again. His spirits are good. He has remained in his room this morning. Probably he will venture out during the afternoon. Dr. Shrady will come up to-day, and Dr. Douglas will rest during the remainder of the week.

Mr. H. C. Beals came before the Board and requested permission to erect a one-story wooden building on First-st., within the Fire limits.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick the request was granted provided he covers same with iron and asbestos, and iron or tin roof, and render same as near Fire proof as possible.

Mr. M. L. Birdsall came before the Board and made a statement relative to the employment of his team and doing highway work; the matter was referred to the Street Committee.

On motion of Mr. Bradford, Mr. A. W. Stoneburgh was appointed policeman No. 10.

On motion of Mr. Kendrick the Board adjourned to July 9, 1885, at 4 o'clock P.M.

ARVIN RICE, Clerk.

FULTON, N. Y., July 9, 1885.

Board met pursuant to adjournment and to Notice of Special Election duly given.

Present, President Waugh and Trustees Bradford, Chase, Gage, Hulett and Johnson, and a number of taxable inhabitants.

Trustee Kendrick came in during the meeting.

The Polls of the Special Election were opened at 4 o'clock P.M., and were closed at 9 o'clock P.M.

Upon the Resolution to raise the sum of Sixteen Hundred Dollars by a tax for the purpose of paying the Fulton Water Works Company for supply of water for Fire and other purposes, for one year from the completion of their works, there were Two Hundred and Sixty-nine votes cast, of which One Hundred and Sixty-three votes were for the Resolution, and One Hundred and six votes were against it.

The Resolution was declared adopted.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, the Board adjourned to July 13, 1885, at 7½ P.M.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 10 Dexter St.

DR. J. A. SHERMAN—Dear Friend: I am sorry, Doctor, you have left Boston. Persons continue to come to my house to inquire respecting you, while many others write me. Many who left me said they would surely seek your aid. Your success has been wonderful, and I am quite sure without a parallel. To my surprise my large Hernia appears to be perfectly healed. I did not expect it at the age of 79. After receiving your treatment I was relieved from suffering which was fast taking my life. I have no idea I should be living had you not taken my case in hand. I weigh now 170 pounds, over thirty pounds more than then. I think you must receive a great amount of happiness from the relief given and gratitude rendered.

You owe it to my son in Boston, who has known many of your patients before and after healing, that I applied to you. "Go," said he, "to Dr. Sherman; he is doing wonders." I had failed of help from a dozen others and doubted, but he would not let me rest till I went. I bless the day I did so. It is to me a mystery, Doctor, that you have so wonderfully out-distanced all in your profession.

I hope your life will long be spared to relieve sufferers, and thus bless the world. Most affectionately and gratefully yours.
REV. JOHN ALDEN.

The Rev. John Alden's case was quite as bad as Mr. James Corlew's, in Dr. Sherman's illustrated book. Those who value immunity from strangulated rupture, the injury trusses inflict, and the comforts of physical soundness should lose no time in securing the benefits of Dr. Sherman's treatment and remedies. His book, containing likenesses of bad cases before and after cure, with evidence of his success and endorsements from distinguished physicians, clergymen, merchants, farmers, engineers and others, is expressed to those who send 10 cents. Dr. Sherman can be consulted daily at his office, 251 Broadway, New York, except Thursdays and Fridays, when he will be in Philadelphia office 302 Walnut Street. NOTE.—No operation or detention from business. Patients from a distance can receive treatment and leave for home same day. 5w4

[illegible] letting the upper part fall to the floor in an upright position. From this room the fluid passed through the side of the house and thence to the ground. When THE TIMES reporter called yesterday morning, the bedroom and portions of the cellar presented the appearance of having suffered from an explosion of dynamite. The ground around the back part of the house was torn up, and several large holes were made in the floor of the cellar. A large tree standing in the corner of the yard near the house was also struck. The bark was torn off, and the fence from the tree to the corner post was badly torn and shattered. Fortunately Mrs. Alger and her child were away from home at the time or the results would in all probability have been more serious.

An old man by the name of Pelkie, living in the next house to Mr. Alger's and across the road, was prostrated by the shock and for some time was insensible and totally blind. Yesterday morning he had nearly recovered from the effects of the shock.

We Observe.

That news is very scarce.

That lawn tennis playing in Fulton is not as popular as last season.

That not a few voters opposed the water works.

That dog muzzles will soon be in demand.

That the hay crop in this vicinity is very heavy with uncertain weather for harvesting.

That now is the time to take your vacation.

That the Catholic society have decided not to build this season.

That the merchant who advertises catch the trade these dull times.

That the sanitary laws should be strictly lived up to during July and August.

That a clergy will soon have a matrimonial duty to perform on Rochester street.

That the new foundry on the flats will be completed and in running order within a week or so.

That after the water works should come electric light and a street railway.

That the Riverside and Oswego mills are advertising for bids to remove several thousand cubic yards of rock from the raceway and above bulk head gate.

Big Fire at Phoenix.

Shortly before eight o'clock Monday evening the fire alarm was sounded, and it was soon learned that the building occupied by the Syracuse Oil Stone Co. was on fire. The firemen were soon at work, but the building was a large one and the fire had made such progress on the inside that it was impossible to subdue it, and attention was given to saving the adjacent lumber piles of Loomis & Sons, which was accomplished. The Oil Stone building was built in the fall of 1883 at a cost of about $3,000 and was insured for $2,500 with local agents. Gillett & Son managed the business of the Oil Stone Co. which moved here from Syracuse shortly after the building was completed. The loss sustained by the company is estimated at from $13,000 to $15,000 on stock and machinery, on which they were carrying $7,000 insurance. The fire was discovered in the vicinity of the stock room, and is thought to have taken from the stove used for drying purposes. The shop has not been running to its full capacity. Fifteen hand have been thrown out of employment. Enterprise Fire Company was rewarded for their efforts to save Loomis & Son's property by a check of $25 from the firm.

Held for the Grand Jury.

Murt Murphy and James Dwyer, who were recently arrested charged with robbery and assault on the person of Jas. Dewell of Palermo, were held yesterday morning by Police Justice VanWagenen to await the action of the grand jury. They have been taken to Oswego. Considerable credit is due Officer Poole for his efforts to bring these men to justice. There is no doubt but that for his untiring efforts the case would never have been made public. We understand that after the robbery was committed, Murphy and Dwyer threatened Dewell with summary punishment if he made the affair known. When he told the officer of the circumstances, Poole remembered that these were the men he had driven from the streets at a late hour on the night in question, and through his means the defendants were fully identified by Dewell. They will in all probability be indicted.

"It Costs too Much."

"Can't afford to advertise, it costs too much!" So, so! Why don't you put your goods into a shed or a back street because it costs something for a nice store in the business part of the town; use old dry goods boxes because you "can't afford" to put in nice, attractive counters; put up no sign, because signs cost something; spend nothing for advertising your business because it "costs too much!" Then growl about hard times, because people go to those who do advertise, instead of spending time to hunt you up. No wonder you can't afford to advertise when you don't let people know where you are and what you have to sell! And then your trade is so small that when you do have a customer, you are compelled to put a larger margin on what he wants or you couldn't afford to live. Don't worry your [illegible]

In behalf of our villagers we extend congratulations to Miss Gertrude Stephens on being retained in the public schools of Auburn, with an increase of salary. By reason of Miss Stephens' well known ability and conscientious discharge of duty, we consider her promotion a reward of merit and a deserved compliment.

One of the most pleasant gatherings of young people ever held in Fulton occurred last evening at the residence of Miss Ella Poole on Oneida street. Refreshments were served, dancing indulged in and a pleasant time enjoyed by all. Several guests from out of town were present.

Mr. George Kellogg of Fulton N. Y., is with his wife visiting his brother Charles Kellogg esq., of this village. George will be pleasantly remembered by many of the readers of the Dispatch. He removed to Fulton from this place, nearly eighteen years ago, where he has ever since been the efficient paying teller of the first National Bank of that village.—[Chittenango Correspondent to Oneida Dispatch.

The Oswego Times-Express it seems, was a little premature in the announcement that Dr. Whited, of Oswego, and Dr. Pardee of this village had been appointed to the board of pension examiners for this county. Dr. Pardee stated yesterday that as yet he had received no such appointment. It is understood however, that a new board is to be appointed before long. If such is the case THE TIMES most heartily recommends the appointment of Dr. Pardee.

The great Peter Cooper is credited with the following: "In all towns where newspapers are published every man should advertise, even if nothing more than a card telling his name and the business in which he is engaged. It not only pays the advertiser, but lets the people at a distance know that the town at which you reside has a prosperous class of business men. As the seed is sown so it recompenses. Never pull down the sign while you intend to do business, for it often indicates that your grip, commercially, is broken.

Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it whether he has ordered it or not, will be held in the law to be a subscriber. If subscribers wish their papers discontinued publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible. Notice should always be given of removal. If subscribers refuse or neglect to take their paper from the office or place where they are sent, they are held responsible until they settle bills and give notice to discontinue.

Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Charles Lightfoot of Oswego Falls, a boy 15 years of age, an inmate of the Western house of refuge, was brought before Judge Churchill this morning on a writ of habeas corpus. It is claimed for the boy that he was sent on insufficient evidence and in an irregular manner. N. N. Stranahan presented the case for the boy, but was unable to convince Judge Churchill that the warrant was not sufficient, although he said that proceedings to review the action of the justice might have another ending and the boy was remanded to the custody of the superintendent of the refuge, with the recommendation that if the authorities found upon examination that the record of the boy was good he should be discharged on the application of his friends.—[Oswego Times-Express, Saturday.

Mr. Stranahan went to Rochester Monday, and upon the same papers presented to Judge Churchill, procured an order from the discharging committee of the House of Refuge, approved by the executive committee, discharging the boy into his custody. Mr. Stranahan returned with him last evening.

Marital.

We clip the following item from the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune. The bride will be pleasantly remembered by Fulton people, having been a former resident here:

One of those occurrences which comes to most but once in a lifetime, and are never forgotten, took place last Monday evening at 2436 Sixteenth avenue south, the home of Mr. Frank Arnold, brother-in-law of one of the parties most deeply interested. During its progress Mr. William H. Freese, of the firm of Freese Bros., grocers at 2447 Bloomington avenue, well and favorably known in the city, and Miss Bertha L. Reeves, of 2436 Sixteenth avenue south, were made one, according to previous arrangement between the parties and by the official sanction of Rev. N. Sutton, of the Minnesota conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. A pleasant company was present to witness the ceremony. Bountiful refreshments were provided. Many good wishes were expressed and beautiful and costly presents bestowed upon the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Freese will spend a few days at the lakes, after which they will be at home to friends at 2508 Bloomington avenue south.

A Canoe Regatta.

Next Friday afternoon the first regatta of the Fulton Canoe Club will occur on the river below VanBuren's Island. There will be three races. The first will be a sailing race for a silver cup. The second and third are respectively single and double paddling races. The prizes for these last two are elegant silk flags. An invitation to the Oswego Canoe Club to be present has been accepted and several canoists from that city will participate.

Drowned.

Last Sunday evening an eight-year-old boy named Alonzo Brown, living on the flats, while playing on some logs in the old canal near Nelson's saw mill fell in and before assistance could arrive was drowned. He had been in the water about twenty minutes when found. Monday evening a jury was empanelled by coroner Marsh, and an inquest held which resulted in a verdict of death by accidental drowning. The funeral was held this forenoon at 10 o'clock from the house, Rev Mr. Markham officiating.

General Grant's New Book.

The personal memories of U. S. Grant which has been entirely written by himself, a leading and popular book of the day, is being canvassed for in the town of Volney by P. E. Turtelot of Syracuse. This book is too well known to the public to need further introduction. It is sold only on subscription.

Albany's Disastrous Fire.

A fire broke out in the livery stable of Albert W. Burch at Albany on Sunday morning at 3:10 a. m. The building was a wooden structure and the fire made rapid progress. Thirty valuable horses perished in the flames. A large four story building adjoining soon ignited and all efforts of the firemen to save this building were futile. The building was used as a piano factory. Nothing was removed, and the entire building, extending 160 feet back, lay in ashes. Two frame houses were badly damaged. When the conflagration was at its height, the pipemen of steamer No. 4 and Foreman John A. Luby of No. 2, were stationed in a narrow alley near the north wall of the piano factory. Mr. Luby's companions were Rufus H. Townsend, Fred Wallen and Daniel Wheeler. A voice from the crowd cried: "For God's sake, come out, men; the wall is going to fall." But the roaring flames drowned the cry. Soon the wall, which stood 50 feet aloft, was seen to sway, and, like a stroke of lightning, it came down on the little band of heroes. Mr. Luby was taken out fatally injured and died during the day. [illegible]

Last week as Ira Carrier was on a load of hay, the forward wheels pulled out from under the load, throwing him on the ground. He struck on his head, breaking his collar bone and otherwise injuring himself severely. Mr. Carrier is seventy years old. At last accounts he was doing as well as could be expected considering his age.

Mr. A. N. Bradt of this village was taken prisoner in the late unpleasantness with our southern brethren. He went to Auburn last Saturday, to spend the Fourth, and while there he made the acquaintance of several of the Robert E. Lee veterans, and among them he discovered the identical soldier who made him prisoner, and to whom he was introduced.—[Hannibal News.
